

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

PREFACE

THE purpose of the two sets of notes will be plain at a glance. The first set aims to aid the reader to an understanding of the play in hand, and not distract him unnecessarily with notes on grammar, antiquities, and comparative literature. It is the Clouds he is reading and not the Mahabharata or Herrick or Dante. The second set is for the maturer student who is studying the Greek language, Greek comedy as a whole, Greek philosophy, and Greek history. Hence no apology is offered for referring therein to such German works as Kühner's Grammar, to foreign philological journals, to Meyer's and Busolt's histories. Advanced study of Greek and Latin presupposes knowledge of German, French, and Italian. The present edition of the Clouds will have served its best purpose, if it thus introduces the student to these indispensable works of large horizons.

In defence of the modern musical notation herein employed to present ancient Greek rhythms, I offer the following considerations: That we cannot teach Greek rhythms with certitude is no reason why we should not teach them at all. If we teach them at all, we should transcribe them by the best system of notation known to us. To choose the wholly inadequate notation by _'s and ∪'s, when musical notation lies at hand and is universally understood, is as if one should prefer to write Greek in Cretan pictographs or the Cypriote syllabary. If it be urged that we do not know to a certainty, for example, whether the Greek $\frac{3}{8}$ dactyl was rhythmized at  or , or whether certain cadences were  or , I ask in reply what difference this mere detail makes? Whether this way or that, the Greek chorus certainly all kept together. And so must any modern class in Greek drama who will beat off a fine rhythm in unison, and in so doing come at least one step nearer to realizing that the ancient poets were also musicians, even though we have lost their melodies. If then, in a given case, the Greeks sang  and we take it as , the error is slight; for both ways are rhythmical, and that is the chief feeling to be established in Greek poetry. To refuse to rhythmize at all or only vaguely (with —'s and ∪'s) because of this doubt in details is as over-cautious as if we refused to pronounce Greek aloud because of the uncertainty attaching to the delivery of Greek accents. This is well on the road to Pyrrhonism.

As for the Weil-Blass-Schröder treatment of Greek rhythm, I find that Goodell's Chapters on Greek Metric express well (and often) what I had felt quite independently. See, for example, Goodell, p. 222. To measure a verse; let us say, as — ∪ ∪ — | ∪ — ∪ — | is for me much the same as saying that a vessel contains three inches and two pints of water. Metric counts syllables, rhythmic counts "times" (χρόνοι), and not syllables. Both units of measure and both systems may be useful for different purposes, but cannot be used together. While the above measuring may be rhythmically delivered, it is true, by a trained musician, yet it seems to me not simple enough to be ascribed to ancient Greek comedy nor in agreement with the ancient accounts of the ῥθος of rhythms. And this I say, though not unacquainted with the rhythms of Hungarian and Oriental music. Frankly, I cannot conceive how Schröder's reading or chanting of the Aristophanic Cantica would sound. To help the beginner to practical delivery, I have marked the lengths of some troublesome vowels and syllables in the first six hundred lines.

On the subject once so much debated — the probable structure and contents of the Clouds as played in 423 B.C. — I have said all I care to say in the final note on Hypothesis β'. One may safely postpone the question, along with the origin of language and the squaring of the circle, till his wits are too grey to be interested in anything but things without end.

Scholars will find that the text follows closely the Ravennas and Venetus, inclining to prefer the latter where they differ. Those who have not access to the facsimile editions of these Mss. should be warned that their readings are not yet correctly reported; Blaydes and even van Leeuwen still err at times. Only one emendation of my own have I ventured to admit, and that a mere transposition of verse-ends at 332-333.

INTRODUCTION

LIFE OF ARISTOPHANES

1. OUR knowledge of the life of Aristophanes is derived from a few short and rather discrepant Greek notices (dignified by the name of Vitæ) of uncertain date and authority, together with some random statements in the scholia to his plays, a few references in Plato, and a few passages in certain of his own comedies, some of which, however, are taken by many scholars as relating, not to Aristophanes, but to the poet or actor in whose name those comedies were produced.

2. Hence it is that all statements concerning his life must be qualified with a perhaps, and our highest certitude is reached when we write it is probable. The purpose of his several plays, their number, the complexion of his politics and religion, even, his Athenian citizenship are, and for centuries have been, matters of contention.

Thus warned, and allowing ourselves moderate faith in ancient veracity and normal probability, we may perhaps believe of Aristophanes as follows.

3. Aristophanes, an Athenian of the deme Kydathenaion of the tribe Pandionis, was born to his father Philip about 446 B.C. From references in his plays to the simple joys of country-life, it is pleasant to imagine that his boyhood was passed outside the city walls; but there is no record of such residence, and the inference is not a necessary one. It has been gathered from a passage in Acharnians that for a time at least he lived, or held land by inheritance or allotment (κληρονομία), in the island of Aegina. But in the opinion of many Aristophanes' words apply to the poet

(or actor) Callistratus, in whose name the play was admitted to competition, rather than to himself.

4. His first comedy, the Banqueters (Δαιταλῆς), was brought out in the year 427 B.C. and won the second prize. Probably because of his youth and inexperience he did not himself superintend its production, as was then the custom of dramatic poets, but intrusted it to the above-mentioned Callistratus.

5. His second play, the Babylonians, was also presented "through Callistratus" in 426 at the festival of the City Dionysia, an occasion on which annually many ambassadors and visitors from the allied cities flocked to Athens on business or pleasure. In this comedy, with a young poet's hot hatred of injustice and disregard of propriety, he set forth so strongly in the presence of these strangers the iniquity of Athens' imperial treatment of her allies (as if her Babylonian slaves), that Cleon, the demagogue of the day, had "the poet" impeached before the Senate for ὕβρις toward people and Senate — but whether the real poet or Callistratus the nominal poet is still matter of dispute. The outcome is unknown. But as democratic Athens prided herself on freedom of speech (παρρησία), and granted special latitude at the festival seasons of Dionysus, it is probable that the defendant, whichever he was, either obtained acquittal or got off with a light fine and a friendly warning. At all events, in the next year Aristophanes again brings out a play, the Acharnians, and through this same Callistratus.

6. Tradition has it that about this time Aristophanes was prosecuted by Cleon on the charge of usurping citizens' rights, though in fact an alien. This is rejected by some scholars, admitted by others as probable, and firmly held by van Leeuwen, who maintains further that Aristophanes was indeed shown to be an alien, and that for this reason he never produced a play in his own name after the Knights in 424 — the occasion of the prosecution. The question is hardly capable of final settlement.

7. To the end of his life, as at first, it is matter of record in the hypotheses of several plays that he sometimes intrusted them to other poets (or actors) for production. His reasons for this are unknown ; they may have been various.

8. Forty-four plays in all were ascribed to him, though the authorship of four of these was questioned in antiquity. His activity as a composer of comedies extended over the long period of forty years. After the production of Plutus in 388 — the last one of those extant — he is said to have composed two more for his son Araros, wishing thus to introduce him as a poet to the Athenian people. His death may be set at about 385 B.C.

9. He had three sons: Philip (named in accord with Greek custom after the grandfather), Araros, and a third whose name is uncertain. Of his personal appearance nothing is known save that he was bald. Of his ancestors, rank, education, marriage, property, personal habits, debts, diary, and love-letters not a syllable has come down to us. The ancients cared less for the carbon-points of genius than for its light. The dross was allowed oblivion.

For his tomb Plato wrote this epitaph :

αἱ χάριτες τέμενός τι λαβεῖν ὅπερ οὐχὶ πεσέεται ζητοῦσαι ψυχὴν ἡῶρον Ἀριστοφάνους.

10. Eleven of his comedies still exist. These, together with the first two, are here named in the order of their production :

ARISTOPHANES THE POET

11. To say that Aristophanes as poet of comedy measured up to his city and his time is as superlative praise as can be uttered. For he lived in Athens and at her prime, when more human genius seems to have been "released" — as we say of the explosive power of dynamite — than at any other period in the world's history.

12. In this judgment of Aristophanes the poet all happily agree. From minute students of rhythm, diction, and poetic form we hear of his sensitiveness, variety, and mastery; from dramatic critics, of his invention and of the flexibility in his hands of the traditional moulds of comedy (parodos, agon, parabasis). Lovers of nature and poetic fancy can compare him only with Shelley and Shakespeare. His wit has been measured in all the semitones of its gamut from sheer buffoonery to lightest innuendo. His humour is found to be, not of one vein like that of Rabelais or of Mark Twain, but universal as Shakespeare's. Pathos he had rare occasion to display in comedy; but whenever touched, it is genuine.

13. His plays and characters alike are as clear-cut in their outlines, leave as distinct an impression on the mind, as Gibraltar or an eclipse. Once read, they cannot possibly all fall together or fade out into monochrome, as arguments and characters mostly do in Plautine comedy. Aristophanes retains too much of the flesh and blood of his Athenian originals for that. They are Cleon, Socrates, Euripides, that we see before us — a trifle lurid indeed in the curious coloured atmosphere of Old Comedy, and fantastic as the figures of a puppet-show, yet still quite real and breathing.

14. At the same time, despite their reality, we feel that Aristophanes is no realist. Behind those caricatures of the demagogue Cleon, the philosopher Socrates, the poet Euripides, we see peering out the universal Demagogue, the standardized Charlatan-Philosopher (our modern professional "Educator") and the ever recurring Poet of the fin de siècle. Aristophanes is, therefore, an idealist and his function high. We are led to prefer the good because of the disgust which his satire has inspired within us for the bad. Tragedy's office is high in presenting us Heroes; but Comedy's Humbugs offer useful supplementary warning to those who would lead a sober and wary life.

15. We may, then, by common consent set down Aristophanes as one of the great poets of the world; but what are we to think of him as a man? Before attempting an answer it will be necessary to recall briefly the world and the times in which he lived.

CONTEMPORARY ATHENS

16. "The one century of Athenian greatness from the expulsion of the Tyrants [the Pisistratids in 508 B.C.] to the defeat of Aegospotamos [405 B.C.] is worth millenniums of the life of Egypt or Assyria."* In that century Athens essayed the experiment, brief but incomparably brilliant, of imperial self-government. Aristophanes was born at the climax of her democracy's success, reached young manhood at its ticklish turning-point on the death of Pericles (429 B.C.), and survived by twenty years its huge and mournful proved failure, when Lysander levelled the walls of Athens to the ground and set up the rule of "the Thirty" (403 B.C.).

17. But the character of the tiny Democratic Experiment organized by Cleisthenes in Attica 508 B.C. had suffered much change before the birth of Aristophanes. To the men of that small district, less than Rhode Island or Cornwall, had fallen the chief glory of the victory over Persian perils. Under Athens' leadership the chief Greek cities of the eastern Mediterranean had leagued themselves to drive back and keep back that same Persian host. The superiority of her fleet was such that most cities of this Delian Federation preferred to pay to Athens a stipulated sum for performing this duty rather than furnish their own quota to a federal fleet. These contributions (φόροι) poured into Athens' coffers more than sufficed for the needs of the League. The surplus went to the adornment of the city, which the ambition of Pericles had determined should be in splendour of soul and body the capital city of all Greek peoples and the ideal of the world forevermore. Her own resources from the silver mines of Laurium and the gold mines of Mount Pangaeus were enormous. With her navy supreme she controlled commerce and forced the payment of laggard contributions from the allied cities, which in time fell to the status of Athenian subjects.

18. And now the sovereign people and their "Olympian" leader Pericles became drunk with power. They dreamed of world-wide empire. To the east lay the Euxine, Caria, Cyprus, Egypt; to the west, Sicily, Etruria, Sardinia, Carthage, and in the farthest distance, the Pillars of Hercules. Why not subdue it all — the great Midland Sea — and gather tribute for Athens, goddess of wisdom and war? Thus content gave place to craving, and power begot insolence. Those who had been known as Liberators now became Tyrants. — In the midst of this change from the democratic to the imperial spirit Aristophanes was born.

19. But this change of temper and behaviour in Athens wrought a change of feeling toward her in the League. Because of her oppression, arrogance, and terrible efficiency, most of her friends and allies became her jealous and sullen or her active enemies. In 431 B.C. came the crisis — the Peloponnesian war, which for twenty-seven years wasted the bodies and corrupted the souls of a whole generation of Greeks, fighting no longer for freedom and civilization against barbarians, but (under the lead of Athens and Sparta, the embodied principles of democracy and oligarchy) struggling for headship among themselves. A pitiful fall, indeed, from the highest plane of battle to the lowest, due to the unmeasured ambition of one man — the Napoleon of antiquity — to make for himself an everlasting name.

20. But the principles of democracy and oligarchy divided not merely all Greece into two hostile camps; they divided each city against itself. Especially within the walls of Athens were the Few "learning by suffering" the violence and weakness, the ignorance and arrogance of the Many. With "sycophants" ever hounding them, the state ever ready to confiscate their property and judicially exile or murder them, it is no wonder that the rich and oligarchic would have welcomed the overthrow of the Democracy and at various times secretly conspired with the enemy, nor on the other hand that the dread of this latent treason was never absent from the masses. Too often had city gates been opened from within to the foe without. — And this was the salubrious air, poisoned with suspicion and sedition, that the poet Aristophanes, lover of frank open-heartedness, must breathe during all his life.

21. And after the war began, there was another split inside loyal Democracy itself, not on the constitution, but on the war-policy. Athens, while easily mistress of the sea, was weak on land, hence for many years saw or expected to see, each spring, an invasion of her territory by the enemy. The farmers of Attica were thus forced to abandon fields and homes, and live like "squatters" within the city, occupying the commons, the sacred enclosures, stifling hovels, earthen wine-jars, crannies, or shelving suspended from the walls. Athens the city became a fortress. To add to the misery of this quarter-million of crowded humanity, the plague came, heaping the streets with corpses and setting loose all the demon passions of desperate men.

Naturally, therefore, the people found themselves split into two fierce chief factions—the one for war, the other for peace, the war-party urging that the existence of democracy itself no less than of its empire was at stake, the peace-party spelling nothing but ruin in the continuance of the struggle, and willing to share with Sparta the headship of the Greek world, as Cimon had advised so long ago. — From the midst of this grim huddle of plague-stricken vehement debaters the poet Aristophanes, lover of the country, must look abroad over desolate fields and felled olive-groves, and make merry comedies.

22. Such were the greater fissures showing themselves most visibly in the solidarity of Hellas at large and Athens in particular regarding constitutions and policies. But there were others that threatened the integrity of the Athenian state and its ideals even more seriously. For these others split up and broke down the very character of the citizens themselves.

23. The ancient city-state (πόλις) of Greece resembles a glacier. Originating in some high and isolated glen, compact and homogeneous, its progress for long years imperceptibly slow, the greatest dimension and strength of a glacier are seen just as it emerges in some suddenly broadening valley. But here opportunity without and strain within shatter it with rift and crevice laterally and perpendicularly, till it lies in ruins on the plain, though alas! in these latter stages only are its grandeur and iridescent beauty at their acme.—And so in Athens the rifts of change opening in the seventh and sixth centuries had grown wider after the Persian wars, and now, in the time of Aristophanes, were loud-cracking chasms. The time for the rainbow colours of its dissolution was at hand.

What these disintegrating changes were must be considered at least in part, if we are to understand the Athens of Aristophanes.

24. First, the solidarity of the old Attic stock was gone. Literally, the blood of the folk itself was gradually changing. While thousands of citizens were slain in foreign wars, thousands of foreigners, on the other hand, were coming to reside in Athens and the Piraeus, attracted thither by opportunities of business and pleasure alike, as well as by the exceptional ease of obtaining, if not citizenship, at least all other privileges.

There had been, further, a large mixture of foreign blood by concubinage with foreign women and slaves. Add to this a large slave population of exceptional intelligence and treated with exceptional leniency and privilege. This high proportion of foreign population to native would have inevitably altered the tone and temper of society, even had the blood remained pure and citizenship been strictly guarded, which was not the case.

25. Also the spirit of the people was transformed by their acquisition of empire, as has been already noted. Restlessness marked all their activities, and during the Peloponnesian war cruelty replaced their habitual mildness.

26. Changed also for the worse was the very ideal and goal of their democracy. Pericles, its tyrant, had found it composed of self-respecting, self-ruling freemen; he left it a body of self-seeking pensioners. For in his ambition to be the chief man of the state, he forgot his noble birth and its obligations; he forgot the higher possibilities of his natural eloquence and the lofty philosophy he learned from Anaxagoras — or rather he made use of these advantages to obtain his end. Falling in with the natural trend of every democracy, “he gave loose rein to the people and shaped his policy to their pleasure” (Plutarch). With Ephialtes he forced the ancient court of the Areopagus to yield its chief functions to jury-courts. With the pleasing doctrine that a patriot’s services to his country should be remunerated, he instituted the payment of jurymen. With eloquence equally effective he held that the people’s money must be returned to them — hence free theatre-tickets, festivals, and feasts, hence public baths, public physicians, public buildings — though it happened that “the people’s money” was in good part the tribute paid in by the subject cities for a definite and quite different purpose.

27. It is true that on winning undisputed headship after the ostracism of Thucydides the son of Milesias, Pericles himself suffered a change, and would have restrained the populace from excesses had he been able. But it was too late. The old idea of democracy and of the very function of government in general was lost. After Pericles’ death it was a question whether the leaders led the mob or the mob its leaders.

28. From intercourse with foreign lands innovation was creeping also into the language of the Athenians, as into their mode of life and dress. Their fashion in these things became, we are told, a composite, gathered impartially from Greeks and barbarians alike. Dialect was mixed with dialect, and much “broken” Athenian must have been heard from the lips, not alone of foreign metics and slaves, but of citizens returned from wars and residence abroad.

29. In dress, the long linen chiton of Ionia, worn not long since by dignified Athenian gentlemen, had given place at last to the shorter, business-like chiton of the Dorians; and democracy demanded that all should dress alike — metic, master, and slave. So, too, the hair was cut short, and proud topknots fastened with golden "grasshoppers" must come down.

30. At the same time, however, the importation of foreign novelties and luxuries had set in — cloaks and slippers from Persia, salves, fruits, peacocks, ivory, and rascally slaves. And boys went to school "bundled up in cloaks," no longer facing the weather γυμνοί, as in the days of Marathon. Simplicity was yielding to display, hardy endurance to effeminacy. Life's ideal in Athens was perpetual holiday — until the war came.

31. Perhaps it was also from evil communications that the manners of Athens became corrupted; at least, the older standards were passing away. Orators like Cleon could forget dignity of bearing and tuck up himation to gesticulate and bawl, yet with no loss of prestige in the eyes of Democracy. Outlanders might not know how to don the cloak, yet Democracy "did not care." Children could snatch at table, "talk back" to their parents, call their father "Methuselah," and forget to yield their seats to their elders; yet this was all part of the imperial programme.

32. In Music too a notable change is going on. It can now boast its own hall, the Odeum (Ὀδεῖον), built by Pericles. It breaks away from its bondage to the words of the ode, and develops a florid type both instrumental and vocal, which is beyond the unpractised ἐλεύθερος and ιδιώτης, and requires the professional musician or even the virtuoso. Phrynys has "introduced a certain special twist" (ἴδιον στρόβιλον ἐμβαλὼν τινα), and within a quarter-century his pupil Timotheus — after the invention of sinuous vocal runs that recall the minute activities of busy ants — will boast of leaving Phrynys behind, playing a lyre of eleven strings as against the ten of his predecessors.

33. Thus the whole concern of the art is to tickle the ear and nothing more. It has lost its hold upon social life. To sing merry songs at a banquet is thought antiquated. If young men sing at all, it is not the old songs of Stesichorus, Alcman, or Simonides, but some scandalous thing from Euripides, or a loose serenade or love song by the popular Gnesippus. Music and morals are divorced, to the infinite loss of each.

34. As for Poetry — the Epic has long since ceased to be a living form of expression; the various types of Lyric (hymn, threnody, paean, dithyramb) being all fallen together have lost character and gone up in floating windy bombast; the Drama, in the hands of Euripides, "bard of legal lingo," has sunk to the prose level of daily life in thought and action as well as diction.

35. The light spongy vacuity of the lyrics of Aristophanes' time, it was formerly thought, had been much exaggerated in his parodies of them. But in the year 1902 there was discovered in Egypt a fragment of a nome, the Persae, composed by Timotheus, the famous contemporary of Aristophanes, which makes it probable that the comedian's "parodies" are actual quotations, and his "exaggeration" rather an understatement of the incredible insipidity to which lyric poetry had come.

36. Tragedy, having the heroic taken out of it, and being "humanized" with modern men who argue in Athenian and dress in rags, must be also made sprightly in movement. Hence the dialogue of Euripides' plays is no longer timed to the slow iambic trimeter of Aeschylus, with normally twelve syllables to the verse, but is hastened to fifteen or eighteen syllables.

37. Nor does the interest centre longer in the ancient oft-told myths now disbelieved, but in the complications of the plot, in the psychology of Love, in overcharged scenes of pathos. In fact, tragedy, while retaining its outward form, has within been utterly transformed, if not de-formed. Whereas it had once excluded what of life was not fit for its ideal aim, "the bettering of men," it now admits the ugly, base, and little along with the rest, as all alike belonging to the world of things as they are. It has thus ceased to be religious and has become secular. For the rising generation Aeschylus, the "noisy incoherent moulder of big phrases," has been dethroned, and Euripides is king.

38. In brief, poetry had had its day. Song had descended from her chariot to walk as prose (πεζή). (Poetry is an expression of feeling poured out at such temperature as to take rhythmic form and exercise the selective power of a crystal or other organism upon the material presented to it for self-creation. But reason, science, intellectualism, knows no such spontaneous process. It is analytic, not creative. It lowers temperature below poetic heat. If art exists at all after reason ascends the throne, it is "Art for art's sake," not for the Heart's sake.)

39. Also the old Education cracks asunder. Not long ago its whole content had been so simple: for the head—reading, writing, and counting; for the heart—music and poetry; for the body—gymnastic and athletic games; and all these for all alike. But now the contestants in athletic games are professional and brutalized gymnasts trained by specialized exercises and on special diet. The gymnasia are left empty or have become lounging places for gossip. The sport of rich young fashionables, such as Alcibiades, is horse-racing. As for head and heart, the older training is now merely preparatory to the higher "college education" imparted by the Sophists, professors of learning, who for high fees teach rhetoric, grammar, history, civics, a modicum of science, and general excellence (ἀρετή).

40. This training will fit young men for public life, forensic leadership, imperial statesmanship. They are taught to question, reason, debate, subtilize (λεπτολογεῖν), and make much of nuance; they are taught invention of argument (εὑρεσις); they must have wit to ferret out motives, to argue from probabilities, to strike off maxims in alliteration, antithesis, parechesis, to compose moving appeals for pity, perorations, proems, and the rest. They hear how it is all done in the law courts, the assembly, the market-place, even in the tragedies of Euripides, who is master of the art and idol of the youthful generation. In a word, there is a brilliant first nascence of the intellect, which, repeated in later times in Italy, we call the Re-naissance.

41. Imperial Intellectualism divorced from republican morality and simplicity — that is the mark of the age. The exercise of the reason becomes the highest function of man. The watchwords are λογισμός, σκέψις, σύνεσις (calculation, speculation, comprehension). The new ambition is to be esteemed clever (δεινός, σοφός, δεξιός), and witty or elegant (κομψός). The new activity is to challenge all statements with a pert τί λέγεις (what's that?). Pericles will spend a whole day debating with Protagoras the cause of the death of Epitimus in an athletic contest — was it the javelin accidentally hurled, or the thrower of the javelin, or the stewards of the game whose carelessness had made the accident possible? The young Alcibiades will argue with his guardian Pericles on the definition of Law, and will prove to him that law is but the compulsion of the stronger put upon the weaker, whether named democracy or tyranny.

42. But all this was for the fewer rich, not for the many poor and stupid. Hence came now the great cleft between educated and ignorant, which, whenever appearing, isolates near neighbours and somewhat de-humanizes society — suspicion (mingled with envy and a slight fear) on the one hand, contempt on the other.

43. Morals, also, must pass through this fiery furnace of inquisitorial dialectic to come out de-natured, i.e. de-moralized, or, at least, changed. Morals (τὰ ἠθικά) are the traditional habits or mores of a people which are practised unthinkingly by all, taken unchallenged, as a matter of course, like air and food. Only when confronted with differing habits of other people or with altered conditions at home are they suddenly called upon to give the countersign.

44. Athens in Aristophanes' day was demanding the countersign, the raison d'être, of every mortal and immortal person and thing alike. Nothing was taken for granted. Agreement or disagreement with tradition was no longer the standard of right and wrong. The individual must judge for himself, must follow his own reason. As in sense-perception, so in morals: "Man the measure of all things"; "as things appear to me, so they are for me — as to you, so for you." Euripides' metrical version of this, applied to morals, was received in the theatre, we hear, with acclamation:

τί δ' αἰσχρόν, ἣν μὴ τοῖσι χρωμένοις δοκῇ;

"What's filth, unless who does it thinks it so?"

(BROWNING.)

45. No, men must live, it was argued, according to Nature (φύσει), not Convention (θείσει). Self-interest was to be the basis of the new morality. The aged Cephalus down at Piraeus might have lived by the simple rule, "Pay your debts to gods and men and tell no lies" — a rule perhaps sufficient for his day. But life was more complex now. The existence of the gods was not so sure; and then there were lies and lies — of different colours. As for Law — who made it? But no matter, whether by the strong Few for the weak Many or the other way, its makers were all now dead, and it was made for an ancient world, unlike the present. Times had changed; the Athenians must change with them.

46. And so they did, here too following the lead of their "Olympian." For example, in the matter of divorce: Pericles, having taken to wife a divorced woman and "not finding his married life pleasant," as Plutarch tells us, put her away and took up with an emancipated woman of the time, Aspasia, famous courtesan of Miletus. Also in the wealthy Callias-Hipponicus family the morality of the Enlightenment, based on Reason and Nature, was found a convenient thing for either divorce or bigamy, as it "seemed good" to the individual. Nor was Emancipated Woman long in appearing on the stage. Euripides presented her about 435 B.C. in the person of Phaedra; but the public was not educated to quite such public shamelessness in the sacred precinct of Dionysus, and the piece had to be revised.

47. In embezzlement on the national scale Pericles was again leader. When Thucydides, son of Milesias, protested against the use of league-funds for Athens' private purposes, it was Pericles who argued that if Athens furnished the stipulated protection to the cities of the League with such economy that there was an annual surplus, then that surplus was hers to spend as she would, whether in the erection of temples and propylaea, or in providing shows and pensions and salaried offices for her citizens. Her citizens agreed with the cogent Pericles; Thucydides was ostracized for criticizing imperial policy; and embezzlement, if not committed as often as charged, became at least a plausible charge from that time on.

48. Bribery is own sister to embezzlement. And once more Pericles is credited with a statesmanlike specimen of it in secretly "persuading" the invading Spartan king, Pleistoanax, to go elsewhere, rendering account later to the city with the famous phrase, "spent for necessary purposes." Certain it is that no charge is commoner against public officers than bribe-receiving (δωρο-δ κία). In 409 B.C. the bribery of a jury was achieved, when Anytus, later the chief accuser of Socrates, procured thereby an acquittal for himself — the first instance of the kind, if we may trust Aristotle.

49. In one other highest matter — her Religion — Athens had to suffer change. Her far-wandering sons had learned strange cults abroad, and metic foreigners and slaves had brought with them their several outlandish divinities. "After the Persian invasion came an invasion of foreign gods" — Hyes, Sabazius, Kotytto, Bendis, Adonis, et al. from Thrace, Phrygia, Cyprus, and elsewhere. At first these unsavoury newcomers were worshipped in private circles (θίασσοι). Their initiatory and other rites, accompanied by drum, flute, tambourine, and other apparatus, were, so far as is known, orgiastic and lascivious, and always remained alien to the Greek spirit of moderation and order. Yet despite their character and the ridicule of the comic poets, they obtained some degree of public recognition and a considerable popularity among Athenians of the lower class and rich débauchés, such as Alcibiades.

50. But two dangers threatened the Olympian gods more grave than barbarian inroad: decay was laying hold upon them from within, and philosophy was dissolving the very foundations upon which they stood.

51. Decay indeed is incidental to all divine ideals formed by men. A "twilight of the gods" is ever taking place, that other suns may rise. As Cronus by the old myth had yielded to Zeus, so in Athens at least Zeus had long since yielded precedence to Athena and to the universally popular god of Thrace, Dionysus. The festival days of Zeus in the Attic calendar had become in Aristophanes' time few and unimportant. His Diasia, Pandia, and Diipolia were antiquated and ridiculous as compared with the brilliant and almost secular Panathenaea and especially the dramatic festivals of Dionysus, whose blessings indeed could be celebrated at any season in private circles.

52. Yet already the religion of Dionysus, being emotional and one of ecstasy, of abnormal frenzy, had gone the way that all such religions take—toward mysticism among choicer spirits, toward licentious superstition among the grosser. The particular form of the Dionysiac cult that ran to these excesses professed to be a revelation and claimed as its founder the mythical priestly musician of Thrace, Orpheus, who had descended to Hades to bring back his wife. (Who could better reveal the mystery of "the silent land"?) Orphism made its appeal as an evangel to the individual, not to the tribe or city; each must save himself. (What could be more timely in the days of democracy?) It attempted a higher re-interpretation of the rude rites freshly imparted or handed down (with Greek modification) from Thracian barbarity, i.e. they were to be understood symbolically—a well-meaning procedure, but full of insidious peril for old ritual. For example, it seems to have groped after an ideal of moral purity, symbolized by the ceremonial purification of an immersion in mud with subsequent off-scraping. In its ὀμοφαγία (the eating of the raw flesh of the victim) it saw a service commemorative of the fate that befell their god Zagreus-Dionysus at the hands of the Titans and a symbolic means of becoming one with divinity. In its physical abstention from flesh food (originally some taboo of savagery) and from other things, as eggs, beans, and woollen shrouds, it probably imagined a spiritual abstinence, an ascetic means for gradual separation of the soul from this prison or tomb of the body.

53. But while symbolism and mysticism for choicer and understanding spirits is a religious aid, it but thickens the darkness for beclouded souls. A misunderstood metaphor will reduce any matter to chaos. Nor, for beclouded souls, was symbolism the only or the most harmful part of Orphism. It aspired in un-Greek fashion to dogmatize and furnish a body of doctrine, a creed. Its cosmogony began with the creation of the world from Night, whence an Egg, whence Eros, whence in due time all other gods and things. Its eschatology pictured a hereafter, wherein all who in this life had been initiated by mud bath and other hocus-pocus into its mysteries should enjoy an everlasting banquet, while those who had refused such prophylactic means of grace were to lie in the darkness of Hades in everlasting mire. But redemption therefrom could be secured for the dead, if their living relatives underwent vicarious purifications. A further pleasant doctrine was that by certain magic formulas (κατάδεσμοι) one could enjoy vengeance on his enemies without risk to himself.

54. All these doctrines, initiations, blessed hereafters, redemptions, formulas, and also fortune-telling, could be had for small fees from any of the mendicant priests, who travelled about with their Orphic books from hovel to hall, terrorizing or wheedling the credulous with threats or hopes concerning the unknown. Thus for the ignorant had the religion of the Olympians suffered inner decay and was becoming darkened with quaking chthonian superstition.

55. And now as to the foe without. In Ionia, a century and a half before, there had arisen that universal solvent of religious feeling (as also ultimately of religious rite), the free interrogatory spirit of knowing, i.e. Philosophy. Among the earlier and wiser few, even down to the times of Herodotus and Sophocles, that spirit could remain, and did remain, with perhaps few exceptions, reverent toward traditional belief. For the theories of the first philosophers on the material of the universe, as water or air, still left room for the operation of the gods. The problem of existence, it is true, confronted them as grimly and as sphinx-like as it did the younger generation. But their rationalism was sober; they did not care for consistency's sake to push it to irrational lengths. They had faith that all was well beyond the horizon even though unseen. Hence Sophocles and Herodotus, reverent in their reasonings, met the sorrows of life and its final day, not with the proud scorn of later Stoicism nor with the shrill and rebellious outcry of Euripides against Fate, but with the quiet bearing and bravery of Leonidas and his gentlemen-heroes at Thermopylae, with the unshaken faith of their childhood in divine providence.

56. But for men born after the Persian wars, when both democracy and philosophy were widening and meeting, this reverent attitude toward the gods was becoming more difficult. The theory of a democratic Nature (natura, nascor = φύσις, φύω) by which all things merely happened or "grew" of themselves, like Topsy, was laying claim to ever wider fields of phenomena hitherto directly controlled by the regal gods. — For example, lightning, once the dread instrument of Zeus for punishing impious boasters such as Capaneus and Ajax Oïleus, was now more rationally held to be due to a merely "natural cause" (whatever that phrase may mean), viz. the bursting of a cloud by the enclosed hot air. Again, physicians of Cos were now offering treatment of disease based on their observation of facts, yet only timidly and as ancillary to that of the god Asclepios, who was not so easily to be thrust aside. And Hippocrates, the Father of Medicine, born about 460 B.C., thought that by study of the rising and setting of the stars a physician might know beforehand whether any season would be healthy or sickly, and hence strongly recommends the new science of μετεωρολογία. Yet what Athenian did not see that this was invading the high domain of Zeus, was searching out his mind and dissolving him to nothing? Indeed so far as religion was concerned, he was reduced to nothing, not by implication but directly, when Diogenes of Apollonia proclaimed "the father of gods and men" to be but air or aether.—And these are but a few of the many scientific hypotheses on Zeus, the world, and its details, put forward during this springtime of the human intellect.

57. Nor were such ideas longer esoteric. Democracy recognizes no privilege. Not only had Pericles found the philosophy of Anaxagoras a valuable political asset, thereby being aided to obtain and retain for forty years his leadership of the democracy; but any one who wished could buy Anaxagoras' book in the market cheap—"for a drachma at the most"—and could read therein that Ἡλιος, to whom old-fashioned folk still said their prayers, was a fiery stone and not a god. And in the theatre all could hear in the tragedies of Euripides, the "scenic philosopher" and close friend of Socrates, an almost wearying repetition of the Diogenes-doctrine—the identity of aether and Zeus. And on payment of the 100-mina fee one might attend the lectures of the great public teacher Protagoras, who on the subject of religion would purse his lips to say: "As for the gods I cannot say whether they exist or not. The question is obscure, man's life is short." And Gorgias, the greatest rhetorician of the day, went to the extreme of agnostic dogmatism in denying existence to anything; "or granting existence, we cannot know it; or granting knowledge, we cannot convey it." Critias indeed, one of the infamous "Thirty," professed to explain how belief in the gods had arisen: they had been invented by some clever man to frighten bad people with, scarecrow-fashion. And so now in full chorus against the further sway of these bugbear-deities was heard the voice of Diagoras the atheist, the voice of Euripides from the masks of his players, the voice of the sophists from their "university" lecture-rooms, the voice of the philosophers shielded by the patronage of Pericles.

58. Thus we see that already the conflict between Religion, Superstition, and pseudo-Science was begun. Orphism would sublimate old rites and gods, Philosophy would eliminate them altogether.

59. What, then, was the Athenian of average intelligence to believe concerning these gods with their temples, altars, priests, festivals, soothsayers, and oracles? Was it all delusion and fraud, as Diagoras said? Could their divinities be so immoral as Xenophanes had bitterly sung? Was their ritual absurd enough even for parody, as Alcibiades was reputed to think? Did thunder, lightning, drought, and all sudden events come about by "natural causes" and not by fiat of Zeus, as the new philosophy taught? Should one therefore give it all up?—Or, on the other hand, should he join the Orphics in celebrating more ritual and not less, if he was to be saved from everlasting mire?—Or, perhaps, the noble and religious-minded Sophocles was nearer the truth in vaguely desecrating and humbly submitting to one Great Spirit rather than to the many gods of elder times.—Or, amid such doubts, would it be better after all to stick to their ancient Βουφόνια and Διάσια, even though one did not just know the meaning of the foolish rites therein performed? There was Herodotus, still a believer in soothsaying—though it must be admitted that he was now an old man and hardly abreast of the times. But then there was Nicias, so devout as to keep a soothsayer in his house—only Nicias was certainly a faint-heart, if not a downright coward. At all events, Pericles was modern enough, being patron and pupil of the New Learning; and had not he intrusted an important part in the founding of Thurii to Lampon the exegete of oracles? Still, Pericles was . . . a statesman. Whom could one trust?

60. Among all his ties with the past, whether his personal childhood-past or his ancestral, Religion is the tie that man breaks last. Free of speech as Athens was, hospitable as she was to foreign cults, rationalized as she had become in dress, diet, warfare, art, government, and morals, yet she could not see her gods melt into air without protest. Those ancient ideals of Hellas, though entering twilight, were still too bright on the gleaming ridge of Olympus to be allowed to fade into utter nothingness.

61. Hence it was that when Diopieithes the diviner proposed a law about 432 B.C. by which summary action could be taken against "those who denied the gods or taught theories concerning the heavenly bodies," the Athenian people passed it, and within the space of one generation, on the charge of impiety in one form or another, prosecuted and variously disposed of Phidias, Aspasia, Anaxagoras, Protagoras, Diagoras, and Socrates. And Alcibiades was recalled from the greatest expedition ever sent out by imperial Athens—and to its ruin, be it noted in passing—merely on the suspicion that he had been guilty of profaning the Eleusinian Mysteries.

62. And yet in time Alcibiades was forgiven; and in a lot-drawn jury it was only a small majority that condemned Socrates to death.—Evidently in religion, as in all other matters, Athens was divided and splintered into fragments. Individualism had arrived. Already it had given birth to its "lion," Alcibiades, the noble cultured Egoist, the powerful, brilliant, de-moralized traitor—and Athens knew not what to do with him. The battle of Lucifer, the Uebermensch, versus the State, had begun. Sauve qui peut.

ARISTOPHANES THE MAN

63. And now, to return to our earlier question, what of the man Aristophanes in this rushing torrent of change? Does he go with it, or withstand it? The chief of all questions concerning any man is just that—his attitude toward the outer world, his reaction upon it. Therein we hope to find his inner self.

64. But Aristophanes' attitude is peculiarly difficult to ascertain. He seems the frankest of mortals, yet in truth for us he is concealed behind many masks—that of Oblivion, of the Dionysiac festival, of Old Comedy, of the characters in his own comedies, that which he wore (as every one does) to screen the various selves within him from each other, and that finally of pre-Christian paganism. Let us briefly note these masks.

65. Oblivion has swept away three fourths of Aristophanes and all the forty-one other poets of Old Comedy, save a handful of quotations and the titles of 275 of their plays—a fraction only of the whole number produced. From lack of material, therefore, it is impossible to form a competent judgment of the poet by comparison with others of his guild.

66. During the Dionysiac festival, as in the Roman Saturnalia or on our own April Fool's day, he who took any word or deed seriously did so at his own risk. Drunkenness was the disorder of the day, even Plato allowing it in honour of the "god who gave wine." The comedians suspended for the moment the law of gravity, and all the world stood topsy-turvy. How then are we to get at the man Aristophanes for all the other days of the year, when all we have left of him are the frolic poet-words of carnival days? Appeal "from Philip drunk to Philip sober" is reasonable; but Philip sober in this case is not on record. Hence we can only hope that on these days of special licence, when any one could insult anybody and pay off old scores with impunity, some true words were spoken in jest, and that Philip was not so daft as he feigned.

67. Of the other comic poets fragments enough remain, scanty as they are, to show that they all ridiculed much the same things and people in much the same dramatic forms, costumes, metres, characters, and from quite the same angle of comic and distorting fancy. This means that the ample mask of Old Comedy had a set grimace, a professionalized squint, to which those jovial forty-two must have accommodated themselves, and behind which they were safely merged. How then we are to fix just Aristophanes' personal angle of observation through those wry eyes of the Comic Muse, is a question in mental triangulation not easy of solution.

68. He enjoys further the concealment of every dramatist who speaks by ventriloquism through all his puppets and leaves his audience to divine through which puppet it is that he speaks for himself. — Probably, too, as a satirist of superlative wit, he rejoiced in a greater number of distinct selves than any of the versatile Athenians then living, and would have been puzzled himself to introduce us to the true Aristophanes.

69. But in one regard — the obscenity of his plays — he with all the world of his time is so effectually removed from us by the barrier of lustful paganism, that it is doubtful if any modern who is not decadent can fully penetrate to the old feeling, and judge without prejudice.

70. If then this man is hidden behind a shield almost ἐπιβόειον, let us not hope to draw him forth at once, but advance cautiously, noting by the way what would seem to be the over-hasty conclusions of some who have preceded us.

71. The prime question is the poet's sincerity; are his words at any time the sincere expression of his own views?

72. The historian Grote, staunch defender of democracy, who entertained the mistaken notion that Aristophanes was hostile to it, saw in the poet a mere professional jester presenting himself "to provoke the laugh, mirthful or spiteful, of the festival crowd — assembled for the gratification of these emotions, and not with any expectation of serious or reasonable impressions." Others again inform us with a knowing look that Aristophanes "was a dramatist competing for a prize."

73. Certainly if we degrade the poet to such levels of motive as these, we may drop the search for his true self at once; for the study of a clown's true self is hardly worth while. But we cannot so degrade him without ignoring history. His facts and judgments are too abundantly confirmed, barring comic exaggeration, by Thucydides, Xenophon, pseudo-Xenophon, Lysias, Plato, Aristotle, and others. Unless, therefore, we are ready to throw all these out of court as partisans or jesters, we must admit that there is some gravity even in the gayest farces of our poet.

74. Another attack is made upon his political sincerity by Couat and Holm. He and his comic brethren, they say, were all in the pay of the oligarchs, and took their "word of command" to satirize democracy. — Of all baseless views of Old Comedy, this is perhaps the one most obviously so. Old Comedy did indeed assail the demagogues of democracy from Pericles to Cleophon, together with their policy of imperialism, war, and self-aggrandizement. It attacked also the faults to which democracy and democracy's institutions were prone, e.g. its procrastination, its fickleness, its litigiousness, the proneness of the ecclesia to follow the latest and loudest demagogue, to pass ill-considered decrees (ψηφίσματα), to elect to office mere youngsters, to elect as generals men of no military fitness, and the proneness of the courts to give ear to the "sycophants" and decide by passion. Once, also, Aristophanes exclaims at the decadence of polite manners due to democracy. But satire of the imperialistic ambition to govern others is not an assault upon democracy's ideal of governing itself. Advocacy of peace by relinquishing an unjustifiable position is not tantamount to the overthrow of the government. Nor is criticism of democracy's faults and democracy's demagogues disloyalty to its principles. A discriminating reader of Aristophanes will therefore agree with Whibley that "there is no trace of anti-democratic feeling in his works."—It should be further noted that the comic poets are impartial in their satire; if they flee at democracy incidentally, they flout the rich aristocrats and oligarchs as well, both individually and collectively. The idea, therefore, that these latter gentlemen salaried two score merry jesters for the purpose of ridiculing the democrats only to be ridiculed themselves, shows pleasant wit but is hardly a probability.

75. Admitting, then, with most scholars, that some of the views and arguments found in Aristophanes' comedies may have been sincerely held by the poet himself, let us next try to discover what these are; and first regarding Government.

POLITICS

76. As is well known, his plays are full of praise for the good old days of the poised democracy that had won victory at Marathon, and full of blame and ridicule for the headlong democracy that succeeded. Is this Aristophanes' own attitude, and shall we then regard him as an old-fashioned conservative democrat? We cannot unhesitatingly affirm it; for, since all poets of Old Comedy seem to have taken the same position, it is possible that the true

Aristophanes may be hidden behind the profession's mask. It would not do to offend a conservative democratic audience with either oligarchic or radical democratic doctrine.

77. But were the Athenians indeed conservatively democratic in the theatre, seeing that in the ecclesia they were radical? Croiset has made it fairly probable that they were so. — For the country-folk, always conservative, were sure to attend the festivals, even though neglecting their civic duties in the ecclesia. The townspeople and the rabble of Piræus might, in the absence of the farmers, carry radical measures by heavy majorities on the Pnyx; but in festival time only conservative doctrine could win applause. — While it is true, therefore, that Aristophanes, as a poet "competing for a prize," may have written to please a conservative audience, though himself a radical; yet it can hardly seem probable, when we reflect on the one hand that through his whole life his plays were always for peace and against war, always for mild treatment of the allies and against imperialism, always for reconciliation between Athenian factions as well as Greek states, and against acceptance of Persian gold or Persian alliance, and on the other hand that the country-folk were for many years of necessity present in the ecclesia (being shut up in Athens), that consequently the decrees of the ecclesia were not always those of a minority but the expressed will of an absolute majority, that further the policy of that majority was, on the whole, for war and not for peace, for imperialistic treatment of the allied cities and not for mild treatment, for Persian gold whenever it could be had and not for Panhellenism. His plays, therefore, must have often confronted a hostile audience — a deduction strongly confirmed when we observe with what caution, with what preparatory or accompanying jests, the poet delivers himself of some sentiment or argument apt to be displeasing to his hearers. — If, then, we find the poet taking the risk of losing both laugh and prize, we are justified in believing that he does so because he is expressing his personal conviction and holds that to be more important than the winning of applause.

78. But it is often urged that Aristophanes could not have been a democrat at heart, because his whole tone is aristocratic, because he never tires of jeering the low fellows, the base-born, the market-loafers, the ignorant, the ill-mannered. This fact, however,—and fact it is,—only shows that the poet's ideal of democracy was of those other Marathonian days, which did not confuse civil with social equality, when sailor-lads knew and obeyed their betters, when different social levels respected each other and themselves, when to prove himself a democrat a man needed not to forget that he was a gentleman. On the other hand, too, our poet is as ready to jeer your elegant popinjay as your low fellow; so that he exhibits no partisanship in this respect, excess both ways being equally droll.

79. But again it is urged that Aristophanes was no democrat, else would he have shown more bitterness than he does in the Frogs toward the oligarchic conspiracy of 411 B.C., and never would he have hinted as he does in the same play (405 B.C.) at the advisability of recalling Alcibiades the potential tyrant. As to his lack of bitterness against the oligarchs we should observe that from Aristophanes, the ceaseless pleader for reconciliation, an attack on the oligarchic party, and especially at that time, would have been as inept as one upon democracy itself. He has his fling at the mis-leaders of both parties alike — Phrynichus, Pisander, and Theramenes, no less than Cleon, Hyperbolus, and others—in proportion to their known activities; but nowhere does he betray party hostility or party adherency. His sole plea is for amnesty, harmony, and the election of the best men to leadership. The famous parabasis of the Frogs, vv. 686–737, because of which the play had to be repeated, rises as high above party passion and mere jesting as Lincoln's speech at Gettysburg. If Aristophanes was insincere and partisan, so was Lincoln.

80. And if in 405 B.C. he suggests the recall of Alcibiades, he is not thereby proved recreant to democracy. The crisis had at last come. Democracy, having just then insanely put to death its generals, was headless and helpless. The choice lay between an almost certain Spartan hegemony or a merely possible Athenian tyranny under Alcibiades, which latter could be shaken off later as other tyrannies had been. Aristophanes intimates his preference for the lesser evil. His hint was not taken; and shortly Athens enjoyed the rule, not of one tyrant, but of the "Thirty," under Spartan patronage. So far then from detecting disloyalty to democracy in this "jester's" advice, we should see rather a token not only of his fidelity but of his rare good sense.

81. If now we agree to call the poet a conservative democrat, shall we go further and see in him a futile reactionary, a "retrograde spirit," as Grote finds all poets of the Old Comedy to be? Rather, if we reflect that he stood steadfastly for Panhellenism—a federation of all Greek cities based on mutual amity—as against the imperial despotism of one city over all others, and that the only war he thought legitimate was that against Persia; if we recall also that this same doctrine was the theme of later appeals by Gorgias and Lysias at Olympia and by Isocrates in his Panegyricus and Philippus, and that later still it was the basis of the involuntary union of unfree Greece under Alexander, we shall be inclined to regard the poet not so much a retrograde political spirit as one a century in advance of his time. True, the notion of such union within against foes without he got from the temporary and partial alliance of Salaminian days; but the idea of rounding out and perpetuating that alliance under the form of one universal Athenian citizenship anticipates the fundamental principle of the Roman Empire and marks Aristophanes as a man whose vision was toward the future and not the past, and whose political horizon was so vast that your tanner and lamp-seller politicians seem but pygmies at his feet.

82. But this dream, his detractors say, was that of a "poète quelque peu chimérique," his political wisdom was but sentiment and prejudice, and even that he uttered too late. — Brief, indeed, was his political creed, but sufficient if applied: Peace, based on justice, at home; mild justice toward allies abroad. That was what he strongly insisted upon. Such, however, was not the programme of imperial Athens. Led by her Cleons, she had become sophistic, and was defending the ῥητῶν λόγος. The war she waged was not in self-defence, but in defence of her empire. — Nor was Aristophanes' wisdom offered too late. "It is never too late to mend." Despite Pericles' words that it would endanger their existence to surrender their "tyranny," Athenian democracy could have had peace any day by lowering the flag she had raised over others' rights. The wisdom, therefore, of this "jester" (and of Thucydides in the Diodotus speech) is forever the highest practical politics, and that of Cleon (and of Machiavelli) forever folly.

83. But those who would belittle the political Aristophanes have not yet exhausted their ammunition — he should be tested by results. "On the general march of politics, philosophy, or letters," says Grote, "these composers (of Old Comedy) had little influence." Yet it is Grote himself who speaks of the enduring effects of the Aristophanic Clouds (materially contributing to the condemnation of Socrates twenty-four years after its production) as "a striking proof that these comedians were no impotent libelers." Perhaps it would be wiser to admit that we have not sufficient evidence for determining the amount of influence they exercised — such question being difficult even for the contemporaries of a man or movement. — Again we learn from Jevons: "Comedy is politically sterile. Aristophanes had nearly twenty-seven years in which to persuade the people to make peace, but his efforts were not crowned with success." Neither, we may add, were those of Leonidas and his Spartans at Thermopylae, and only seldom those of a man attempting to swim the Niagara rapids. These would seem to be instances of numerical or physical, rather than of moral disparity between contending forces; and condemnation of the weaker because beaten will not seem just to the fair. Be it further noted in passing, that tragedy also pleaded for peace (in Euripides' Cresphontes, for example), yet was equally "sterile." Perhaps it is the way of democracy to pay little heed to its minority and its poets.

84. Last comes the modern humanitarian, who sees in Aristophanes an obstructionist, because he did not join Euripides in denouncing slavery and the subjection of women, and because he had only ridicule for the communistic theories of his day. — (1) In slavery, however, Plato, Aristotle, the whole pagan world in fact, and centuries of Christianity acquiesced without question. In their eyes slavery did not exist by convention (θέσει), but by nature (φύσει); without it society was impracticable and unthinkable. Hence Aristophanes cannot fairly be singled out for blame if he failed to support the quite novel doctrine of a handful of sophists that slavery was wrong.

85. (2) As for the question of women, the reputation of Euripides as their defender, rather than as woman-hater, is still too recent to justify a comparison of the two poets to the disadvantage of the comedian. According to Nestle, one of the latest and soberest students of Euripides, that poet's praise and blame of women about balance. He shows great sympathy with them, but so far from preaching their emancipation, he steadfastly holds that they should in all things be submissive to their husbands. On the other hand, it is evident in Aristophanes that much of his satire at woman's expense is of the stock sort, and cannot be held to embody his personal opinion. Nor will it do to cite against him any of the slanders on women found in the Thesmophoriazousae; for clearly the chief humour of that play lies in formally accusing Euripides of misogyny, and then over-trumping him in it. Besides, in the poet's whole ridiculous universe, it is no more than fair that woman should receive her share of derision.

86. (3) Finally, for the realization of the socialistic Utopias of his time, which were not more clearly formulated then than now, Aristophanes saw that an equal division of goods or of revenues from a common fund was not enough; there must be also an equal apportionment to men of wits and will, of passions and virtues — a matter unhappily lying on the knees of Providence and not of human government. In society as in geometry, if equals be added to unequals, the sums will be unequal; hence equal wealth distributed among unequal men brings Utopia no nearer than it has ever been. Communism in theory, he shows, means brotherhood, but in practice works out as egoism, and Utopia is οὐ-ρωία, nowhere. — Hence, for Aristophanes, poverty and wealth were as unalterable factors in society as human wisdom and folly, human virtue and vice. He saw the world, it is true, through the coloured glasses of comedy, but he saw no less clearly than Thucydides or Montaigne. His brief concrete reductio ad absurdum in Ecclesiazousae and Plutus of all vague wish-worlds of the communistic sort is worth tomes of laboured argument, and remains unanswered to this present day.

87. Thus much for our poet's opinions on state and society. Finding him in accord for the most part with those ancient historians and philosophers whose wisdom we most admire, and corroborated by a mass of political and social experience since accumulated in the world, it is difficult to see how we can fairly set him down as a mere court fool to King Demus, actuated solely by the desire to amuse and take the prize. Was he not patriot as well as poet?

88. What, we may next ask, was Aristophanes' attitude toward religion? Here the world will admit, if honest, that it stands baffled. The poet's visor is down. He poses as the loyal defender of the ancestral faith, the steady opponent of all religious innovation and foreign gods; yet his satire of priests, soothsayers, oracles, omens, and religious ceremonies has too hearty a tone, is too consistently biting, to be mere banter. And it would seem, moreover, impossible that an educated man of his period and city could hold honestly to the grossness and absurdity of old Greek polytheism.

89. Are we then to believe that his pose as its champion was mere comic pretence and grimace, that under comic privilege he flouted the state religion, and that, too, in the sacred precinct of Dionysus? We cannot think him so abandoned, or, if he were, that the city could have been so dull as not to catch the drift, or if it did, that it could have tolerated more than once an impiety going beyond that of the mutilation of the Hermae.

90. Shall we then believe rather that, while fully aware of the superstition, hypocrisy, and even fraud, bound up with the established basic religion of the state, while convinced personally that much of that basis was rotten and ridiculous, he nevertheless honestly believed that for the preservation of the state that basis must be maintained, it being impossible to remove foundations without danger to the whole structure? In other words, did he believe in the belief and its ritual, though not in the thing itself? This we may accept, perhaps, as his true attitude, not only because in accord with his general conservatism, but because it is one common in all ages among those in official position and among the educated. Whether such insincerity differs in quality from that of allowing children to believe in Santa Claus, each will decide for himself. Aristophanes, at all events, by remaining among the faithful, could satirize the wolves in sheep's clothing, as well as the more foolish superstitions of the masses, without danger of being charged with impiety.

91. But, it is said, the very gods themselves did not escape his ridicule; Hercules is made a bastard, Hermes washes tripe, and even Dionysus, in whose honour the festival was celebrated, receives a beating. Nor is Aristophanes alone in his mockery; all the comic poets mocked the gods, and all the people laughed. What is this but utmost levity? How could a city guilty of such impiety have ever prosecuted philosophers for impiety? How could such a city have had any faith at all?

92. The traditional explanation of this is undoubtedly the true one — that the comic licence of the festival-season was so ample as to permit ridicule for the moment even of divinity itself. Fully to realize how this can be requires reading in the history of religion both before and after Aristophanes, when we learn that from the remotest period to the present day there are found, mixed in the ritual and licensed in the sacred precinct, on special occasions, forms of coarse humour ranging from parody to abuse, scurrility, and even obscenity, levelled at the object or deity worshipped, as well as at fellow-worshipper and bystander.

93. This matter is a stone of stumbling for so many and yet so important for the unprejudiced understanding of Greek paganism that space must here be taken for a mediaeval parallel from Christianity as set forth in Thomas Wright's History of Caricature and Grotesque in Literature and Art (1865), p. 207.

"Our forefathers in those times were accustomed to form themselves into associations or societies of a mirthful character, parodies of those of a more serious description, especially ecclesiastical, and elected as their officers mock popes, cardinals, archbishops and bishops, kings, etc. They held periodical festivals, riotous and licentious carnivals, which were admitted into the churches, and even taken under the especial patronage of the clergy, under such titles as 'the feast of fools,' 'the feast of the ass,' 'the feast of the innocents,' and the like."

Describing "the feast of fools" as celebrated in the churches, he proceeds (p. 210):

"These dignitaries were assisted by an equally burlesque and licentious clergy, who uttered and performed a mixture of follies and impieties during the church service of the day, which they attended in disguises and masquerade dresses. . . . On entering the choir, they danced and sang licentious songs. The deacons and sub-deacons ate black puddings and sausages on the altar while the priest was celebrating; others played at cards or dice under his eyes; and others threw bits of old leather into the censer in order to raise a disagreeable smell. After the mass was ended, the people broke out into all sorts of riotous behaviour in the church, leaping, dancing, and exhibiting themselves in indecent postures, and some went so far as to strip themselves naked, and in this condition they were drawn through the streets with tubs full of ordure and filth, which they threw about at the mob. Every now and then they halted, when they exhibited immodest postures and actions, accompanied with songs and speeches of the same character. Many of the laity took part in the procession, dressed as monks or nuns. These disorders seem to have been carried to their greatest degree of extravagance during the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries."

94. This quotation — which could be fortified by many others — should not only relieve Aristophanes of the charge of impiety, glaring as it seems to those of a more spiritual religion; it suggests also that we mitigate the condemnation most of us pass involuntarily upon his pervasive obscenity. It is true that decency has only recently been born into the world anywhere (and threatens already an early death), while obscenity has long flourished unchallenged, and in the highest society. But bold as it was in all antiquity, it seems nowhere to have been quite so audacious as in Old Comedy. Its dominion there can hardly be overstated. It is comedy's very breath of life, its only atmosphere, by no means redolent of incense.

95. How is this to be accounted for? Probably as was the apparent impiety above; that is, a special indulgence, or rather, in this case, duty was imposed upon obscenity to manifold itself in sacred rites. Such had been the custom, time out of mind, in the worship of certain other divinities; such was the especial obligation in the case of Dionysus because taking over the worship of the Phallus. This latter worship seems well-nigh inexpugnable; οὐδὲν γὰρ ὁλον, as Aristophanes says. In ancient Greece its rude image was carried in procession about the fields to promote fertility. A song was sung to it, and young and old, slave and free, joined in the celebration, as we learn from its parody in Acharnians (241-79). Under one name or another (Φαλλῆς, Ἐρωῆς, Priapus), the god both in Greece and Italy watched over fields, boundaries, and ways, was carved over city gates, painted on vases or houses, acted as prophylactic against the evil eye, or had his emblem worn by comic actors. — Nor was it only for a period and on stated occasions that his attendant obscenity invaded the churches of Christian Europe. In permanent form it crept into the carvings of choir-stalls, pillar-capitals, crypts, and secret corners of many a cathedral, where it is to be found to this day, unless so extreme as to have been chiselled out in the interest of public morality. Thus here again we see that the standards of today, recent and hardly assured, cannot be applied fairly to ancient Athens. Aristophanes, measured by the standard even of yesterday, is not obscene.

96. So also must we judge of his vulgarity, buffoonery, and lack of humanity. For example, his frankness of reference to the humbler operations of our physical being — belching, rumbling of intestines, breaking of wind, and the like — offends the refined among us ; but to the unrefined even yet an unexpected sally from their “little bodies” (σωμάτια) is highly comic. And the Athens of Aristophanes was as untouched by Préciosité as the England of Shakespeare. — As for buffoonery, the proper end of an old comedy — a country-festival come to town — was an orgy, better if drunken, such as winds up the Acharnians, Wasps, Peace, Birds, Lysistrata, and Ecclesiazousae. Any other finale in the eyes of the country-folk was not to the point (οὐδὲν πρὸς τὸν Διόνυσον, as they said of tragedy). They enjoyed hugely the sight of “Hercules cheated of his dinner,” but to be themselves defrauded of their expected comic dessert was not to their liking. No wonder Nubes failed. Comedy without buffoonery was not true to the type ; rustic by origin, rustic it should remain. Broad αἰσχρολογία was the heart of it, not ὑπόνοια, witty innuendo.

97. Passing to the inhumanity of the poet — it is not so objectionable when he raises a laugh on some unfortunately ugly person in the audience, singling him out by name ; for to this day it is the one-eye, the squint-eye, the wry-mouth, the bald-head, and the hook-nose who occupy the comic stage by nature, suffer most from cartoonists, and hear fewest compliments in carnival season. In Athens all expected such badinage, and the comic poets provided it liberally. — Far more distressing to modern feeling is the inhumanity of jeering, not only at the poor, but at the dead. Pericles, Cleon, Hyperbolus, Euripides — almost no dead enemy escaped. Even the mother of Hyperbolus, mourning for her murdered son, is not spared a bitter taunt. Here again, however, Aristophanes is no better and no worse than the world of his time and centuries thereafter. All comic poets ridiculed the poor and the dead, and the ears of Athens were no more shocked at it than were her eyes at the bodies of executed criminals flung out unburied, or the public slaughter of sacrificial animals at the altar of their gods. Sensibility on these matters has much increased, but only since day before yesterday. "Tyburn Tree," the public gallows of London, was still in use in 1783, men are often burned at the stake in this country, and the memory of a dead political enemy is not always respected.

98. Here, digressing for a moment, a word of protest might be uttered against taking Aristophanes too seriously. It is less of a sin against the comic spirit to regard the poet as a fool and laugh all the time than to revere him as a moralist and never laugh at all. — Editors often report that in a personal revolt from the buffoonery and obscenity of Old Comedy he tried to reform it, that the people would have none of it, that therefore he returned to indecency, but only under protest. They cite what Aristophanes himself says about the vulgarity of his competitors and his own purity therefrom. — How the comedian would rage at hearing his saucy wit so misconstrued! How would he plunge his commentators into βόρβορος along with Morsimus (Ran. 145 ff.), or willingly go there himself to escape their elucidations! If Aristophanes really indulged in public self-praise, in public vilification of his rivals, in open reproof of his audience because of their preference for obscenity, except in the spirit of saucy fun, then Mark Twain was serious when he once introduced to an audience his fellow lecturer George Cable as "a man who in his one person united all the virtues with all the vices possible to human nature;" or when again he introduced General Hawley as a personal friend for whom he had the warmest regard, "but as a neighbour whose vegetable garden adjoins mine, I watch him." Also we must not question Artemus Ward's veracity in reporting of a rival editor that he was "so ugly he had to get up at one o'clock every night to rest his face."

THE NEW LEARNING

99. Let us next consider Aristophanes' relation to this New Learning with its rationalism and individualism. But again we are barred from the poet's personal secret; for it is not his private mask, but that of the entire Old Comedy, which we find making a very wry face at this newcomer and its books, modern pedagogy, contorted music, fustian poetry, triumphant rhetoric, its logic proving black is white, and its morality preaching a life "according to Nature." Is it then Aristophanes or the professional poet in him, that ridicules the two most conspicuous Athenian teachers of the New Thought, Socrates and Euripides, the one nearly to the day of his death, the other beyond it?

100. The answer can be only one of probability, not of certainty. In Socrates' case it is not unlikely that Aristophanes felt a strong personal antipathy for a man so ugly, dirty, poor, disputatious, unpoetic, and generally plebeian as that philosopher was; and as for Euripides, Couat is convinced that he is assailed with personal hatred by Aristophanes, because "almost no trace remains of the attacks of other comic poets upon him," which attacks, had they existed, "would without doubt have been gathered by the commentators." Add to this the following consideration: if the political Aristophanes was brave enough (as we saw he was, § 77) to attack Cleon at the height of his popularity and ridicule the follies of Democracy to its face, is it not probable that had he felt personal sympathy with the new intellectual movement, he would have defended it? Yet here too, as in politics and religion, though impartially raining satire on all absurd people of whatever affinity, it is clear that he lets its heaviest floods fall upon the Intellectuals. We may assume then, though not with certainty, that in his heart Aristophanes was opposed to them — or rather to their busybodiness (πολυπραγμοσύνη) among the masses.

101. If now he had to find for his comic stage embodiments of this intellectual busybodiness in its most ridiculous as well as dangerous aspects, what two men in the public eye could he have pitched on more to his purpose than Socrates and Euripides—the one already on the tragic stage, the other forever before the people in the market-place and gymnasia, and both busily (but absurdly, Aristophanes thinks) trying to teach people unprepared for it “to think, consider, and comprehend” (Ran. 957)? Was not this thinking-business indeed the very bacillus of their present malady, this Innovation-itch, which was ruining their art, education, manners, morals, and religion?

102. “By their fruits shall ye know them.” Aristophanes looked at the plays of Euripides and the pupils of Socrates. Could anything, in the first place, be more comic and also more dangerous to art and society alike than such tragedies? Those kings and heroes of ancient myth limping about on Euripidean stage in rags, debating with slaves and children “modern problems” in modern phrase and legal form—those lovesick mad-women warbling out in latest imported operatic solos their doubt or denial of the gods, their erotic excuses for adultery, incest, and murder—the piece winding up with a deus ex machina to cut the knot of an over-ingenious plot, some Gog and Magog effect worked from a flying-machine or the roof of the stage-house! Where was either the form or essence of ennobling tragedy in that kind of spectacle? Where the teaching that the people had the right to expect from their poets?

103. No, Euripides might be patriotic, tragic, sympathetic and “human,” might groan for the woes of the world and be feeling after a truer god; but when he failed to keep his figures heroic in dress, speech, and character, when he forgot proportion and dramatic propriety in his love for debate and self-expression and novelty, when he fell into mannerisms, and let the chorus fall out of the action, and resorted to the machine-god, Aristophanes deemed him an inferior artist; when he allowed his mind to run to and dwell on moral disease rather than health, Aristophanes pronounced him immoral; when he brought into contempt the gods of the land, while in the very ritual of worshipping them, Aristophanes thought him impious.

104. It will not do to retort upon the comedian that his own comedies were immoral and impious. As already seen (§ 92), convention separated sharply the serious part of the religious service, i.e. tragedy dealing with the heroic mythical past, from its parody in the comic part presenting an uproarious present. The δρᾶμα was not wholly secular yet; what was mere fun on one side of the line was flat impiety on the other. The convention might be foolish, but it was there. Life is a masked ball of conventions; it is a question whether he who insists on tearing off the masks is a wise man or a fool.

105. Nor will it do to pour out scorn on such hypocrisy, or justify open discussion of all subjects at all times (as Euripides discussed them) by appealing to the frankness of Nature. Nature is herself an αρχή-hypocrite; her most vital functions are performed in darkness and mystery.

106. It is therefore no idle question to ask if Aristophanes was not right in his criticism of Euripides — if he did not show the larger knowledge of society's realities and limitations — if, at that critical period when the plague of innovation was raging as fatally as that other physical pestilence, and when the spiritual war was a life-and-death matter more truly than the war with Sparta, if, I say, it was not Aristophanes rather than Euripides who proved himself true friend of society and ordered progress.

107. And when the caricaturist turned to look upon Socrates and his group, what did he find? Why, that he himself was put out of business by the reality. A perfect caricature was already at hand of those grand foreign professors with their doctors' robes, their diction brilliant as their gowns, their high pretension and higher tuition, embodied namely in this rotund, noisy, barefoot, home-bred "chatterer," who beat the sophists at their own glib game, but in a highly comic and topsy-turvy way. If they delivered set long speeches, he would rout them by short, quick questions. If they were professors of the universe, he was professor of—nothing. If they charged high fees, he charged not an obol. If they had a retinue of select admirers, he was followed by a set of nondescript adorers. The whole display was upside down. Aristophanes in his maddest moments could not improve on so daft a burlesque. So for the core of the Clouds he merely transported the reality from the market-place to the theatre, retinue and all.

108. For the retinue also was picturesque. Already, in 423 B.C., it included the μανικὸς Chaerephon, "cadaverous bat"; and Alcibiades, one of the young nobleman followers, had got a name far from enviable by his lawless and dissolute life, and his forensic lispings as advocate (συνήγορος). It was probably about this time that he set upon and severely beat Athens' richest citizen, the elderly Hipponicus, for no reason save "for fun" (ἐπὶ γέλωτι). If a disciple of the real Socrates was guilty of such outrage as this, Aristophanes did not much exaggerate when he made the pupil of his stage-Socrates beat his own father. And if such conduct was to be the outcome of the New Education, the poet protested.

109. Without doubt Socrates and Euripides meant well in trying to "bring down philosophy from heaven" and tragic heroes from their stilts. But Aristophanes believed, earth not being heaven, that heavenly philosophy would not apply to an earthly society of underwitted Chaerephons and overwitted Alcibiadeses — at least, not at once, not "till kings became philosophers or philosophers kings," as Plato thought later. Here again, then, do we find that this comedian, who could sink to buffoonery at one moment and rise to highest poetic flights the next, had a saner grip on the eternal facts of human nature than the "human" Euripides or the divinely-possessed Socrates.

110. But, it is said, Aristophanes is so grossly unfair to Socrates in presenting him as a taker of fees and a professor of physics, grammar, and artful rhetoric; for he was no sophist. — On this, however, we should bear in mind, first, that caricature necessarily distorts (like the comic concave mirror), that licence to caricature was at the very basis of Old Comedy, that everybody expected it, that Socrates was treated no more "unfairly" than Cleon, Euripides, and the rest; and secondly, it is by no means certain that Socrates felt the same disdain of science in his younger years or in middle life that he did when known to Plato and Xenophon in his old age. Indeed there is evidence from these two writers that the reverse is the truth — that he had at least studied geometry and astronomy. Hence the "caricature" of him in 423 B.C., when he was but forty-three years of age, may not be so far from the original as is commonly supposed. And certainly if we look not to the content of sophistic teaching but to its results, i.e. the unsettlement of traditional belief, then Socrates was indeed the chief of sophists, and Aristophanes did not go far wrong in selecting him as such.

FREEDOM OF THE COMIC SPIRIT

III. One other question before we sum up — that of our poet's independence of thought and genius. Was his wit free, or subservient, or merely brainless? This has been touched on above (§§ 77, 88, 100), but only by the way. If a general glance be now taken over the cross-currents of his satire, at the impartial slashes delivered to friend and foe alike when they displeased him, we shall see that he was a spirit as free, unbribable, and direct as the west wind. In politics, for example (to add to the instances given in § 74), whether Pisander was democrat or oligarch, he was in Aristophanes' eyes a coward and an embezzler. And no matter if Euripides was one with him in his scorn of demagogues and devotion to democratic Athens, his hatred of war and longing for peace, his esteem for the small farmer and the middle class, his contempt for rhetoricians and soothsayers, yet being an Innovator he is to be ridiculed forever. And what if Cleon denounced the dilatory Nicias as Aristophanes himself did, and thundered against the new rhetoric and the new philosophy, and even himself brought the accusation against Anaxagoras which led to his exile, yet this was not to save him from a "mincemeat" doom on the comic stage. And should we not expect the poet to be a close friend of Euathlus, who accused and secured the exile of that other dangerous man, Protagoras? and of Diopeithes, who proposed the law which made it possible to prosecute summarily atheists and teachers of astronomy (μετάφρασις)? Yet with what brief contempt does he refer to Euathlus, and how despicable in his eyes is the creature Diopeithes!

112. In fact, while praise is rarely on his lips (which is proper, of course, since encomium is not comic), yet his satire "sprinkles with roses" quite the whole universe. The careful Couat finds but three things that escape: the Eleusinian mysteries, the cult of the dead, and three gods. If therefore in the Knights he flays the corrupt demagogue, he does not forget the imbecility of Demus. In the Clouds the rustic incapable of education, honest farmer though he is, is no less absurd as a dupe than the mountebank philosopher who tricks him, while the gods of both move us to equal hilarity. In the Wasps Philocleon is genially ridiculed no more as the humble tool and dupe of the demagogues than after he has been reformed into an enlightened aristocrat. In Plutus the poet drives out Poverty and all are to be happy ever after; but the reign of Plutus in the end is as hilariously unhappy as Satan himself could wish. As for the "good old times," to which he is commonly said to be blindly devoted, does he not frankly enough let us see that after all Aeschylus may have been a bit bombastical, and Phrynichus the dancer a trifle of a high kicker, and the sailors of Marathonian days a vulgar lot, and men of the old-fashioned stripe, such as Strepsiades, Philocleon, Trygaeus, Euelpides, hopelessly bourgeois, and that perhaps the only man in the world without reproach and deserving a prize was—well, some bald-head, like himself! That is to say, despite his pose as a reactionary and his constant call to look, now on this good old picture and now on that modern bad one, was he not in his heart as free from delusion on this matter as on all others? If it is a question of free spirit and keen vision, is there any eagle in the Greek literary heaven quite so free and keen as Aristophanes?

CONCLUSIONS

113. And now at last, having surveyed the poet's times with their swift drift of change, and the poet himself opposed to that drift, whether in government, religion, art, or education, what shall be our summing up concerning him? — A great poet he certainly was, as admitted by all who are capable of judging; but was he, besides, a statesman or cartoonist — or a mixture of both? Was he a philosopher or frivolous — or between? Was he religious or a scoffer — or both at once? Could he have told us himself?

114. What should we say of him, were he to appear in our own day and write comedies bearing, for example, (1) in politics, on the empire of our democracy over the Philippines against the will of the governed, on the activity of our legislators in passing ψηφίσματα, on our Cleon leaders who build navies and "do things," on our intelligent jurymen and swarming lawyers κρονστικοὶ καὶ θορυβητικοί (Eq. 1379), our tax-dodgers, and our patriotic and long-lived pensioners; (2) in industry, on the billionaires vs. the wage-earners, the trusts vs. the public; (3) in religion, on the bankruptcy of theology, on Christian Science, Ingersoll-skeptics, Ethical Societies, divided Protestantism, imported Yogis, Occultism, and the like; (4) in poetry, on Swinburne, Whitman, Browning; and in drama, on Shaw and Ibsen with their "modern problems" as old as creation; (5) in music, on sentimental organs, on pianolas, on De Bussey and Richard Strauss expressing the inexpressible; (6) in manners, on our coatless academic world with its slang and its cigarettes; (7) in education on our "all-round (πανόπται)" teachers of pedagogy, our Educators (σοφισταί), simplified and phonetic spelling, popularization of Science, Nature Study, Domestic Economy, Sanitation, Eugenics, Ph.D.-theses "on the salivary glands of the cockroach," Seminar-φροντιστήρια, et cet. ad nauseam!

115. Should he express himself on these matters as he did on the excesses and eccentricities, the hypocrisies and follies, the supernal ambitions and infernal wickednesses of his own times, it is to be hoped that we might agree with the Athenians in holding him to be, not only the gay good poet in disheartening days, but also a genius of the keenest good sense, a man as "enlightened" as any of his age, yet whose vision was never befogged by sophistry or dazzled by unattainable Utopias, whose art of living was grounded on the two great utterances of Greek wisdom — γνώθι σαυρόν and μηδέν ἄγαν—whose highest utility and efficacy could never have been balked save in a decadent age fallen under the displeasure of the gods, and never be questioned save in one too wise in its own conceit, too serious in its nonsense.

REMARKS ON RHYTHM

116. Rhythm (ῥυθμός, ῥέω) is defined by Aristoxenus (a pupil of Aristotle of the 4th century B.C.) as a "definite arrangement of times," χρόνων τάξις ἀφωρισμένη. These "times" must stand in definite proportion to each other, as 1 : 2, 1 : 3, 1 : 4, 3 : 4, etc., if the "arrangement" or pattern or τάξις is to be "definite." These time-patterns are independent of absolute time, i.e. the unit assumed may be a $\frac{1}{2}$ second, $\frac{1}{4}$ second, 2 seconds, or what you will; but once assumed, all other "times" in the pattern must be proportioned to it.

117. The art of music has evolved a very perfect notation of these time-proportions, the essentials of which are as follows: the sign

	{	indicates a "time" twice the length of one marked indicates a "time" 4 times the length of one marked indicates a "time" $\frac{1}{2}$ the length of one marked indicates a "time" $\frac{1}{4}$ the length of one marked

The above signs , , , , and  are named respectively whole note, half note, quarter note, eighth note, and sixteenth note.

Any of these signs followed by a dot, as  or , indicates a "time" $\frac{1}{2}$ longer than that indicated by the same sign undotted. The two schemes of equivalents will then be as follows:

118. By the substitution of equivalents a pattern may be much varied, yet is none the less definite, none the less a rhythm. For example, the pattern ♩ ♩ ♩ may be varied by substitution of ♩ ♩ or ♩ or ♩ ♩ ♩ etc., the pattern ♩ ♩ by substitution of ♩ ♩ ♩ or ♩. or ♩ ♩ ♩ or ♩. ♩ ♩, etc.

119. These temporal patterns or τάξεις are as clear-cut and distinguishable as are spatial patterns seen, e.g., in wall-paper, landscape gardening, architecture, or geometry. Nor are they confined to music. They should be heard in poetry, as the primary element distinguishing it from prose; and they may be seen by the eye in marches, dances, anvil-beating, or indeed any form of rhythmical motion.

120. The means or material at the disposal of the rhythm-maker varies — legs and arms in bodily movement, syllables in poetry, tones in music. But legs, arms, and syllables are not so tractable as the tones of music. They have their own natural length, and must be somewhat forced to be fitted into the rhythmical scheme. Hence, just as in marching, short legs must step longer and long legs shorter than they naturally do, so in poetry short syllables must often be lengthened and longs shortened, if rhythm is an “arrangement of times” and not of syllables — a distinction often forgotten.

121. Nor is it only those syllables called in the grammars "common" that may be used as either long or short; all syllables in fact are somewhat flexible, as if made of India-rubber, and — what is of greatest importance — flexible in both directions, i.e. longs may be not only compressed but extended, and shorts not only extended but compressed.

122. First, longs were made longer from at least as early as the 7th century B.C. in what is called dactylic "pentameter"; e.g. in ἡ ξίφεος κώπην ἡ δόρυ μακρὸν ἐλών, the long syllable -πην must be twice the "time" of the other longs (♩ instead of ♩), unless rhythm is to be, not a "definite arrangement of times," but an indefinite de-re-angement. Rhythmized as ♩ ♩ ♩ | ♩ ♩ | ♩ |, the verse is seen to be hexameter; it is "pentameter" only for those who have no sense of rhythm and can only count syllables.

Like protraction is heard in English when the child sing-songs

"The king was in the p-a-a-r-lor"

or in the poem of Robert Browning

"Kentish Sir Byng stood for his king."

123. Secondly, shorts were compressed even from the time of Homer. A single short vowel could be shortened out of existence, leaving no trace on the page save the sign of elision or of aphaeresis, or perhaps a changed spelling, as in καὶ δέ (= κατὰ δέ), ἀμμί'ας (= ἀναμίξας), πότνια (= πότνια); or it could be reduced to the time of a mere grace-note (♪), the time of which is too brief to be calculable. For example, in Il. 1. 18 ὕμῖν μὲν θεοὶ δοῖεν Ὀλύμπια. etc., the rhythm is ♩ ♩ | ♩ ♩ | ♩ ♩ | ♩ ♩ | etc. where the short syllable θε- is almost timeless in its brevity.

The same is true in cases of synzeesis, as in πόλεως, χρυσέου, Πηλέα, Αἰγυπτίας.

[illegible]

English poetry is full of the same time-reduction of short syllables ; e.g. :

"From sense of injury's self and truth sustained."*

"I bring fresh showers for the thirsting flowers

From the seas and the streams."

125. This liveliness was rarely tolerated in the iambic trimeter of the stately early tragedy. There is but one instance of it in the first fifty verses of Aeschylus' Prometheus :

ἀδαναπτήτων δισμῶν ἐν ἀρρήκτοις πέδαις.

● ● | ● ● | ● ●

But comedy brims over with it; in the first fifty verses of Nubes there are 29 instances, e.g. v. 50:

ὅζων τρυγὸς τρασιᾶς ἐρίων περιουσίας.

See also vv. 2, 3 (2), 6, 11, 12, 13 (2), 14, etc.

* In this and various following examples the verse begins with the fraction of a measure, and the first syllable must be short, as indicated by the eighth (or sixteenth) note.

Even the trochaic measure, voluble as it is by nature, sometimes admitted this extra fling, though rarely, as in Ach. 318:

ἰπὲρ ἐπιξήνοῦ ῥ' ἐλίσσω τὴν κεφαλὴν ἔχων λέγειν.

(See W. Christ Metrik 278, Gleditsch Metrik 133 f.)

126. The last quotation exhibits still another freedom allowed to brisk song and dance and later to the dialogue-verse of the drama, which would have comported ill with the stately dactyls and spondees of the epic. These latter always began with a long syllable (  and  ); but trochees and iambs (  and  ) were free to substitute for their long syllable the equivalent two shorts ( for  , and  for  ). The licence was exercised naturally far more in comedy than in tragedy. Only two instances of it occur in the first fifty lines of Aeschylus' Prometheus, while in the first fifty of Nubes, 15 such "resolutions" are found, e.g. v. 14:

διὰ τοῦτον ἰ τὸν υἱόν. ὁ δὲ κόμην ἔχων

v. 26:

τοῦτ' ἔστι τοῦτ' ἰ τὸ κακὸν ὃ μ' ἀπολώλεκεν. †

* The sign  over or under a note indicates a slight "hold" or protraction of the time of the note. For delivery of the long syllables -ξη- and -σω here assigned to such protracted short notes, see § 128 infra.

† Sometimes the anapaest was permitted to scamper "on all fours" (  for  ) as in Nub. 916. Even dactyls (perhaps a dozen times) have been suspected of like levity. See W. Christ 242, 145; Gleditsch 127. — For explanation of  here, see § 128 infra.

And so in English :

"The crown

Rolled into light, and turning on its rims

Fled like a glittering rivulet to the tarn."

127. The Greek verses last given bring us to the next important consideration. In the art of music we are first drilled to keep strict time ; from bar to bar the intervals of time must be always equal. This first stage of strict time-keeping corresponds to the scansion-stage in the art of reading poetry. But later we learn that music, except it be for an ensemble dance or march, is not to be held inflexible, but elastic. These measures or time-patterns (χρόνων τάξεις) must yield a little to some sudden discord or modulation or emotion ; they must sway now longer now shorter, just as the tones do of which they are composed. The whole tonal mass becomes like the sea, each one of whose surging waves bears upon it smaller waves and ripples. To this higher stage of musical art, with its rhythms springing from within and not held rigidly by clock-tick from without, corresponds the truly artistic composition and reading of verse, when composer and reader alike, while ever feeling the strict time-pattern beneath the verse, hold both pattern and syllables pliant, and adjust the necessary compromises between them.

128. In Homer's dactylic hexameter we saw that the τάξις or pattern  was rigidly held, only the syllables showing flexibility. But in trochaic and iambic measures the time-pattern itself is tensile ; alternate trochees could take the form , alternate iambs the form . The symbol  indicates that the "time"  is a little retarded or protracted. At these -points the usual short syllable could be replaced by a so-called long. Yet the long was not dwelt on to its full length—which would have stopped the flow—nor hastened to the time of a short ; but being only a little shortened, and the time-pattern only a little extended, a compromise was effected which, so far from offending, was rather pleasing. The licence was so commonly used that the double iamb and double trochee with one retarded short () came to be felt as the normal μέτρον, which, twice, thrice, and four times repeated, made verses called di-meters, tri-meters, and tetra-meters. See for an example v. 5 of Nubes:

So in English verse the time-pattern may be varied from the perfect regularity of, e.g.:

by slowing one foot, as in

"The long brook falling thro' the cloven ravine"

"And in the stream the long-leav'd flowers weep"

or by slowing two feet, as in the second of the verses:

"And neigh and bark and grunt and roar and burn Like horse, hound, hog, bear, fire at every turn"

or by slowing three, as in

"Rocks, caves, lakes, fens, bogs, dens, and shades of death."

Here the rhythm is so (purposely) dragged and distorted as hardly to be recognized by the ear.

129. If the student intends seriously to practise the art of reading or declaiming the Greek drama rhythmically, he will perhaps do well to begin with iambic trimeters of normal type, containing twelve syllables and at times varying the 1st, 3d, or 5th short by substitution of a pseudo-long () as in Nub. vv. 5, 8, 9, 15, 17, 18, 31, 36, etc.

Let him then pass on to those verses in which two shorts are compressed into the time of one () as in vv. 2, 3 (2), 11, 13 (2), 16, 20 (2), 21 (2), 22, 24 (2), 25, 27, 34, 40, 44, 45, 50 (3). Next to be taken are those where a long is resolved into two shorts ( |  |  or  |  | ) as seen in vv. 32, 35 (2), 39, 46 (2); after which, those where the resolved two shorts are followed by a pseudo-long () as in vv. 4, 7, 10, 23, 33, 41. Finally let him venture on those presenting two or more of these variations at once, as vv. 6, 12, 14, 19, 23, 26, 29, 38, 49. — For the need of this strict rhythmical drill in order to approximate the ancient delivery, see by all means Haigh's *Attic Theatre*² 308 f.

130. The manner of delivering the lines of a Greek drama varied with the rhythms and metres used, and these again with the emotion (real or comically simulated) of the character represented as delivering them.

131. Declaimed Verse. — Unemotional dialogue was written in iambic trimeter, and almost certainly declaimed as in modern drama without musical accompaniment. In comedy this unemotional dialogue did not lift its diction above the level of daily speech, except when parodying the grandiloquence of tragedy or lyric poetry. In regard also to elision, crasis, hiatus, "quantity," etc., ordinary speech seems to have been closely followed in the free and fluent iambs of the comic poets. On these iambs sufficient has been already said.

132. Chanted Verse. — α' . A higher degree of excitement, with a corresponding departure from the common diction of iambic trimeter, was expressed in the longer iambic, trochaic, and anapaestic tetrameters and hypermeters (or "systems") — which latter are, in fact, not verses, but long passages of continuous rhythm written for convenience in lines of a dimeter each. All these verses were probably delivered in chanting or recitative style, to the accompaniment of the flute and in strict time, inasmuch as they were often further accompanied with marching or dancing. Examples of these metres and their variations here follow :

132 β' . Anapaestic Tetrameter is usually measured by dipodies, i.e.  = one μέτρον. Spondee and dactyl ( | ) may be substituted, sometimes a προκελευσματικός ( | ) ; but the dactyl is rare in the 4th foot, the spondee rare in the 7th. The verse ends with a series of two short syllables and two longs (∪ ∪ — —). Whether the rhythm of these is  |  ♪ * || or  |  || is disputed ; but in a long passage the former would seem to be preferable, as affording time for breath. A word usually ends at the end of the 4th anapaest (caesura). Some of the variants are :

318 , etc.

984 , etc.

Verses with two dactyl-substitutes, as in 318, are common (e.g. 328, 342, 357, 372), those with three occur (353). The only instance in Nubes of a dactyl in the 4th foot is in v. 326 ( | ). The only instance in Nubes of

132 γ'. Anapaestic Hypermeter or "System" is a tetrameter that has run "overmeasure" (ὑπὲρ μέτρον) by repeating again and again the rhythm of the 1st dimeter before finishing (usually) with an incomplete ("catalectic," λήγω) dimeter (   ).

 ). The whole makes a huge verse sometimes of over 30 μέτρα, as in Nubes 439-56. But in long continuous rhythms of this sort, which exceed the capacity of most lungs, breathing space was sometimes provided by substituting a monometer for dimeter—a provision almost necessary if the chorus marched while it sang. These great aggregates being regarded as one verse, it was only by licence that the poet allowed himself hiatus or syllaba anceps at the end of a dimeter, there being in fact no more break there than in the middle. — In comedy anapaestic hypermeters most commonly come as a climax to anapaestic tetrameters. Delivered in one breath, the propriety of the name πνίγος for such a monster verse can easily be tested by reading ἀπνευστί vv. 439-56 of Nubes. Anapaestic hypermeters in this play are from 439 to 456, 711 to 722, 889 to 948, 1009 to 1023.

132 δ'. Iambic Tetrameter. As in trimeter, the μέτρον is a dipody with optional retardation of the first short ( for ). This  (an apparent spondee — —) may be further varied to  (an apparent dactyl — ∪ ∪); and any iamb save the 7th may be replaced by a tribrach () or by  , which, expressed by ∪ ∪ —, looks like an anapaest, but of course is not. The last μέτρον of the series consists of short-long-long with the rhythmic value of    . Caesura, while commonly found after the 4th iamb, is rather free in its position. Of all rhythms this one is perhaps most clearly marked in character. It has a jog-trot swing so vulgar that tragic poets never used it. Its normal gait is seen in such verses as Nubes

Some variants are

Further practice of tribrachs may be had in vv. 1054, 1056, 1057, 1061; of apparent dactyls () in 1055 (2), 1060, 1068, 1071; of apparent anapaests () in 1050, 1062, 1066. Caesura at end of 4th foot is neglected in vv. 1044, 1051, 1056, 1057, 1060, and often.—Iambic tetrameters in this play are vv. 1034–84, 1113–14 (syncopated), 1351–85, 1397–1444.

132 ε'. Iambic Hypermeter is much like anapaestic hypermeter—a long verse formed by repeating many times the rhythm of the first half of an iambic tetrameter, then closing with the second half and its cadence . In comedy it usually stands as a coda to a series of tetrameters, giving the scene a bravura finish. In this play such hypermeters run from 1089 to 1104, 1386 to 1390, 1446 to 1451.

132 ζ'. Trochaic Tetrameter. Its μέτρον is a dipody, with optional retardation of the last short () as preparatory to the following dipody. The practical identity of this scheme with that of the iambic tetrameter is seen on comparison:

Yet the difference in the ῥῆθος or character is considerable.

The long syllable of any foot may be resolved into two shorts, as in vv. 589, 619, 625, 626; but this is rare in the 6th foot and extremely rare in the 7th, as in 575, 581. If, after two such short syllables, there follows a long-for-short at the end of a dipody, the sequence $\cup \cup -$ appears to be an anapaest (♪ ♪ ♩), but its rhythmical value is only $|\text{♪ ♪ ♩}|$. An apparent dactyl ($- \cup \cup$) for trochee (♪ ♩) is allowed for intractable proper names and sometimes for other words, as e.g. in Ach. 318, Eq. 319, Vesp. 496. Caesura at the middle of the verse is much neglected in comedy, as in vv. 580, 591, 607, 608, 609, 620.—In this play trochaic tetrameters are vv. 575–94, 607–26, 1115–30.

132 ζ. Eupolidean. Named from the comic poet Eupolis, this rhythm consists of four dipodies as follows:

But it is a μέτρον πολυ-σχημάτιστον, i.e. of many schemes. Not to mention all, the 1st long syllable in either half may be resolved, as in v. 539 (ἐρυθρόν); either or both short syllables in the 1st and 3d dipodies may be retarded, i.e. may be replaced by longs:

Further, the first foot in either half may become ♪ ♩ instead of ♪ ♪ , as in the 1st foot of v. 529, and 5th of 518, 527, 535. This

ARGUMENT OF THE CLOUDS

The play opens with a night scene, nearing dawn. Strepsiades lies tossing restlessly; near him his son Pheidippides and the slaves, snoring (1-11). Strepsiades is harassed with debts incurred by this horse-racing and aristocratic son (12-18). He begins to count over these debts (18-40). He bewails the day that ever he, the plain but well-to-do farmer, married the fine city lady of noble family, proud and extravagant (41-74). But now at last he has found a plan to free himself from his creditors (75-77). He awakens his gambling son and begs him to go to Socrates' school (78-110), where there are two Arguments, a Stronger and a Weaker, the latter always winning, right or wrong. 'This is the one for Strepsiades' purpose; with it he will repudiate his debts (111-118). The son refuses to go (119-25). But Strepsiades is not cast down; he will go himself (126-32). From the Disciple who admits him he hears wonderful proofs of Socrates' wisdom and is the more anxious to meet him (133-220).

Socrates is next described aloft, a transcendentalist, "treading the air" (221-36). He descends, hears the old man's request, then matriculates him by a mysterious initiation (237-62) and summons the Clouds, "our divinities" (263-313). After these have come, the neophyte receives instruction concerning them; also how the new god Revolution (Δίωσις) has supplanted Zeus (314-424). Strepsiades renounces the old and devotes himself, body and soul, to the new (425-56). The Clouds promise him grand Success (457-75), and a preliminary examination is held of the old man's capacity. This proves to be quite nil, but requirements are waived and he is taken within to begin his studies (478-509).

The Parabasis follows—a digression with interspersed hymns, wherein (1) the poet reproaches the Athenians saucily for having failed to award first prize to his first Clouds (510-62), then (2) the Clouds give some political advice (575-94), and deliver a message from the moon (607-26).

Re-enters now Socrates, exacerbated at his unpromising pupil; but he calls him forth to one more trial—with negative results (627-93). He then throws him on his own resources—he must be original and think for himself. Strepsiades does his best, but with truly horrifying issue (694-780). He is expelled (789). In extremity he again begs his son to get this higher education (814-64). With much reluctance and some impudence toward the Professor, young Pheidippides agrees to enter college (865-88).

Before Pheidippides now speak the two Arguments, the Just and the Unjust, the one offering him the old education, simple, honest, healthy, and virtuous, the other setting forth the alluring modern education, gay, frivolous, clever, unscrupulous, irreligious, and lecherous (889-1104). Pheidippides chooses the college novelties (1105-14).—During his brief career there, the Clouds, in a second digression, promise timely rain for the crops of the judges, if they award the prize to them, but floods, hail, and all-night storm, if they do not (1115-30).

Strepsiades next comes to fetch his son. At first glance Pheidippides is seen to be “disputatious and repudiatus” (1165-77), and he at once gives proof of it, wielding the Weaker Argument in consummate fashion (1178-1200). The overjoyed father takes him in to a banquet (1201-12). Enter in turn two creditors—easy prey even for Strepsiades’ own poor smattering at the Weaker Argument. Rid of them, he returns to the banquet (1214-1302).

A brief but ominous song from the Clouds, announcing imminent Doom (1303-20).

Doom comes. Strepsiades issues howling, with a broken head (1321). His son has beaten him, and now follows him out still further to ply the victorious Weaker Argument. In a set debate, presided over by the Clouds, Pheidippides proves that he is right not only to beat his father, but his mother too (1325-1443)!! This is too much for the old man (1444-51). He bitterly reproaches the Clouds for misleading him, though admitting he has done wrong himself (1452-64). He appeals to his son to help him wreak vengeance on that accursed College; but his son, now a young Alumnus, is all for his College (1464-75). Strepsiades enlists the aid of Xanthias his slave. Together they mount the roof of the φροντιστήριον and fire it, occupants and all. Exeunt the Clouds (1476-1511).

Αἱ πρῶται Νεφέλαι ἐν ᾧστει² ἐδιδάχθησαν³ ἐπὶ ἀρχοντος Ἰσάρχου,⁴ ὅτε Κρατίνος μὲν ἐνίκα⁵ Πυτίνην, Ἀμεψίας δὲ Κόννην. διόπερ Ἀριστοφάνης ἀπορριφθεὶς παρὰ λόγως ψῆθη δεῖν ἀναδιδάξαι τὰς Νεφέλας τὰς δευτέρας ἀπομέμφεσθαι⁶ τὸ θέατρον. ἀποτυχὼν⁷ δὲ πολὺ μᾶλλον

1. ὑποθέσεις: in the manuscripts of most Greek dramas are found brief prefatory notices of the date and circumstances of their first production, taken from a work now lost, the Διδασκαλία, by Aristotle (384-322 B.C.). To these are added arguments or summaries of the play (ὑποθέσεις), with other miscellaneous information, probably written in part by the famous grammarians of Alexandria, whose activities date between 300 and 146 B.C. Of the ten paragraphs prefixed to Nubes but two are here given.

2. ἐν ᾧστει: in town, i.e. in Athens at the chief festival of Dionysus, called Διονύσια τὰ ἐν ᾧστει (or τὰ ᾧστικά, or τὰ μεγάλα), to distinguish it from the country celebration (Διονύσια τὰ κατ' ἀγρούς) and the Lenaea (τὰ ἐπὶ Ληναίῳ).

3. ἐδιδάχθησαν: were taught, i.e. to the actors and chorus.

4. ἐπὶ ἀρχοντος Ἰσάρχου: the archonship of Isarchus fell in the latter half of 424 B.C., and the first half of 423. As the festival came in the spring, the play was produced in 423 B.C.

5. Κρατίνος ἐνίκα: Cratinus, now an old man, was one of the most famous of the earlier comedy writers; see n. on § 98, Introd. It was an honour to have one's play accepted by the archon as one of the three to be presented at the state's expense, and each of the three poets received a prize. But to obtain the third prize was to be beaten. As young Aristophanes had by this time been honoured for four successive years with first or second, it is now contrary to his reckoning (παρὰ λόγως) that he finds himself cast aside (ἀπορριφθεὶς).

6. ἀπομέμφεσθαι: to rebuke, expresses purpose after ἀνα-διδάξαι (to re-exhibit).

7. ἀποτυχὼν κτλ.: if Arist. failed far more the next time (ἐν τοῖς ἔπειτα), it must be that his play was not even accepted. For that reason he did not after all (οὐκέτι) present his revised version (διασκευήν).

καὶ ἐν τοῖς ἔπειτα οὐκέτι τὴν διασκευὴν εἰσέγαγεν. αἱ δὲ δευτέραι⁸ Νεφέλαι ἐπὶ Ἀμεινίου ἄρχοντος.

Τοῦτο⁹ ταῦτόν ἐστι τῷ προτέρῳ, διεσκευάσται δὲ ἐπὶ μέρος ὡς ἂν¹⁰ δὴ ἀναδιδάξαι μὲν αὐτὸ τοῦ ποιητοῦ προθυμηθέντος, οὐκέτι δὲ τοῦτο δι' ἣν ποτε αἰτίαν¹¹ ποιήσαντος.

Καθόλου¹² μὲν οὖν σχεδὸν παρὰ πᾶν μέρος γεγενημένη διόρθωσις. τὰ μὲν γὰρ περιήρηται, τὰ δὲ παραπέλεκται, καὶ ἐν τῇ τάξει καὶ ἐν τῇ τῶν προσώπων διαλλαγῇ μετεσχημάτισται, ἃ δὲ ὁλοσχεροῦς τῆς διασκευῆς τοιαῦτα ὄντα τετύχηκεν, αὐτίκα μάλα ἢ μὲν παράβασις¹³ τοῦ χοροῦ ἡμειπται, καὶ ὅπου ὁ δίκαιος λόγος πρὸς τὸν ἄδικον λαλεῖ,¹⁴ καὶ τελευταῖον ὅπου καίεται ἢ διατριβή¹⁵ Σωκράτους.

8. αἱ δὲ δευτέραι κτί.: this statement, directly in conflict with the preceding and with what follows, is best regarded as an addition due to some misunderstanding.

9. τοῦτο κτί.: i.e. this present drama, as found in the manuscripts. But it has been recast in part.

10. ὡς ἂν: with προθυμηθέντος.

11. δι' ἣν ποτε αἰτίαν: for some cause or other.

12. καθόλου κτί.: speaking broadly, in nearly every part has correction taken place. For some passages have been removed, others inserted, and changes made in the arrangement and in the distribution of the characters, while other passages (ἃ = τὰ) of the following sort have been subjected to a complete recasting: for example (αὐτίκα μάλα) etc.

13. παράβασις: see n. on vv. 510-626.

14. λαλεῖ: post-classical substitute for λέγει. The passage referred to runs from v. 889 to 1104.

15. διατριβή: school, a late usage. Other marks of the post-classical date of this passage are αὐτίκα μάλα = αὐτίκα, for example, and καὶ ὅπου answering μὲν in ἢ μὲν παράβασις.

This last paragraph has given rise to endless dispute among modern scholars, who have attempted to reconstruct the plot of the first Clouds, e.g. by making Socrates only a physical philosopher and not also a moral corrupter of the youth, and then disengaging from the text as it now stands those parts that ex hypothesi were inserted or substituted in the never-completed revision. For all this one must consult the editions of Teuffel-Kaehler (1887) and of Kock (1894) besides endless essays in the philological journals. But it is seen at once that the data for final settlement of such questions are wanting. In recent years philological acuteness has turned to more profitable subjects. See P. Mazon.

1. πρόσωπα: masks, lit. faces. It has long been taught that the state provided but three actors for a drama, and that the poet had so to compose his play that these three could present all the characters. So Haigh, *Attic Theatre*², 252 f.

But it has recently been made almost certain that such limitation in the number of actors was unknown in Athens in the fifth century B.C.; that the changes of costume rendered necessary thereby would have been inartistic and almost impossible from lack of time; and that the three-actor rule arose only later, when troupes of players travelled through Greece and other lands presenting their dramas with as little expense as possible and practising excision if necessary. The fact that normally the dramatic dialogue was limited to three persons is due therefore, not to economic exigency, but to the Greek artistic sense for propriety and clarity of expression. So Dr. Kelley Rees, The So-called Rule of Three Actors in the Classical Greek Drama (Dissert., Chicago, 1908).

2. χορὸς νεφελῶν: in comedy the chorus, or band of singing dancers, numbered 24, in tragedy, since the time of Sophocles, 15. Haigh, *Attic Theatre*², 323 f.

Στρεψιάδης

Ἰοὺ ἰού·

ὦ Ζεῦ βασιλεῦ, τὸ χρήμα τῶν νυκτῶν ὅσον·

At the back of the round ὀρχήστρα or dancing-place of the chorus is represented a street with two or three houses. (There was probably no stage.) In the por-tico or πρόθυρον of one of these houses lies Strepsiades, near him his son Pheidippides and some slaves asleep. It is night.

ΠΡΟΛΟΓΟΣ 1-262

The prologue is all that part of a drama (δράμα, δράω) which precedes the entrance (παρόδος) of the chorus. It is usually composed in iambic trimeter. For this see Introd. §§ 125-31, HA.
1091 ff., G. 1658 ff.

Στρεψιάδης: by etymology a scion of the στρέφω family, one of the McFraud clan, we might say, or one of the Dodges or Turners.

1. ἰοὺ ἰού: heigh-ho; O dear,
O dear!

2. τὸ χρήμα κτί: this night-business — how long it is! It is broad day in the theatre, but the audience take the hint and imagine night.

4. καὶ μὴν: surely. — ἐγώ:
added bitterly, as he hears the slaves snoring (ῥέγκω).

5. οὐκ ἂν: almost as common as our own ellipse "they wouldn't 've" (sc. ἔρρεγκον); cp. 108, 154, 769, 1379. — πρὸ τοῦ: before this;
τοῦ in its old demonstr. sense.

6. -πολ-, πολ-, πολ-: a petulant explosion of p's.

7. ὅτε: when, passing into cauἀλλ' οὐδ' ὁ χρηστὸς οὕτοσιν νεινίας ἐγείρεται τῆς νυκτός, ἀλλὰ πέρδεται ἐν πέντε σισύραις ἐγκεκορδυλημένος. 10 ἀλλ', εἰ δοκεῖ, ῥέγκωμεν ἐγκεκαλυμμένοι.

 ἀλλ' οὐ δύναμαι δείλαιος εὐδειν, δακνόμηνος ὑπὸ τῆς δαπάνης καὶ τῆς φάτνης καὶ τῶν χρεῶν διὰ τουτονὶ τὸν νιόν. ὁ δὲ κόμην ἔχων sal since. With war literally at Athens' gates, escape for the slaves was easy, hence chastisement had to be light. By the year 413 B.C. more than 20,000 of them had deserted to the enemy (Thuc. 7. 27).

8. οὐδέ: no more (than the slaves). — χρηστὸς: nice; ironic.

10. πέντε: probably a "round" number, like our "half-dozen"; not lit. "five." — ἐγ-κε-κορδυλημένος: en-swaddled; a comic and scornful partic. formed directly from κορδύλη (head-scarf); mantilla-ed.

11. εἰ δοκεῖ: if that's the vote, the will of the majority. Cp. the formula ἔδοξεν τῇ βουλῇ καὶ τῷ δήμῳ.

12. Delivered after fruitless silence in tragic style; for δείλαιος and εὐδω (instead of καθεύδω) are extremely rare in prose.

13. ὑπὸ τῆς δαπάνης κτί.: a variant from the usual biters. — φάτνης:

lit. manger; = stall, or stud. Note the recurrence of δ and ης in 12 and 13, and the falling apart of the three μέτρα in 13.

14. κόμην ἔχων: wearing long hair — the habit of the aristocratic knights and people of quality, which came to mean "taking on (h)airs," "playing the fine gentleman," as in 545.

15. Even in war times ἵπποτροφία for the festival races was the great passion of the fashionable youth. In 416 B.C. their head, Alcibiades, entered no less than seven four-horse chariots at the Olympic games. The single racer was called ἵππος κέλης, the pair a συνωρίς (whence ξυνωρικεύομαι), the four-horse chariot a ζεύγος.

16. The verse divides in the exact middle, ἐγὼ winning a pathetic prominence.

17. εἰκάδας: the twenties, the days of the month from the 20th οἱ γὰρ τόκοι χωροῦσιν. ἅπτε, παῖ, λύχον, καῖφερε τὸ γραμματεῖον, ἵν' ἀναγνῶ λαβὼν ὅποσους ὀφείλω, καὶ λογίσωμαι τοὺς τόκους. 20 φέρ' ἴδω, τί ὀφείλω; 'δώδεκα μνᾶς Πασία' τοῦ δώδεκα μνᾶς Πασία; τί ἐχρησάμην;

ὄτ' ἐπριάμην τὸν κοππατίαν. οἴμοι τάλας, εἴθ' ἐξεκόπην πρότερον τὸν ὀφθαλμὸν λίθῳ.

on; cf. our "teens." They were hateful only because they ended in the ἐνη καὶ νέα, which was the day for paying interest (τόκος). So at Rome they had "tristes kalendae." The old man evades naming the ugly day from dislike of it, just as for the opposite reason the lover of "Sally in our Alley" plays round the name of Sunday in the old song: "Of all the days that's in the week | I dearly love but one day, | And that's the day that comes betwixt | A Saturday and Monday."

18. χωροῦσι: interest did indeed come on at a sleepless rate in Athens, running from 10 to 36 per cent. — ἅπτε: light, lit. touch. The slave brings lamp and ledger.

21. δώδεκα μνᾶς: 12 × $18.00 = $216.00. Pasiás comes for his money later (v. 1213 ff.).

22. τοῦ: for what? a gen. of exchange (as in 31), usually called gen. of price. — τί: inner acc.; what use did I make of them?

23. Spoken after a pause. — κοππατίαν: one of the famous blooded horses of Corinth, branded on the haunch with the city's ancient initial letter Koppa (ϙόρινθος) — the original of our Q. A Corinthian coin of the 5th cent. B.C. shows the winged horse Pegasus with a ϙ beneath him.

24. ἐξεκόπην: a pun on κοππατίας. For the indic. with εἴθε, expressing unattainable wish, see S. 1176, HA. 871, G. 1511.

Φειδιππίδης

Φίλων, ἀδικεῖς· ἔλαυνε τὸν σαυτοῦ δρόμον. 25

Στ. τοῦτ' ἔστι — τουτί — τὸ κακόν, ὃ μ' ἀπολώλεκεν.
ὀνειροπολεῖ γὰρ καὶ καθεύδων ἵππικήν.

Φε. πόσους δρόμους ἔλα τὰ πολεμιστήρια;

Στ. ἐμὲ μὲν σὺ πολλοὺς τὸν πατέρ' ἐλαύνεις δρόμους.
ἀτὰρ 'τί χρέος ἔβα με' μετὰ τὸν Πασίαν; 30
'τρεῖς μναὶ διφρίσκου καὶ τροχοῖν Ἀμυνία.'

Φε. ἄπαγε τὸν ἵππον ἐξάλισας οἴκαδε.

25. ἀδικεῖς: = "a foul, Philo!"
Dreaming of his race-practice, Pheidippides sees his friend cutting across the course (ὑποτρέχει) — an unfair and dangerous act. Hence — "keep to your own track."

26. τουτί: a feeling repetition of τοῦτο; "that's the trouble — right there."

27. καὶ καθεύδων: even when asleep; a comical charge truly, but excusable from the sleepless sire. — ἵππικήν: sc. τέχνην, horserery (like "archery," "cooking") = the track, or turf.

28. Clearly Philo has got possession of the course and "is going to drive his war-chariots (sc. ἄρματα)" as many laps (δρόμους) as he pleases. These πολεμιστήρια flourished of course on no real field of battle at that period; they were but racing cars decked perhaps in martial gear.

29. ἐμὲ: emphatic by reason of its form, position, and the following μέν (= μὴν). — πολλούς: emphatic because separated from and preceding its substantive. The line is not easy to deliver rhythmically, if the logical emphasis be observed.

30. In his tragic plight, the old man borrows a tragic phrase from Euripides; note (1) χρέος debt, for the prose form χρέως indeclin. or χρέα plural; (2) ἔβα = Attic ἔβη; (3) the acc. με after ἔβα without prep. (Cp. "arrive" in Shakespeare, e.g. 3 Henry VI 5.3.8 "have arrived our coast"). "What debit hath arrived me?" would be corresponding stilted English.

31. διφρίσκου: the light δίφρος or chariot-box of the ἄρμα, itemized apart from the wheels (τροχοί), and unshipped from them when not in use (Hom. Il. 5. 722).

32 f. The groom (ἵπποκόμος) is told to give the horse a good roll (ἐξ-αλίνδω) before leading him

- Στ. ἀλλ', ὦ μέλ', ἐξήλικας ἐμέ γ' ἐκ τῶν ἐμῶν,

- Στ. δάκνει μέ τις δήμαρχος ἐκ τῶν στρωμάτων.
Φε. ἔασον, ὦ δαιμόνιε, καταδαρθεῖν τί με.
- Στ. σὺ δ' οὖν κάθευδε· τὰ δὲ χρέα ταῦτ' ἴσθ' ὅτι

home. But in his own case (ἐμέ γε) Strepsiades finds the prep. ἐξ literally true.

33. τῶν ἐμῶν: sc. χρημάτων property.

34. ὅτε: causal, as in 7.— ὥφληκα: with δίκην the verb ὀφλισκάνω (to owe) means to lose a suit.— χᾶτεροι: καὶ ἔτεροι.

35. ἐνεχυράσεσθαι: middle, will get their surety (ἐνέχυρα) by levying on my property.— ἐτεόν: really; an adv. used only in questions with roused feeling; 93, 820, 1502.

37. τις: some sort of— then a pause before naming this new species of insect, the sheriff (δήμαρχος = shire-reeve).

38. ὦ δαιμόνιε: “my dear Sir”; a formula much used in ex-postulation.

39. σὺ δ' οὖν: with imv. gives impatient, unwilling, or scornful assent: “well, well, if you must.” The pronoun rarely seems to be emphatic.— κάθευδε: “sleep on”; note present tense.— ἴσθ' ὅτι: assuredly; a clause parenthetical and practically an adverb.

40. ἅπαντα: the whole set of them, with postscript emphasis.— τὴν σὴν: your own, also emphatic by separation from its substantive.— φεῦ: ah! He falls into reverie.

41. προ-μνήστρια: match-maker; from προ-μνάομαι to court for another.

42. γῆμαι: elided, as κολάσαι in 7.— ἐπ-ῆρε: (αἶρω) put me up to—, induced me.

43. ἔμοι: emphatic; “mine was a farm-life most delightful.”

εὐρωτιῶν, ἀκόρητος, εἰκῇ κείμενος,

44 f. might be a picture of the farm and deserted monastery of Caesariani to be seen at the present day perched on the rugged side of Mt. Hymettus overlooking Athens. — εὐρώς is mould, decay; εὐρωτιάω to moulder. — ἀ-κόρητος: unkempt, rude; κορέω to sweep. — βρύων: teeming, bursting; a poetic word = prose ὀργάω. — τὸ στέμ-φυλον is pressed olive cake.

46. To marry the niece of Megacles the son of Megacles was to marry "the daughter of a hundred earls." The family, under the name Alcmaeonidae, had been celebrated from before the time of Solon and Draco, antedating all the tyrants and producing (or allying to itself) such men as Pisistratus, Cleisthenes, and Pericles. At this very time a Megacles appears in the inscriptions as γραμματεὺς to the Treasurers of the Sacred Monies (428/7 B.C.); and the youngest scion Alcibiades has already such a record (Introd.

§§ 39, 62, 108), that Arist. quite naturally names this house, from which to draw his young horse-racing hero Pheidippides.

47. The contrasts are juxtaposed.

48. ἐγ-κε-κοισυρω-μένην: be-Pompadoured. Coisyra seems to be the name of some grand dame, some Madame Pompadour, of earlier times, probably of this same family. Cp. the word-formation with that in 10.

49. ἐγώ: emphat. position, as in 4. The contrast comes in 51.

50 ff. The metrical feet fall apart (δι-αίρεσις) as he slowly numbers the odours; thrice we hear the rhythm . His memories waken echoes in the words (τρ- τρ-, -ας -ας, -ου -ου, -δος -δος). "Smelling of lees, pigs, fleece, and ease" is not literal but gives the tone. — καταγλωτ.: billings and cooings.

52. λαφυγμοῦ: gluttony; λα-φύσσω to devour, gorge. — Colias οὐ μὴν ἐρῶ γ' ὡς ἀργὸς ἦν, ἀλλ' ἐσπάθα.

ἐγὼ δ' ἂν αὐτῇ θοϊμάτιον δεικνὺς τοδὶ πρόφασιν ἔφασκον, 'ὦ γύναι, λίαν σπαθῆς.' 55

Θεράπων

Στ. οἶμοι· τί γάρ μοι τὸν πότην ἤπτες λύχνον;
δεῦρ' ἔλθ', ἵνα κλάῃς. Θε. διὰ τί δῆτα κλαύσομαι;
Στ. ὅτι τῶν παχειῶν ἐνετίθεις θρυαλλίδων.
μετὰ ταῦθ', ὅπως νῦν ἐγένεθ' υἱὸς οὔτοσί, 60 and Genetyllis are epithets of Aphrodite, the one because of her temple at the promontory Colias near Athens, the other because the goddess of marriage.

53. μὴν: in truth. — ἀλλ' ἐσπάθα: on the contrary, she was always at the σπάθη, i.e. using the weaver's rod (σπάθη) to drive down closely the woof-threads upon the warp. A virtuous wife, think the audience.

55. λίαν σπαθῆς: but when Streps. shows them his threadbare ἱμάτιον — as he had to his wife by way of excuse (πρόφασιν) for his words — they see his joke; for σπαθῆν was also colloquially to waste or squander. "Wife, all too well you weave me waste-coats." — ἔφασκον: with ἂν iterative, would say; S. 1183, HA. 835, G. 1296.

56. The lamp has gone out.

— ἡμῖν: the plural is perhaps a bit presumptuous.

57. πότην λύχνον: a toper lamp was indeed extravagant in war-time. With olive-groves cut and all Attica cooped within the walls, both honey and oil ("sweetness and light" as Gildersleeve has said) were scarce and high. Note the emphasis of πότην by its separation from the substantive.

58. κλάῃς: "to howl" meant often "to get a cuffing"; so οἰμῶζω in 217. Cp. the Eng. "you'll catch it" — no boy asks what.

59. θρυαλλίδων: some of the fat wicks; S. 883, HA. 736, G. 1097. 1.

60. ὅπως = ὡς, when; an old-fashioned usage proper to the old countryman. — οὔτοσί: here, with a gesture; hence no article with υἱός, S. 805, HA. 674, G. 945. 2.

ἐμοί τε δὴ καὶ τῇ γυναικὶ τὰγαθῇ, περὶ τοῦνόματος δὴ 'ντεῦθεν ἐλοιδορούμεθα·

 τέως μὲν οὖν ἐκρίνόμεθ'· εἴτα τῷ χρόνῳ κοινῇ ξυνέβημεν ἀθέμεθα Φειδιππίδην.
 τοῦτον τὸν υἱὸν λαμβάνουσ' ἐκορίζετο,
 'ὅταν σὺ μέγας ὦν ἄρμ' ἐλαύνῃς πρὸς πόλιν, ὥσπερ Μεγακλῆς, ξυστίδ' ἔχων —.' ἐγὼ δ' ἔφην,

61. δὴ: namely.

62. ἐλοιδορούμεθα: note the tense.

63. ἵππον: for antiquity a no-men was an omen, and the "man on horseback" was a leader and an aristocrat. What better omen then than Ξάνθιππος or the like? That was the name of Pericles' father. — προσετίθει: was for adding; imperfect tense for imperfect act.

65. τοῦ πάππου: again old country-usage instead of ἀπὸ τοῦ πάππου. — ἐτιθέμην: was for naming; imperfect as in 63. The middle is regular in this sense. — Φειδωνίδην: Strepsiades' father was named Φείδων (v. 134); he would follow the ancient custom of naming grandson from grandfather, yielding a bit in adding the proud patronymic -ίδης. Φείδων, from φεῖδομαι, was a "thrifty" omen, if not aristocratic

66. τέως: for a time. — ἐκρίνόμεθα: we disputed; an old-time use of the word in middle voice.

67. Φειδιππίδην: Spare-horse; a compromise hardly easy for the youth to bear among his fast associates of the turf. Cp. the Indian name Young-man-afraid-of-his-horses.

69 f. O when you are a man! The sentence is incomplete, as are εἰ-γάρ wishes and English wishes beginning "if only." Madame Strepsiades is probably thinking how her darling will look in the Panathenaic procession or when, returning a victor from the Olympian games, he is granted processional honours to the acropolis (πόλις), clad in long saffron robe (ξυστίς).

70. Μεγακλῆς: two generations earlier a Megacles had indeed won a four-horse chariot race in the Pythian games. Pindar's

KNIGHTS IN PANATHENEAIC PROCESSION.
A bit of the Parthenon frieze. (From A. Boetticher, Die Akropolis von Athen, 157.) See verse 69.

- 'ὅταν μὲν οὖν τὰς αἴγας ἐκ τοῦ φελλέως, 71

 Στ. κύσον με καὶ τὴν χεῖρα δὸς τὴν δεξιάν.
 Φε. ἰδοῦ. τί ἐστίν; Στ. εἰπέ μοι, φιλεῖς ἐμέ;
 Φε. νῆ τὸν Ποσειδῶ τουτονὶ τὸν ἵππιον.

seventh Pythian ode still celebrates it.

71. μὲν οὖν: nay, rather; corrective. Stony ground (φελλεύς) is the natural habitat of goats.

72. ἐν-ημμένους: (-άπτω) = ἐν-δεδυμένος. Cp. ἄπτω 18 for different sense.

73. οὐκ ἐπέιθετο: would not heed. — ἐμοῖς: emphatic because separated from its noun.

74. ἵππ-ερον: a comic new νόσος ἵππική, the horse-complaint, named on the analogy of ἵκτ-ερος jaundice, ὑδ-ερος dropsy. — μου: may depend on κατα- in the verb or on χρημάτων; in the first case χρημάτων is a nearer definition of μου. — κατ-έχει: prob. aor., from ἔχεα.

75 f. ὁδοῦ: way, depends on φροντίζων and is contrasted with the one trail or by-path (ἀτραπός) which is so devilish extraordinary (δαιμονίως ὑπερφυᾶ), on which indeed, the plot of the comedy is to run. — μίαν: emphatic by isolation.

80. Φειδιππίδιον: coaxing diminutive; Phiddy.

81. κύσον: κυνέω.

82. ἰδοῦ: there, voilà, ecco.

83. Ποσειδῶ: the sea-god was also creator of the horse, and patron saint of the knights and of aristocrats in general. — τουτονί: yonder; he probably points to some statue or bust of Poseidon standing before the house with the statue of Hermes, which regu-

(see v. 1478).

Poseidon Hippios, with trident; a coin of Potidaea.

84. μὴ 'μοί γε: sc. λέγε. — τὸν ἵππιον: appositive to τοῦτον, not its substantive.

87. τί: wherein? — δῆτα:
pray; impatiently.

88. ἔκστρεψον: he is to turn his habits inside out as he would his ἱμάτιον; = "to turn over a new leaf."

94. ψυχῶν: philosophers had been disputing much what the ψυχή or soul was. Strepsiades had heard of these discussions, but perhaps for him ψυχαί meant what it did when he was a boy learning Homer — the "spectral dead," "disembodied spirits." Socrates was to him a modern "medium."
— φροντιστήριον: formed on the analogy of βουλευτήριον, δικαστήριον, ἐργαστήριον, means reflec-tory, contemplatory, speculatory, or cogitatorium, from φροντίζω, φροντιστής; hence by strange irony it is Arist. himself who first worked out even in detail the professional thinking-shops of modern ἐνταῦθ' ἐνοικοῦσ' ἄνδρες, οἱ τὸν οὐρανὸν 95 λέγοντες ἀναπείθουσιν ὥς ἔστιν πνιγεύς, κάστιν περὶ ἡμᾶς οὗτος, ἡμεῖς δ' ἄνθρακες.

οὔτοι διδάσκουσ', ἀργύριον ἦν τις διδῶ, λέγοντα νικᾶν καὶ δίκαια κᾶδικα.

Φε. εἰσὶν δὲ τίνες; Στ. οὐκ οἶδ' ἀκριβῶς τοῦνομα · 101

Φε. αἰβοί, πονηροί γ', οἶδα. τοὺς ἀλαζόνας, universities, the seminaries and laboratories.

94-97. οὐρανόν: stands by πρόληψις (fore-seizure) in the earlier clause, while English transfers it into the ὥς-clause. — Hippon ὁ ἄθεος, one of the new philosophers, seems to have compared the dome of heaven to a πνιγεύς or smotherer, a dome-shaped furnace or oven in which charcoal was burned. Cratinus had ridiculed this in his comedy the Πανόπται (Eye-alls, or Know-it-alls). Arist. borrows the doctrine for his composite Socrates, and adds from Heraclitus the comparison of men (ἄνθρωποι) with charcoal (ἄνθρακες). For according to Heraclitus we draw in τὸν θεῖον λόγον (divine reason) by respiration and through the passage-ways of the senses (οἱ αἰσθητικοὶ πόροι) — less when asleep, more when awake — just as ἄνθρακες grow black when withdrawn from the fire, but if given fire and air become living.

96. λέγοντες: by argument, as in 99, 115, 1211.

98 f. Again a borrowing and blackening. Socrates asked no pay, indeed offered no formal instruction at all; and it was Protagoras, not Socrates, who boasted that he could win in debate though holding the weaker argument (τὸν ἥττω λόγον κρείττω ποιεῖν). Here Arist. voices probably the general feeling when he changes this boast of mere skill to the very dangerous business of winning whether right or wrong (99). So, however, in fact was this skill working out in contemporary Athens.

100. οὐκ οἶδ': true to his name Strepsiades here dissembles a bit (στρέφει).

101. μεριμνοφροντισταί: anxious thinkers, original researchers, strug-for-truthers. Then after a pause (the v. divides in the exact middle) he adds perfect gentlemen, aristocrats.

102. αἰβοί: bah! — πονηροί:

τοὺς ὠχριῶντας, τοὺς ἀνυποδήτους λέγεις, ὦν ὁ κακοδαίμων Σωκράτης καὶ Χαιρεφῶν.

Στ. ἦ ἦ, σιώπα · μηδὲν εἶπης νήπιον. 105

Στ. ἴθ', ἀντιβολῶ σ', ὦ φίλτατ' ἀνθρώπων ἐμοί, 110
ἐλθὼν διδάσκου. Φε. καὶ τί σοι μαθήσομαι;

Στ. εἶναι παρ' αὐτοῖς φασιν ἄμφω τὸ λόγῳ, low fellows. — ἀλαζόνες: swindlers.

103. ὠχριῶντας: untrue of Socrates, who was always in the open, but probably true of Protagoras who τὰ πολλὰ ἐνδον διατρίβει (Plat. Protag. 311 a), and of Prodicus, who even gave lectures in bed (op. cit. 315 d). — ἀνυποδήτους: "sockless Jerries." Of this crime Socrates was in truth guilty; though not barefaced (ἀλαζών), he went barefooted.

104. Χαιρεφῶν: the impulsive half-mad disciple of Socrates (σφοδρὸς καὶ μανικός), who questioned the Delphic oracle concerning his master's wisdom (Plat. Apol. 21 a). He was unmercifully ridiculed by the comic poets as a pale, cadaverous bat, a son of night, a sycophant, flatterer, parasite, dirty beggar, and thief. No wonder the young aristocrat recoils.

105. ἦ ἦ: ah, ah! or O, O! — νήπιον: an old-fashioned word perhaps (certainly at this time a poetic word) for ἀνόητον or εἷηθες.

106. ἀλφίτων: (lit. barley meal) = daily bread. Here, after πατρώων, it is a comic substitute for χρημάτων or the like (ancestral property); so in 176, 648.

107. τούτων: one of these; predicate and partitive. — σχασάμενος: σχά(ζ)ω (to cut) here is to slacken, ease off, abate; cp. 409, 740. — ἵππικὴν: see 27.

108. οὐκ ἂν: I wouldn't; verb omitted as in 5.

109. φασιᾱνοὺς: pheasants and peacocks were then rare new birds in Athens, kept only by the rich such as Leogoras, father of the orator Andocides.

110. ὦ φίλτατε: in tragic air.

τὸν κρείττον', ὅστις ἐστί, καὶ τὸν ἥττονα.
τούτοιον τὸν ἕτερον τοῖν λόγοιν, τὸν ἥττονα, νικᾶν λέγοντά φασι τὰδικώτερα.

115

ἦν οὖν μάθης μοι τὸν ἄδικον τοῦτον λόγον, ἂ νῦν ὀφείλω διὰ σέ, τούτων τῶν χρεῶν οὐκ ἂν ἀποδοίην οὐδ' ἂν ὀβολὸν οὐδενί.

Φε. οὐκ ἂν πιθοίμην· οὐ γὰρ ἂν τλαίην ἰδεῖν

120

Στ. οὐκ ἄρα, μὰ τὴν Δήμητρα, τῶν γ' ἐμῶν ἔδει, οὗτ' αὐτός, οὗθ' ὁ ζύγιος, οὗθ' ὁ σαμφόρας·
ἀλλ' ἐξελῶ σ' ἐς κόρακας ἐκ τῆς οἰκίας.

113 f. κρείττονα . . . ἥττονα: the weaker argument is not always in the wrong (ἄδικος); an innocent man may have appearances against him. But from the moral point of view the argument of the ἄδικος-man is always ἥττων. Poor Strepsy's conscience tells him that of these two strange δαιμόνια, Buttal and Re-buttal, it is Re-buttal, the ἥττων λόγος, whose aid he needs.

119. τλαίην: τλῆναι to brook is poetic for τολμᾶν or ἀνέχεσθαι.

120. A gentleman-knight should be well-groomed (ἀπεστ-λεγγισμένος, Eq. 580); but if the 'strigil of hard study scrape your colour off (δια-κναίω) and leave you ὠχρός, Pheidippides wants none of it. The Knights were that select and aristocratic body of a thousand horse, the City Troop, figuring more largely in pomp than in field. They are preserved in stone to this day in the frieze of the Parthenon.

121. Δήμητρα: the oath by the goddess of grain (including Strep-siades' ἄλφειτα) fits well the situation (ἔδει from ἐσθίω). Greek swearing, on the artistic "referential system" of Bob Acres, usually fitted well; cp. 83.

122. ὁ ζύγιος: in a four-abreast the ζύγιοι were the two horses under the yoke (ζυγόν); the two outriggers were called σειρα-φόροι trace-bearers (1300).—σαμ-φόρας: was a horse from Sicyon, branded with that town's initial letter, i.e., in Doric form and name, San (M); cp. 23.

123. ἐς κόρακας: to the crows; a common imprecation, = to Perdition.

125. εἵσειμι: hereupon the youth enters the house.

126. οὐδ' ἐγώ: no more will I, sc. than you. — πεσόν: as if in wrestling. The first three feet of the v. stand detached, as if to be delivered with fitting gesture, perhaps with three shakes of the fist.

130. σχινδαλάμους: splinters. In English we speak rather of "hairsplitting," "quibbles," "subtleties."

131. ταῦτα: inner acc. with στραγγεύομαι ; = οὕτως, as often. — ἔχων: lit. keeping at it ; with στραγ., keep loitering, S. 1277 a, H.A. 968 a, G. 1564.

134. Official completeness Κίκυννα was a deme.

135. ἀμαθής: unlettered.

136. ἀ-περιμερίμνως: even knocking at a door without ratiocination was blameworthy in the eyes of the advanced Thinkers (φροντισταί). In the Frogs 971 ff. Arist. makes Euripides boast:

"I taught them all these knowing ways

By chopping logic in my plays,
And making all my speakers try
To reason out the How and Why.
So now the people trace the springs,
The sources and the roots of things."

137. ἐξ-ήμβλωκας: ἀμβλίσκω. This "causing the miscarriage of a well-conceived thought" is a hit at Socrates as the son of the mid-wife, Phaenarete. But the philosopher did not take umbrage at the joke, but fell in with it — or Plato for him. In Plato's Theaetetus we find him boasting the inheritance of his mother's profession, in that though knowing nothing himself, he assisted his young friends to the birth of their ideas.

138. τηλοῦ: = πόρρω, with ἀγρῶν, perhaps an old word suitable to the rustic; if the schol. is correct, a parody of Euripidean usage. — οἰκῶ: but since the war he has been a refugee in the city.

140. οὐ θέμις: sinful, impious. Science has become the student's religion, his master a prophet.

141. λέγε: go on and tell it; pres., not aor. — θαρρῶν: without fear, cheer up, boldly; S. 1273 a,

HA. 968 a, G. 1564. — οὐτοσί: here, with a gesture.

143. λέξω: will tell you; not ἐρῶ (will say). — μυστήρια: not mystery in the modern sense of secret, but divine mystery, i.e., the holy rite of initiation as practised, for example, at Eleusis.

145. ψύλλαν: prolepsis, as in 95. — τοὺς αὐτῆς πόδας: probably a travesty on the doctrine of Protagoras, that man was the measure of all things (Introd. § 44); if man, why not fleas? Or Arist. may be ridiculing the triviality of the problems of the New Learning. He did not foresee that a modern strug-for-truther (μεριμνο-σοφιστής) would laboriously compute that a human leap proportionate to the flea-jump would be a quarter of a mile, and that dissertations would be written by Masters of Arts on "The Salivary Glands of a Cockroach," and "The Taxonomic Value of the Characters

146. ὀφρῦν: the schol. says that Chaerephon had bushy eyebrows, and Socrates a bald head.

150. τὸ πόδε: some editors see here a joke in the biped flea. But the poet as a καλὸς καγαθός, may have known no better — perhaps would have scorned to know better.

151. περιέφυσαν: grew (i.e., formed) around, with ψυχρίσῃ sc. τῇ ψύλλῃ, meaning only its feet, of course. — Περσικαί: a Greek woman spoke of her "Persians," omitting ἐμβάδες shoes, just as now we name things by their place of origin, as China, Afghan, Spaniel, Newfoundland, Jersey, Havana, Port.

152. ἀν-έμέτρε: imperfect, because the measuring off was in process when Strepsiades knocked.

153. λεπτότητος: the subtlety of his wit; a frequent use of the genitive, giving the cause of the preceding exclamation. S. 906 a, HA. 761, G. 1129. φρένες at this time had become high-sounding and unusual in daily speech.

154. τί δῆτ' αὖν: cp. 5. — ἕτερον: emphatic by separation from its substantive.

157. ὁπότερα: = -ερον or -έρος, adv., which way he thought. This question, later seriously discussed by Aristotle, is perhaps a jest at the expense of the savant Archelaus, an initiator of acoustics, of whom Diogenes Laertius reports (2. 17): πρῶτος εἶπε φωνῆς γένεσιν τὴν τοῦ ἀέρος πληξίν.

162. εὐθὺ: with gen. = straight

163. κοῖλον κτί.: a hollow (such as the vent) being attached to a narrow thing (such as the entail) causes an echo; whence the inference (ἄρα) in the next verse from rump-et to trumpet!

166. An exclamation at the teacher's entrailspection or insight inside; δι-εντέρευμα for δι-ερέυνημα.

167. φεύγων and ἀποφύγοι with δίκην are legal terms = to be prose- cuted and to be acquitted.

claims its favourite position and γε yields.

172. κεχηνότος: χάσσω.

Στ. τί δῆτ' ἐκείνον τὸν θαλὴν θαυμάζομεν; 180

174. ἦσθην: idiomatic aor. where Eng. uses present (S. 1126, HA. 842, GMT. 60); I like the notion of—.

176. εἶεν: well; expletive. — ἐπαλαμήσατο: a word beloved of Euripides (= prose ἐμχανήσατο), in comic context here with the homely ἄλφιστα (victuals).

177. κατα-πάσας: πάσσω. — The hocus-pocus begins: Over the table he sprinkled fine ashes, bent a small spit, then taking it as a pair of compasses he —. Here we expect, as the hungry pupils did, and as the audience in the theatre did, some wizard Medea-trick — perhaps “out of the sprinkled place (παλάσσω to sprinkle) he fished (ὑφείλετο) a small victim (θυμάτιον)” for dinner, or rather part of the victim after the burnt sacrifice to the gods. But instead comes suddenly an outrageous punning slander: Out of the wrestling school

(παλ-αίστρα for perhaps πάλ-αγμα) he filched himself that coat (θοιμάτιον sounding almost like θυμάτιον). The λωποδύτης, or cloak thief, of the Greek palaestra still plies his trade among the lockers of gymnasia and the umbrella-racks of the modern clubhouse. — This whole passage was perhaps inserted at the last moment. In competition with Nubes — it may be just preceding it — Amipsias had presented his Con-nus, in which Socrates, here too one of the dramatis personae, is asked πόθεν ἂν σοι χλαῖνα γένοιτο; By the time the turn of the Nubes comes, Arist. has an answer ready.

180. The capture of goat and coat at one fell hook captures Strepsiades also; why pray admire the famous (ἐκείνον) Thales, when we have a Socrates among us?

181. ἀνύσας: ἀνύω. Translate as imv. hurry and — (cp.

 (Hence "I want to be an angel and with the angels stand" might be ἀγγελιῶ καὶ συσταίω!) — ἄνοιγε: the theatrical management of the scene is uncertain. Perhaps the door-opening was merely the rolling back to either side of a great linen curtain which had represented the house-front or the back wall of the premises, thus disclosing the inner court, or αὐλή, of the house. This court, open to the sky (198) and flanked and backed by chambers, is filled with μαθηταί in singular attitudes of "original research." Aloft sits

192. ἐρεβο-διφῶσι: to dive to Erebus, which lay under Tartarus, was indeed going to the bottom of things.

194. αὐτὸς καθ' αὐτόν: by itself, independently.

195. εἰς-ιτε: i.e. from the court into the adjoining chambers. — ἐκεῖνος: Socrates; cp. αὐτός 219. — ἐπιτύχη: i.e. when he descends from his κρεμάθρι.

197. αὐτοῖσι: at the head of the verse one might expect αὐτός to retain its ipse sense, though it does not always; here perhaps to them alone, before ἐκεῖνος appears.

198. πρὸς τὸν ἄερα: in the air, i.e. in the court. Cp. πρὸς τὸν ἥλιον 771, "in the sun."

199. πολλὸν ἄγαν: overly long. Exeunt the μαθηταί.

200. πρὸς τῶν θεῶν: is exactly the older English oath "fore God." — τάδε: pointing to the apparatus of the school.

203. κληρουχικὴν: four years earlier Strepsiadēs had seen much of the island of Lesbos subjugated and measured into allotments (κληροῖ) for the 2700 Athenians who had drawn the lucky numbers (κληροῦχοι). To make the whole earth cleruchic is, he thinks, a pretty conceit, a good and popular trick (204 f.).

204. οὐκ, ἀλλά: no. English idiom drops ἀλλά, as it does so many δέ's.

- Ma. αὕτη δέ σοι γῆς περίοδος πάσης. ὁρᾷς ;
αἶδε μὲν Ἀθῆναι. Στ. τί σὺ λέγεις ; οὐ πείθομαι,

- Ma. ἀλλ' οὐχ οἶδόν τε. Στ. νῆ Δί' οἰμώξεσθ' ἄρα.

206. αὕτη σοι : there you have.
— περίοδος : map.

208. Athens was not Athens without its ever-busy, over-busy throng of 6000 jurymen, countless officials, and swarming sycophants.
Introduct. § 26.

209. ὡς : Oh, spoken with heartly assurance. Cp. the wishὡς in ὡς ὄφελον.

210. καὶ ποῦ : καί joins a question of surprise to the preceding statement, often to expose an in-consequence therein ; = pray, why, or then. — οἱ ἔμοι δημόται : so, on visiting Niagara Falls, Strepsiades likes to have his picture taken with himself in the foreground and the Falls at the back.

211. δέ γε : γε gives stress to Euboea ; cp. 169, 175.

212. For little Greece the island of Euboea does in truth lie stretched alongside very long, viz., about 100 miles. — ἡδὲ : here.

213. παρ-ετάθη : τείνω. Euboea was laid low or made to stretch her length when subjugated to Athens by Pericles in 445 B.C.

214. 'στι ὅπου : spoken by different people at the same instant, ι and ο do not here make hiatus nor a long syllable, but one short.
— αὐτῇ : here.

215. ὡς : horrified exclamatory ; so near us ! He is not used to maps.

Σω. ἀεροβατῶ καὶ περιφρονῶ τὸν ἥλιον. 225

217. οἰμώξισθ' ἄρα : "the worse for you then."

218. τίς γάρ : pray, who? Cp.

191. — κρεμάθρας : usually explained as a hanging basket (κρέμαμαι), meant to burlesque the μηχανή used in Tragedy, viz., a crane and pulley by which gods and heroes were swung out aloft and raised and lowered according to tragic need. For another view see the Appendix.

219. αὐτός : from the days of Pythagoras αὐτός meant Master for pupil as for servant, and as "He" means "husband" now for the plain women. If αὐτὸς ἔφη, ipse dixit, that dictum settled all disputes. — ὦ Σώκρατες : not an address but an exclamation, like ὦ Ζεῦ, ὦ Ἡράκλεις ; cp. 328.

220. μέγα : loudly. "αὐτός" was apt to be abstracted, as we know from Plato's Symposium.

221. μὲν οὖν : corrective, as in 17 ; nay, rather. Exit μαθητής.

223. ὦ Σωκρατίδιον : not here coaxingly, as the diminutive in 80, nor with any pretence of verisimilitude, but merely to be "pert" in the comedy ; Sokky, just as a freshman in a college play might address the president as "Prexy." — ὦ ῥήμερε : Ephemeral One ; a lofty rebuke from the higher regions of speculation.

225. Note with what pomp the μέτρα fall apart, and how the first two are alike in rhythm and rhyme ; I tread the air and contemplate the sun. But περιφρονῶ was not only to contemplate but sometimes to contemn (ὑπερφρονῶ), not only to look over thoughtfully, but to overlook scornfully. Cp. “despise” from de-spicere. — This scene made so vivid an impression that over a quarter-century later Plato quoted this verse in his Apology, 19 c as one of the sources of the popular misunderstanding of Socrates, and of the prejudice against him.

226. ἔπειτα: introduces a question with the same tone of surprise or impatience or indignation or whatnot that καὶ does; see n. on 210.

227. εἴπερ: sc. χρή or τοῦτο ποιεῖς. — γάρ: else or otherwise.

228. ὀρθῶς: rightly = the modern “scientifically”; one of the shibboleths of the sophists.

229 ff. εἰ μὴ κρεμάσας: except by suspending; S. 1427 a, GMT. 476. Still another philosopher must contribute to our Socratic pot-pourri. Diogenes of Apollonia had been recently teaching that air was in everything — rare in the sun, fluid in water, solid in earth and metals — indeed, was itself omniscient deity (θεός) and the soul of man as well (ψυχή), imparting the power of thought to all things according to their quota of dry, pure air. The worst enemy of thought was moisture; because of it fish were witless, drunkards fuddled; and quadrupeds and children inferior to grown man because breathing impurer and moister air nearer the earth. For this reason Socrates has here lifted his intellect, which is subtle (λεπτή), to its own level of gravity, careless of the gravity of his audience. The airy doctrines of Diogenes are further ridiculed in 264 f., 627, 814. — ὅμοιον: like, kindred, i.e. in being λεπτός.

232. οὐ γὰρ ἀλλὰ κτί.: for it is only the earth that — as if οὐ γάρ ἐστιν ἀλλά. Cp. the French ne . . . que, the Italian non . . . che.

233. There seems to be a malicious muddle of the doctrine as πάσχει δὲ ταῦτο τοῦτο καὶ τὰ κάρδαμα.

Στ. τί φῆς;

235

ἡ φροντὶς ἔλκει τὴν ἱκμάδ' εἰς τὰ κάρδαμα;

Σω. πόθεν δ' ὑπόχρεως σαυτὸν ἔλαθες γενόμενος;

Στ. νόσος μ' ἐπέτρωπεν ἱππική, δεινὴ φαγεῖν.

here put into Socrates' mouth; for if the earth drew the hurtful moisture out of the intellect, then the nearer the earth the better.

234. It is just this same way with the water-cress; a parody on the true Socrates way of teaching, viz., by illustrating the unknown from the known and common things. Every Greek child knew that the seeds of the water-cress (τὰ κάρδαμα) sown in wet sponges also (καί) had this same property (πάθος, πάσχει) of drawing moisture in a wonderful measure. — πάσχει: often almost = πράττει; cp. 798, 1198 (where some Mss. read παθεῖν for ποιεῖν).

236. The muddle here is a jest as much at the expense of Socrates as of Strepsiades.

239. Socrates descends to earth masked and costumed quite like the living Socrates — bald-headed, with protuberant staring eyes, broad and open nostrils, large mouth, thick lips, rotund and waddling, as if intended by nature for comedy. The story goes that the real Socrates in the audience good-humouredly rose, that strangers might recognize the truth of the portrait. — Probably here the linen house-front closes, leaving the two actors in front of it. — κατὰ τί: nearly the same as διὰ τί or τίνος ἕνεκα.

240. χρήστων: from χρήστης money-lender, not from χρηστός. Note the dominant vowel in the verse.

241. Note the ὁμοιοτέλετον of the three verbs, -ομαι. Strepsiades is being "harried and plundered," as Attica itself was. — ἐνεχυράζομαι: here not middle as in 35, but passive, and taking an acc. like other verbs of depriving.

243. νόσος ἱππική: see 74. The poet may have in mind the

- ἀλλά με δίδαξον τὸν ἕτερον τοῖν σοῖν λόγῳιν, τὸν μηδὲν ἀποδιδόντα. μισθὸν δ', ὅντιν' ἂν 245 appetite (δεινὴ φαγεῖν) of the cancer (φλεγέδαινα) or the βουλιμία (Xen. Anab. 4. 5. 7). Rogers translates "a galloping consumption."

246. πράττη: middle voice, to charge, demand as a price, with two accusatives. — καταθήσειν: to pay down. — θεοὺς: with ὁμοῦμαι.

247. ποιοὺς: used in scornful question, or rather exclamation, with the word repeated that has raised the scorn; what gods forsooth? or gods indeed!

248. νόμισμα: means not only "current usage and belief," but current coin, currency, which is Strepsiades' sense of it. Since Greek coins were often stamped with the image of the gods, he naturally asks, with what currency, pray, do you swear (if you have no θεὸς-currency)? — τῷ: seems to be the syntax of business (dat. of instrument), not of religion (acc. of the god sworn by).

249. σιδαρέουσι: the Doric form because Byzantium was a Doric colony. Perhaps he drawls out with some contempt the mention of their i-i-i-r-on money though probably at this period iron was used only in obols, if at all, even among the Dorians.

250-62. A bit of parody on the initiation into Orphic mysteries. — τὰ θεία πράγματα: true religion, or theology; in prolepsis, as at 95, 145.

251. ἄττα: = ἅτινα; so 345, 589, and often. — ὀρθῶς: see on 228. Science every now and then offers a "correct" exposition of religion. Professor Socrates and rustic Strepsy are enduring types. — ἔστι: = ἔξεστι.

253. ἡμετέραισι: an emphatic our. Unemphatic "our" would be ἡμῶν in predicate position.

254. σκίμποδα: the sacred sofa, trundle-bed, or cot caricatures the θρόνος used in the Orphic initiation. Cp. the Eleusinian scene in the Frontispiece.

256. ἐπὶ τί: to what purpose.

257. με: object of θύσετε, but thrust well to the front, even into the heart of a word-group; see Appendix.—ὅπως: with fut. indic. expressing exhortation or command (S. 1115, HA. 886, G. 1352); common in daily speech, e.g. 489, 882.—θύσετε: at sight of the wreath Strepsiades recalls that victims of sacrifice were wreathed, also that he had seen (perhaps recently) the unhappy Athamas thus wreathed for death in the tragedy by Sophocles—Athamas that had married Νεφέλη! And was not he himself seeking an interview with the Νεφέλαι? No wonder he yowls οἶμοι.

258. τοὺς τελουμένους: the initiates; reassuring for the victim.

259. ἡμεῖς: professional.—κερδανῶ: the question of questions for Strepsiades—what he is to make out of it.

260. He is to become more than a “clever speaker” (δεινὸς λέγειν); he is to be a smooth fellow (τρῖμμα); a rattler (or clapper, or castanet, κρόταλον); fine meal itself (παιπάλη)—all terms chosen appropriate to the action; for according to the schol. Socrates here rubs some porous stones together (hence τρῖμμα, “διὰ τὸ τρίβεσθαι τοὺς λίθους”), then knocks them against each other (hence κρόταλον, “διὰ τὸ κρούεσθαι”), then gathers up the small fragments and dredges the old man with them as with flour. All this is a close parody on the rite of purification (κάθαρσις) as practised by itinerant superstition-peddlers on ignorant dupes. See the Frontispiece (“Initiation into the Eleusinian Mysteries”).

ΠΑΡΟΔΟΣ 263-477

After the spoken iambic trimeters of the πρόλογος follows the πάροδος or Chorus Processional, partly chanted, partly sung. In this play, however, the chorus does not come into view till v. 326.

263-74. Chanted anapaestic tetrameters; see Intro. § 132 β' for rhythm, § 132 α' for diction.

263. εὐφημεῖν: the solemn opening word of religious service (= favete linguis), in slow spondaic measure. — ἐπακούειν: to listen to with attention.

264 f. This trinity of gods is not born of the poet's fancy. He is satirizing the materialism of his day. Air was god for Diogenes of Apollonia (n. on 229), aether for Euripides the rationalist, and Νεφέλαι merely visualize the new nonsense and complete a trinity — the preferred number in oaths and other solemnities. — ἄναξ: at this time was no longer used as in Homer of human princes and masters, but only of deities and heroes (= Lord).

265. βροντησι-κέραυνοι: altered to suit the new goddesses from Homer's epithet of Zeus, τερπι-κέραυνος.

266. φροντιστή: i.e. Socrates; not in the humble tone of "David thy servant," but in that of "Professor Socrates thy savant."

267. τουτί: sc. τὸ ἱμάτιον.

The candidate having thus veiled himself, the parody of an initiation was complete; see the Frontispiece.

268. τὸ ἔλθειν ἐμὲ: to think of my coming! exclamat. inf., S. 1262, HA. 962, G. 1554.

269. τῷδ': Strepsiades; goes with ἐπίδειξιν. — εἰς: of purpose, as ἐπὶ in 256; to display yourselves.

270-73 Not by name does the poet indicate the points of the compass, but by pictures: in the North, the snowswept sacred summits of Olympus; in the West Father Ocean's gardens, where for the nymphs the Clouds range sacred dance-and-song; likewise in South and East.

272. ὑδάτων: "partitive" object of ἀρύεσθε; cp. 59.

273. Lake Maeotis is the modern Sea of Azov. The snowy cliff of Mimas juts out from Ionia, just above Chios.

274. ὑπακούσατε: "hear and answer," i.e. respond, obey; distancing from ἐπακούω 263. — ἱεροῖσι: neut.; rites, service(? The only "sacrificial victim" present was Strepsiades). — χαρεῖσθαι: a regular ritual term; finding pleasure in. Note the marks of poetry thus far: (1) no article with κορυφαῖς, πατρός, κήποις, προχοαῖς, σκόπελον; (2) locative dat. προχοαῖς without preps.; (3) the word προχοαῖς (outpourings) for στόμα (mouth

275-90. Still invisible, the 24 Clouds "hear and answer" the invocation with a στροφή of dactyls; see Intro. § 134. "Except in the Nubes and Aves, where Arist. strikes a higher note, the lyrical portions of Comedy are rarely free from parody" (Starkie on Vesp. 317). The "higher note" is finely struck in the πανό-ραμα following. Poetic as the diction is, there is no trace of parody.

276. As "deep calleth unto deep," so the Clouds summon each other to rise to view (φανεραί) in dewy ductile form.—φύσιν: acc. of specificat.; in the sense of form cp. Homer's φνὴ in οὐδέμας οὐδὲ φνὴν (Il. 1. 115).

281. ἀφ-ορώμεθα: ἀφ-ορᾶν is to look off at, to regard from a distance. From their mountain-summits they see the four things most salient: mountain-spurs (σκοπιαί), valley, river, and sea.

282. καρπούς: acc. of specificat. with ἀρδομέναν; cp. Xen. ἀποτμηθέντες τὰς κεφαλὰς.

285. γὰρ: the endless night of v. 1 is now passed, and the clouds rise (ἀρθῶμεν 276), not because summoned by Socrates as he boasts in 291, but because (γὰρ) aether's eye (the sun) is gleaming.

288. νέφος ὄμβριον: they are to shake off the rain cloud from their immortal form (ιδέας gen.) like some black ἱμάτιον. Schol. on 289 says they are to appear in ἐσθῆς ποικίλῃ. — Note the departures from prose level in the song: (1) Doric ā in εὐ-άγητον (ἡγεομαι) 276, βαρυ-αχέος 278, ἀρδομέναν 282, ἀθανάτας 289; (2) uncontracted βαρυ-αχέος 278, ὀρέων 279, μαρμαρέαις 286; (3) middle voice of ἀφορώμεθα 281; (4) poetic words ἀέναι 275, χθών 282, ζάθεος and κελαδήματα 283, ὄμμα, σελαγείται, and ἀκάματος 285, μαρμάρους 286, νέφος 287; (5) poetic compounds δενδρο-κόμος 280, τηλε-φανής 281, τηλε-σκόπος 290, βαρυ-αχῆς 278, βαρύ-βρομος 284; (6) the forms ἀθανάτας (ἀτου) 289, γαῖαν 290; (7) the long first syllable of πα-τρός 277, as in Κέκροπος 301. See note on 335.

291-97. A return to the chanted anapaests. The poetic touches here, as μ'γα for μάλα, and μυκησαμένης and θεοσέπτου in 292, are meant only as bombast.

292. Note the sound play on η. — Schol. on 294 says of the theatric βροντεῖον, or thunder machine: ἦν ἀμφορεύς, ψηφίδας (pebbles) ἔχων θαλασσίας. ἦν δὲ λέβης (kettle) χαλκοῦς, εἰς ὃν αἱ ψῆφοι κατήγοντο, καὶ κυλιόμεναι (by their rolling) ἦχον ἀπετέλουν εἰκότα βροντῇ.

293. καὶ . . . γε: assents, and adds an emphatic item; aye, and. — Here, hard upon true poetry, follows, as so often in Arist., coarse jesting, which can only be condemned by modern standards, yet is left standing that the student may learn of other climes and ages than his own. — ἀντ-αποπαρδεῖν: from πέρδομαι to break wind.

294. τε-τρεμαίνω: a reduplicated τρέμω.

295. χεσεῖω: a desiderat. in -σεῖω from χέζω to go to stool; S. 616, HA. 573, G. 868.

296. οὐ μή: with subjv., usually with fut. indic., to express strong prohibition; S. 1639, GMT. 297 f., 301, G. 1361, HA. 1032 a. — Disapproval of what the "comic devils" do on the stage is a standing joke upon themselves. — τρυγο-δαίμονες, formed on analogy of κακο-δαίμονες, is a comic variant on τρυγ-ᾠδοί, lees-singers, the rustics who smeared their faces with wine-lees and sang derisive songs.

297. ᾠδαῖς: ᾠδαῖς in prose. — The Clouds having summoned each other from the ends of the earth with song (after the manner of the Valkyrs in Wagner's opera), Socrates may well say that a perfect swarm (σμῆνος) of goddesses is astir with songs.

299-313. A bird's-eye view of an ideally holy city. The student should note for himself the Doric forms and poetic diction, syntax and metre, which mark this antistrophe as the mate of the strophe.

300. λιπαράν: shining, brilliant; an epithet bestowed by Pindar, and proudly claimed and expected by the Athenians ever after; see Ach. 640.

302. οὐ σέβας: sc. ἐστί. ἀρρηγῆτα are the Mysteries. — ἵνα: where, as in 190.

303. δόμος: the temple that ἐν τελεταῖς ἀγίαις ἀναδείκνυνται, οὐρανίοις τε θεοῖς δωρήματα, 305

 νᾶοι θ' ὑπερφεῖς καὶ ἀγάλματα, καὶ πρόσοδοι μακάρων ἱερώταται,

“receives the initiated” (μύστης and δέχομαι) is in sad truth thrown wide (ἀναδείκνυνται) at the present time; it lies in ruins in the village of Eleusis, twelve miles from Athens.

305. οὐρανίοις: in contrast to Demeter and Persephone, the goddesses of the temple at Eleusis just mentioned. These belonged to the nether group (χθόνιαι).

306. Also of these high-roofed temples the ruins still stand, e.g. of the Parthenon and the The-seum: but the colossal statues (ἀγάλματα) of Athens have perished.

307. Processions most sacred to the blessed gods were especially brilliant at the Panathenaea and the Dionysia, combining the glittering cars and the equestrianism of our secular circus parade with the music of a church-pageant at St. Peter's and the sacred dance of the ancient Hebrews.

308. εὐστέφανοι: because victim, altar, priests, and banqueters all wore chaplets.

310. Over against the sacrifices and banquets of all seasons is set pre-eminently, when spring comes on, the Bromian joy, i.e. the Dionysiac festival now present, with its teasings of tuneful choruses. — The adj. βρόμος roaring (verb βρίμω), from the frequency of its application to Διόνυσος, came to be a proper name Βρόμος for the god obstreperous.

312. ἐρεθίσματα: provocatives to joy in general; or it may refer to the contests of dithyrambic, tragic, and comic choruses.

313. μούσα: music. — βαρὺβρομος: applied to the flute

(αὐλός) must be loud-sounding rather than deep-sounding. — On re-study of the ode as a whole, note the sound play in the endings of 304–309, the θ in 309, the echo in εὐκέλαδος 312 of the strophic words κελαδήματα 283 and κελάδοντα 284, the repetition of βαρύβρομος 313 from 284, and the scansion of Κέκροπος 301 and βαρύβρομος 313. A memorizing and chanting of the ode will help one to feel why Arist. is numbered among the great poets of the world.

314–438. Anapaestic tetrameters.

314. αὐται: the Clouds are not seentill 323; but Strepsiades knows they are hero-esses from their feminine voice.

315. μῶν: μὴ οὖν = 'surely not . . . , are they?'

316. ἤκιστ' ἀλλά: drop ἀλλά in transl., as in v. 204.

317. γνώμην: has many meanings: maxim, glittering generality, striking thought in a telling phrase. A glib talker with the knack of striking off such γνώμαι was called γνωμο-τύπος; cp. 952. — διάλεξιν: dialectic, the art of disputation, debate. — νοῦν: reason.

318. What the rhetorical ideals of v. 317 amount to is now given in plain Aristophanese: phrases portentous and prating, striking and catching—the last two reminding one of the famous law-firm "U. Ketchum and I. Cheatham." — περιλεξιν: merely circumlocution, not "talking round" one to deceive him. — κροῦσιν: may mean ἀπάτη deceit, as the schol. says and as it often certainly does mean; but perhaps it is better here to take it of striking, telling rhetoric. Note the series of derisive abstracts in -σις, parodying the word-formations and phraseology of the New Rhetoric.

320. λεπτο-λογεῖν, στενο-λεσχεῖν: to subtilize and quibble-ize. — κᾶπνῶ: the first syllable is long, though in 330 it is short.

321. The duel of sophists is not between brain and brawn, but between sharp and "sharper," rapier and bodkin, style and stiletto.

— λόγῳ ἀντι-λογῆσαι: word-play; to counterargue or argue back with argument.

322. After his κάθαρσις or purification, Streps. now longs to pass to the last stage of initiation, the ἐπ-οπτεία or actual vision of the gods.

323. Mt. Parnes frowns down on the Attic plain from the north.

324. αὐται: there, yonder.

325. πλάγαι: aslant, probably trailing colours of sunset and sunrise glory (ἐσθῆς ποικίλη, schol. 299).

326. ὥς: causal. — εἴσοδον: i.e. to the theatre. To break

328. ὦ πολυτίμητοι: exclamation, as in 219; not address. The word is a regular epithet of the gods; cp. 269, 293, and often. — πάντα: i.e. the whole place. — κατέχουσι: are occupying.

330. μὰ Δία: negative; O Zeus, no. Drop ἄλλά in transl., as in 204.

331-34. As in 316, it is not Socrates, but Arist. masked as Socrates, that is speaking.

331. γάρ: that is because. — ὁτιή: probably from ὅτι ἡ, that in truth; common in Arist. as in 755, 784, 1046, 1258. Cp. τιή. — βόσκουσι: to pasture, victual, provide provender; of men used only contemptuously, for τρέφω. Cp. ἄλφεια 106. — σοφιστάς: professors; from σοφίζω to make wise. The various species are named in the next verses: prophets, pill-men, p(h)ilosophers, and poets.

332. Caesura isolates the items as in 13, 225. By Thurian sooth-sayers he means such as Lampon, still high in favour as he was with Pericles, who had put him in charge of all religious matters connected with the founding of Thurii (443 B.C.), making him, as it were, Bishop of the Philippines. — ἰατροτέχνας: at this time the most famous healing artists were Hippocrates, the Father of Medicine, and Herodicus, brother of the Sicilian orator Gorgias. — μετεωρο-φένᾱκας: transcendental quacks; the early gropers in astronomy and meteorology (τὰ οὐράνια), as Anaxagoras, Hippias, Meton, Prodicus (vv. 360-61), and Diogenes of Apollonia (see on 229, 264). Astronomy was as disquieting to the established religion then as was Evolution to the modern world forty years ago.

333. τε: connects βόσκουσι in 331 with its repetition in 334; cp. 359, 566, 571, and often. — ἄσματοκάμπτας: the 'song twisters of the circle-choruses' are the poets of dithyrambs, whose music was florid with ornament and whose choruses circled about the altar and were not ranged τετράγωνοι (four-cornered) as in the drama. — σφραγίδ-κτέ.: sealring-long-nailed-dilettante-longhairs; the persistence of the type seems to prove that Arist. has here hit on the essentials, not the accidentia, of fine-art professionals. (Cp. Tennyson's "snowy-banded, dilet-

335. ταῦτ' ἄρα: see 319 n. — ἐποίουν: composed, i.e. celebrated in song. Note in the following (1) Doric ā in gen. pl. and gen. sing. (-κεφάλα), (2) long first syllable in ὑγρᾶν (cp. 320, 301, 277 καπνοῦ, Κέκροπος, πατρός), (3) poetic vocabulary, (4) compound adjectives, and (5) the sound-play with the Doric ā. These phrases may be quotation, not parody; see Introd. § 35. The student might find parallels in English literature for the ravaging rush of liquid Clouds sheen-whirling. With στρεπτ-αιγλᾶν cp. τερπι-κέραυνος in Homer.

336. To call the Clouds the tresses of hundred-headed Typhos (god of the whirlwind) would not now be held bombastic; and scorching blasts is a commonplace. But in that great period of Greek literature they seemed lurid and windy rather than simple and direct. — πρημαινούσας: an equiv. of Homeric πρήθω to blow and to burn.

337. ἀερίας διερᾶς: Homer calls the sea the wet (ὕγρῃ) as he calls morning the early (ἡοίῃ); so here the feminine adj. ἀερία serves as substantive. But the air-swimming, crook-clawed birds of the liquid airy (meaning the clouds) leaves Homer far behind.

338. ἀντ' αὐτῶν: in return for which (phrases).

339. κιχῆλα is Doric for κίχλη thrush. — Opportunity for this feasting was had by the "cyclic" poets at the training tables of the ten choruses — one for each tribe, the expenses of which were met by the rich men of the tribe in turn as χορ-ᾱγοί.

340. τάσδε: i.e. τὰς νεφέλας ἐπαινουμένας. — οὐχὶ δικαίως: sup- ply καταπίνουσι; i.e. "Is this guz- zling of goodies any more than a just recompense for their fine phrases in honour of these god- desses?" — τί παθοῦσαι: what is the matter with them that — ? S. 1279 c, HA. 968 c, G. 1566.

341. εἴξασι: 3d pl. of ἔοικα.

342. ἐκεῖναι: yonder clouds in the sky.

343. δ' οὖν: he does not know exactly; but certainly. — πιπτα- μένοισιν: prose would use ἀνα-πε- τάννυμι, here, as so often, electing the compound verb, while poetry chooses the simple.

344. ῥίνας; the schol. says that the noses were μεγάλοι and the masks in other ways ridiculous and unseemly. The business of comedy was caricature, not presentation of beauty, as perhaps we should prefer here. — Note that in comedy initial ρ will always make a preceding short syllable long except in parodies and hexameters. Here δὲ ῥίνας as if δερ-ῥίνας; cp. the written double ρ in augment (ἔρ-ρεον for example), and see 416, 647, and often.

346. ἤδη ποτέ: ever at any time, ere now. Cp. Hamlet 3. 2, where the courtier Polonius, in careful accord with the wish of the prince, finds that yonder cloud is now "like a camel," now "backed like a weasel," now "very like a whale."

349. ἄγριον: lecherous. — τὸν Ξενοφάντου: is the dithyrambic poet Hieronymus, one of the shag-heads (λάσιοι) of v. 333, and mentioned by name in Ach. 388 — possibly presenting a dithyramb at this same festival.

350. μανίαν: here is lewdness. — κενταύροις: because as half-beasts they were λάσιοι and ἄγριοι. — ἥκασαν: gnomic aor. (εἰκάζω), as seen by the mood of the conditioning clause.

351. Σίμωννα: some temporary

352. ἐγένοντο: gnomonic.

353. ταῦτα: repeats ταῦτ'; that's it then — that's why —; cp.

319. — Κλεώνυμον: in Arist. he is a corpulent coward, a greedy cormorant, a perjured flatterer. He is barked at and nipped in the heels by the poet's jokes for at least fifteen years — from Ach. to Thesm.; cp. 400, 673 ff. — χθὲς: only yesterday; referring to the battle of Delium fought six months before, where there was much "shield-throwing" by the defeated Athenians.

354. ἔλαφοι: proverbially timid.

355. καὶ . . . γαί: yes, and now; n. on 293. — Κλεισθένη: another pet abomination of the poet, serving twenty-odd years (from Ach. to Ran.) as his model of a womanish, lecherous shaveling. — Arist. counts on his presence in the audience, and of course there is a roar at his expense. — διὰ τοῦτο: that's why.

356. χαίρετε: the 24 Clouds are now all present.

357. οὐρανομήκη κτλ.: this from Strepsy proves that bombast is catching.

358 ff. Chanted for the chorus by its headman, or κορυφαῖος (κορυφή head), who always acted as spokesman when the "chorus" engaged in non-lyric dialogue with the actors. — παλαιογενές: sounds Homeric and respectful, 359. λεπτοτάτων κτέ.: O priest of subtlest twaddle; Arist. again speaks for himself, not for the character in the scene.

360. μετεωρο-σοφιστῶν: professors of the High Lights. — For ὑπακούσαιμεν see 274.

361. πλὴν ἢ: except; pleonastic, like ἀλλ' ἢ. — Προδίκῳ: professor of Synonym and Acribology (ἀκριβο-λογία) — an excellent teacher, Socrates said (Plato, Theaet. 151 b). for pupils without ideas. His σοφία is here put on a par with Socrates' strut (βρεν- θύεσθαι), squint, and other eccentricities, as sufficient reason why these vaporous goddesses should "give ear and answer."

363. ἐφ' ἡμῖν: ἐπὶ causal.

364. ὦ γῆ: O Gee; proper exclamation for a farmer, if "gee" were not slang. For the gen. following see on 153; for the word φθ' γμα, 319.

365. τοι: you know, mark you. — τᾶλλα πάντα: sc. in the way of gods or dogmas. — φλύαρος: the Athenians had before this heard the characters in Euripides' tragedies reduce the gods to nonsense.

367. ποῖος Ζεὺς: 247 n.; Zeus Fiddlesticks!—οὐ μὴ: 296 n.—
οὐδ' ἔστι: does not even exist.

368. τίς ὕει: he has in mind
Zeus's rainy epithets—ὄμβριος,

375. ὦ πάντα σὺ τολμῶν: tragic style. Streps. is shocked but interested. This tree of knowledge had never grown on farm of his.

375-78. The explanation of thunder here and of lightning in 404 ff. is not a jest of Arist., but the real doctrine of the High Lights (360) throughout antiquity, e.g. of Anaxagoras, Democritus, Aristotle, the Stoics, and Lucretius.

376. φέρεσθαι: much used of inanimate things, which go, come, or move involuntarily; so in 379, 395, 406.

377. δι' ἀνάγκην: since Pythagoras, philosophers had been "explaining" the operations of nature by ἀνάγκη, not by the gods; so in 405, and cp. 1075.

379. ὁ δ' ἀναγκάζων . . . τίς: the inevitable question which the world stubbornly puts in answer to its wise men, when they will solve the riddle of the universe by naming the process instead of the cause of the process, whether the name be Ἀνάγκη, Τύχη, Potent Matter, Evolution, Force, or Topsy's "Just Grewed."

380. αἰθέριος Δῖνος: not quite the modern Evolution, but the ancient theory of an original Revolution, or Vortex, of the atoms, which somehow formed all things and was continued in the etherial whirl of sun and stars around the earth. The philosophic term was usually δίνη; but Arist. chooses δῖνος as nearer to διός or Διός, and in preparation for the pun to come later on δίνος, the name of a deep earthenware drinking mug, wide at top and running down to a point, vortex fashion. — ἐλελήθει: just how Zeus could have been dethroned by Juice (if we may so alter his jug) the muddled old man could hardly have told. But Uranus had yielded to Cronus, Cronus to Zeus; why not Zeus to Δίνος?

382. οὐδέν πω . . . ἐδίδαξας:

Streps. is indeed ἐπιλήσμων.

385. τῷ = τίνι by what evidence. — ἀπὸ σαντοῦ: an application both of Socrates' favourite motto, γνῶθι σαυτόν, and of his method of teaching by proceeding from the known to the unknown.

386. ἤδη: ever (346). — Παναθηναίοις: a festival when all probably over-ate themselves, a prototype of our Christmas. — εἶτα: then, i.e. under the circumstances indicated by the partic. preceding.

387. κλόνος: a fine war-word of the Iliad; din, turmoil, tumult.

388. δεινὰ ποιεῖ: acts (carries on) dreadfully.

389. ζωμίδιον: wee bit of broth.

390. ἐπ-άγει: ἐπι- with the after-sense it has in ἐπ-ωδῇ, ἐπιχῶταν χέζω, κομιδῇ βροντῇ παπαπαππάξ, ὥσπερ ἐκεῖναι.

Σω. σκέψαι τοίνυν ἀπὸ γαστριδίου τυννουτοῦ ὅλα πέπορδας·

τὸν δ' Ἀέρα τόνδ', ὄντ' ἀπέραντον, πῶς οὐκ εἰκὸς
μέγα βροντᾶν;

Στ. ταῦτ' ἄρα καὶ τῶνόματ' ἀλλήλοιν, βροντῇ καὶ πορδῇ, ὁμοίω.

ἀλλ' ὁ κεραυνὸς πόθεν αὖ φέρεται λάμπων πυρί,
τοῦτο δίδαξον,

395

καὶ καταφρῆγαι βάλλων ἡμᾶς, τοὺς δὲ ζῶντας περι-φλῆει;

τοῦτον γὰρ δὴ φανερώς ὁ Ζεὺς ἴησ' ἐπὶ τοὺς ἐπι-όρκους.

Σω. καὶ πῶς, ὦ μῶρε σὺ καὶ κρονίων ὄζων καὶ βεκκε-σέληνε,

λογος, ἐπί-γονος; hence here ἐπάγειν to add or subjoin. Or the verb may be used as in military matters: to bring on or lead up troops.

392. γαστριδίου: tummykin. —
τυνν-ουτον-ι: from Doric τυννός (= μικρός) and οὔτος; this small, with a gesture. Cp. tant-illus.

394. ταῦτ' ἄρα: 319 n. — βροντῇ . . . πορδῇ: Strepsy is a true ancient in holding to a close connection between things and their names; and if things are alike their names must be alike — though the resemblance here reminds one of the proposed derivation of Middletown from Moses, by dropping -oses and suffixing -iddletown.

395. αὖ: marks the transit to lightning.

396. τοὺς δέ: while others; as if τοὺς μέν had preceded in place of ἡμᾶς.

398. καὶ πῶς: pray how? — κρονίων: Cronus reigned before Zeus. To smell of his times is to smell of wigs and knee-breeches nowadays, to be old-fashioned, antediluvian, palaeozoic. — βεκκε-σέληνε: aboriginal, or contemporary with the ancient Phrygians whose name for bread, βεκκός, was thought by some to be the oldest in the world (Hdt. 2. 2); or as old as the Arcadians who boasted of being pre-lunar (προσελήνοι). Hence βεκκεσέληνος.

399. δῆτα: uncommonly distant from the interr. πῶς. — Σίμωνα... Κλεώνυμον: the butts of 351, 353, are now joined by Θέωρος, probably some state official, who escapes oblivion solely through Aristophanes.

400. σφόδρα: with ἐπίορκοι = ἐπιορκότατοι desperately perjured.

401. ἄκρον 'Αθηνέων: a Homeric phrase (Od. 3. 278); hence long a in ἄκρον (335 n.) and Ionic -εων.

402. τί μαθών: why? Cp. τί παθών; in 340. — γὰρ δῆ: for surely.

403. οὐκ οἶδα: Poor Strepsy! He is not the first nor the last to forget to put in a "plea to the jurisdiction" before the bar of reason. — ἵστιν: "What is lightning really?"

405. ὑπ' ἀνάγκης: ὑπό with gen. rather than διὰ with acc. makes ἀνάγκης a personal agent, as we create by capital letters our modern deities Nature, Force, Evolution.

Χο. ὦ τῆς μεγάλης ἐπιθυμίας σοφίας ὠνθρωπε παρ' ἡμῶν,

ὥς εὐδαίμων ἐν Ἀθηναίοις καὶ τοῖς Ἑλλησι γενήσῃ,

407. ροίβδου: a rare word, = ροῦζος; perhaps hurling instead of the prose whirr or whistling. — ρύμης: rush, current; cp. ῥύ-σις, ῥυθμός, ῥέω.

408. Streps. is getting on; he can furnish his own illustration.
— ἀτεχνῶς: exactly. — Διασίοισι:
a festival old-fashioned and decadent at this time, sacred to Ζεὺς Μεῖλιχος and marked by family gatherings; cp. 864.

409. γαστέρα: a paunch filled with fat and blood, which was kept turning as it roasted before the fire (Hom. Od. 20. 25) — much like the Scotch haggis. — καὶ εἶτα:

connecting partic. and finite verb,
is dropped in English; so εἶτα 386, ἔπειτα 1042, καὶ ἔπειτα 624.
— ἔσχων: σχάω = σχάζω 107.
“To slacken” is “to slit”; often used of vein-cutting and bloodletting.

410. δια-λακῆσασα: λάσκω, a dear word of Euripides, is often maliciously borrowed by Aristoph-anes.

412 ff. The κορυφαῖος is as pompous as at first (358): O Mortal that hast thirsted after, etc.

413. καί: broadens the horizon to include all Greece; καὶ “augmentative.”

 ἔνεστιν
 ἐν τῇ ψυχῇ, καὶ μὴ κάμνεις μήθ' ἐστὼς μήτε καὶ φειδωλοῦ καὶ τρυσιβίου γαστροῦ καὶ θυμβρεπιδείπνου,

416. μήτε ῥιγῶν: for long τε before ῥ, see 344 n. μήτε in place of μηδέ is perhaps intentionally grandiose, after the manner of poets. — Here a bit of the real Socrates seems to be introduced; in Plato's Symposium are recorded instances of his endurance, never wearying, whether standing, walking, or freezing.

417 ff. A reversion again to the un-Socratic qualities of the hard-studying rhetorician, the water-drinker, the pale-face (ὤχρὸς 103), who shuns gymnasia and sacrifices even health to the new ambition, Success in Public Life (νικᾶν πράττων).

419. πράττων: a word much used of public activity in courts, senate, and assembly; cp. πολιτεύομαι. — γλώττῃ: τοῦτο γὰρ ὄπλον ῥήτορος (schol.). — πολεμίζων: doing battle; heroic for πολεμῶν.

420. οὐνεκα: quod attinet ad, as for —. — μερίμνης: a rather elevated word for φροντίδος of 229, 233.

421. τρυσιβίου: stingy, lit. life-wearing. — θυμβρε-πιδείπνου: in English we may generalize θύμβρα (savoury) and translate vegetarian.

422. ἀμέλει: imv., have no care, no fear, never mind. — θαρρῶν: 141 n. — παρέχοιμι: sc. ἐμαν-τόν. They can pound on his "economical stomach" as they will; he will stand the test there. In Aeschylus' Persians 51 two warriors are called λόγχης ἄκμονες anvils for the spear.

423. ἄλλο τι: sc. ἔστιν ἢ; a mere interr. nonne, or the French opening n'est-ce pas que — S. 1542, HA. 1015 b, G. 1604. Will you not indeed (δῆτα) refuse to believe (οὐ νομεῖς) henceforth in any god? οὐδένα after θεόν merely repeats the οὐ before νομεῖς.

424. In 264 f. the divinities were Air, Aether, and Clouds; here, Vacuum, Clouds, and Tongue; in 627 they will be Respiration, Vacuum, and Air.

425. Strepsy is thoroughgoing, like all quick converts. He will cut his old friends dead, if he meets them (ἀπαντάω).

426. ἐπι-θείην: sc. on the altar.

427. δρῶμεν: subjunctive.

428. θαυμάζων: venerating.

430. λέγειν: with ἄριστον.

- Χο. ἀλλ' ἔσται σοι τοῦτο παρ' ἡμῶν· ὥστε τὸ λοιπόν νῦν οὖν (τούτῳ) χρήσθων ἀτεχνῶς

 ὃ τι βούλονται·

431. τὸ λοιπόν γ' ἀπὸ τουδὶ: imposing pleonasm; hereafter from this present moment.

432. ἐν τῷ δῆμῳ: i.e. τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ. — γνώμας νικήσαι: shall put through bills, carry propositions; inner acc., as in 99.

433. μὴ 'μοί γε: sc. εἶπτε. — λέγειν γνώμας: a parliamentary phrase; to propose or make motions.

434. ὅσα: with inf. = enough to = τοσούτων ἐπιθυμῶ ὥστε. S. 1241, GMT. 759. — στρεψοδικῆσαι: the omen of his nomen. He desired only a shifty education, now called "practical."

435. ἱμεῖρεις: yearn; the prose word is ἐπιθυμῶ.

436. πρόπολοις: ministrants, temple servants, i.e. Socrates and his scholars. The new divinities take over old terms and rites, the parody of initiation is still kept up.

437. ἀνάγκη: the goddess of vv. 377 and 405 has now clutched poor Strepsiad.

439-56. Anapaestic hypermeter or "system," to be read in one breath and hence named πνίγος, a choker, or μακρόν. Strepsiad has caught the spirit of long-winded speech. See Introd. § 132 γ'.

439. τούτῳ: i.e. Streps. himself.

440. γε: restrictive and explicative, like γάρ (γ' ἄρα) and γοῦν (γε οὖν); so in 484, 1180.

441. τύπτειν: Greek active where English uses passive or a substantive substitute; for beating, hunger, thirst, dirt, etc.

442. αὐχμῶν: one is αὐχμηρὸς when his skin is rough and hard from lack of oil, and his hair needs oil or water. — ῥιγῶν: inf., not partic., as in 416. — ἄσκον δείρειν: to flay into a wine-skin is to flay one and use his skin as a wine-bottle, the Greek equiv. of "skinning alive."

443. εἴπερ: if indeed. — διαφευξοῦμαι: = μέλλω with fut. inf.; S. 1396, GMT. 407.

445-51. One of our poet's climaxes — this ambition to be reputed a brazen, glib-tongued, impudent hustler (ἴτης), a stinking concocter of lies, a phrase-making lawsuit sharper, a walking statute book, a rattling (κρόταλον) foxy "slick" one, a supple, dissembling, oily braggart, a branded, low, shifty, troublesome, dessert-licker. Could the goddess Γλῶττα desire a more aspiring worshipper?

451. ματτυ-λοιχός: this last to remind us that the parasitosophists frequented the tables of the rich — of Callias, for example — with tongues equally clever at flattery and at pheasants.

452. ἀπαντῶντες: οἱ ἀπ.

 πράγματα κἀντιγραφὰς πολλῶν ταλάντων

453. δρώντων: inv., as παραθέντων in 456.

455. χορδὴν: no dedication could be more complete!

457-75. Song and dance by the chorus. See Introd. § 135 for the rhythm, and note the elevated diction: λῆμα for φρόνημα or φύσις (mettle, perhaps, for spirit); κλέος for δόξα, with οὐρανόμηκες, making a Homeric phrase; βροτός for θνητός.

457. τῷδε: sc. Strepsiades.

458. ἴσθι: addressing him.

459. παρ' ἐμοῦ: with ἔξεις.

461 ff. Probably a parody on the εὐδαιμονία promised to all initiates into mysteries.

464. ἀνθρώπων: in the world. — διάξεις: if with the Clouds, presumably in "castles in the air."

465. ἄρα . . . ἄρα: the interr. and inferential forms in one and the same clause, said to appear only here in Attic literature.

466. ὄψομαι: the rites of initiation are being parodied throughout: after instruction in the new theology (250 ff.), renunciation of the old belief (425), and dedication to the phrontists (455 f.), there follows assurance of perfect πτεία) that the lawyers of all ages long for—a crowd of clients at their doors (469 f.).—ὥστε γε:

aye, so that.—σου: on its position (normal) see 257 n.

470. ἀνακοινοῦσθαι: reaches over to πράγματα and ἀντιγραφάς.

471. πράγματα: actions at law.
 —ἀντιγραφάς: the defences against such actions.—ταλάντων: gen.
 of the value involved.

475. ἄξια σῇ φρενὶ: worthy of thy wit; note the poetic word and the poetic omission of τῇ before σῇ.

476-509. Transition scene: entrance examination.

476 f. Chanted by κορυφαῖος to Socrates.—πρεσβύτην: not to be construed with ἐγχείρει, which requires dat. or inf., but as object of προδιδάσκειν.—προ-: first (in point of time).

477. δια-κίνει: bestir.—γνώ-μης: native wit, natural capacity.

478. The spoken dialogue is resumed.—κάτειπε: disclose, not merely tell.—τρόπον: turn, bent.

480. ἐπὶ τούτοις: thereupon, next; cp. 390 n.

481. The military phrase μη-χανὰς προσφέρειν to bring to bear engines (of war) alarms Streps., unaware of its transference to pedagogic methods of attack.

483. ἦ: is a mere interr.
 mark, like ἄρα, sensibly put at the beginning like the inverted Spanish interr. (¿) to warn one what tone of thought and voice is to come.—μνημονικός: = μνήμων in 484. The formation of adjs. in

-ικός was an affectation of the New Rhetoric; cp. 728. Streps. soon catches it, as in 747, 821, 1172 f., 1258. Cp. the craze for substantives in -σις (318 n.) and the modern one for verbs in -ize and for all words introduced by the Evolution-theory, as "survival," "adaptation," "environment." — δόο τρόπω: "yes and no."

484. γε: explicative, as in 440.

485. σχέτλιος: ill-fated man; a tragic wowl of self-pity, much affected by Euripides. — μων πάνν: identity of sound with 484 heightens the contrast in sense.

487. The joke, if any, must be the pun in λέγειν and its fut. heard in ἀποστ-ερεῖν: to hold forth and to with-hold. This is incredibly bad; but Strepsy's valour has run as low as that of Bob Acres at prospect of his duel, and he may be excusable in keeping up his spirits on any poor crutch of a joke.

488. ἀμῶλει: 422 n.

489. ὅπως: with fut. mid. ὑφ-αρπάσει; 257 n. — προ-βάλλω: Streps. goes down again on this pedagogic metaphor. He has "thrown forth" food to his dogs all his life; but he did not know that at schools men "snapped up wisdom dog-fashion" (491).

491. τί δαί: = τί δέ, but emotionalized into a long-drawn w-h-a-a-a-i! or why s-o?

493. σι: prolepsis; 95 n

495. ἐπι-σχῶν: holding on, waiting. So frequently ἐπί-σches hold on! — ἐπιμαρτύρ.: viz. to the fact τύπτομαι.

ἀνύσας τι δευρὶ θάττον. Στ. εἰς τὼ χεῖρέ νυν

496. δικάζομαι: like any true Athenian. Note the recurrent -ομαι, delivered in thoughtful, measured fashion.

497. ἴθι: that last word δικάζομαι has proved the new pupil's capacity. — ἡδίκηκά τι: the order to lay aside cloak bodes ill.

498. To enter certain initiatory rites without ἱμάτιον (i.e. γυμνός) was, in truth, the custom (νομίζεται); later Streps. will lose his shoes also (719, 858).

499. φωράσων: "Every man his own constable" in Athens. Not only must the accuser personally serve upon the accused the summons to court (1221), but he must personally search for alleged stolen goods, entering the premises, however, γυμνός, lest he carry articles in under his cloak and then pretend to find them.

500. κατά-θου: here Streps. gives up cloak, and shoes as well, forever. Socrates requires the θυμάτιον of an ἱμάτιον, as we saw in 179.

503. φύσιν: Socrates uses it in the sense of 486; Strepsiades takes it as in 276.

504. ἡμι-θνής: for Chaerephon's "nature," pale and bloodless, see n. on 104.

505. οὐ μή: with fut. indic. to express prohibition; 296 n.

506. ἀνύσας: 181 n. — θάττον: pleonastic after ἀνύσας. N.B. The comparative degree means, not "more quickly," but "(rather) quickly" (than slowly). Such is the sense of our "rather" with

507. ἐγώ: for my part.

508 f. εἰς Τροφωνίου: sc. ἀντρον.

High above a deep gorge in the wild mountain-scenery of Boeotia, the ancients for a thousand years visited the dream-oracle of Trophonius, entering by narrow aperture a subterranean cave of various chambers, full of horrors — among them serpents which had to be appeased with honey-cakes (μελιτοῦτται). Well might Streps. keep pottering (κυπτάζειν) about the door of the Cogitatorium, if its looks boded such an interior. — ἔχων: 131 n.

ΠΑΡΑΒΑΣΙΣ 510-526

On the Parabasis in the comedies of Arist. note the following essentials: that (1) its name is derived from the coming forward (παρ-βαίνειν) of the chorus; (2) it is delivered during the absence of the actors from the scene; (3) is sung in part by the chorus, in part chanted by the κορυφαῖος or κορυφαῖοι; (4) is composed in a set scheme of seven parts in fixed order, though rarely are all the parts to be found in any one parabasis; (5) is commonly a digression from the plot, concerning itself with the personal affairs of poet or chorus, with politics, or with direct abuse of some social noteworthy of the day. The parts are named below as they occur.

510-17. Κομμάτιον (little cut): chanted or sung by the κορυφαῖος as the actors depart and the chorus march or dance into position for the elaborate ballet to follow. See Intro. § 136 for the rhythm.

510. ἴθι χαίρων: "Go and God bless you": the usual formula for speeding the actor's exit. — ἀνδρείας: ironical, after his "pottering."

513. ὅτι προ-: for the long syllable ι-πρ cp. 277, 301, 313, 320, 335.

ἐς βαθὺ τῆς ἡλικίας

καὶ ταύτην σοφώτατ' ἔχειν τῶν ἐμῶν κωμωδιῶν, πρώτους ἡξίωσ' ἀναγεῦσ' ὑμᾶς, ἣ παρέσχε μοι

515. νεωτέροις: rather youthful (than elderly) activities (πράγμασι); the adj. is made emphatic by isolation, in contrast to his own proper nature.

518-62. Παράβασις proper: chanted by the κορυφαῖος. This present parabasis was written probably some five years after the failure of the play in 423 B.C. (see Hypoth. β' ad fin. and n. on 553, 558). Employing the first person ἐγὼ throughout, it seems as if Arist. intended to take the part of the κορυφαῖος himself and saucily give the Athenians a piece of his mind. On the rhythm see Introd. § 132 ζ.

518. κατ-εῶ: will tell you up and down, as we say. Cp. 478.

519. Διόνυσον: an oath by the god of Comedy "to tell the truth" is, as it were: "So help me, Blarney," or "By the Father of Lies" that reared me.

520 f. οὕτω . . . ὥς: lit. in proportion may I win the prize as; an affirmative wish-formula where English prefers a negative: May I not win the prize if I did not —. — σοφός: clever, witty. — δεξιός: = σοφοῦς; the blarney begins.

522. σοφώτατα ἔχειν: adv. with intr. ἔχειν = corresponding adj. with εἶναι.

523. πρώτους: in emphatic position; a truly American and comic "bluff" — as if, forsooth, after winning victories from the start in the capital city, he could have thought for a moment of producing his comedy elsewhere, for example, at the Rural Dionysia, or at Piraeus, or in Aegina! Translate from 520: "May I lose the prize and be deemed a fool, if I did not — because thinking you a public of clever wit and this the cleverest of my comedies — make you for that reason its first tasters." — ἐκ τούτου μοι πιστὰ παρ' ὑμῶν γνώμης ἔσθ' ὄρκια.

ἀνα-γεῖσθαι: can hardly differ from the simple γεῖσθαι.

524. ἀν-εχώρουν: withdrew from the field; a military term. — ἀνδρῶν φορτικῶν: vulgarians. All competitors of our poet were "low fellows," as he always takes pains to tell us; see Intro. § 98 and note thereto.

526. τοῖς σοφοῖς: connoisseurs.

528. ἐξ ὅτου: ever since, viz. since 427 B.C., the date of his first play, the Banqueters. — ἐνθάδε: here, in this theatre. — οἷς ἡδὺ καὶ λέγειν: whom it is delightful even to address, though winning no prize; again flattery.

529. σῶφρων . . . καταπύγων: the names of the two brothers in the Banqueters contrasted as the products of the Old and the New Education; Moralitee and Debauchee. — ἄριστ' ἠκουσάτην: purposeful slip of the memory; the play took second prize, hence was not "most highly spoken of" (ἀκούω as passive of λέγω, S. 1075, H.A. 820, G. 1241).

530. παρθένος: what fact lies back of the figure of speech is not certain — probably that he was a mere child in theatrical experience. — τεκεῖν: metaphorical for διδάσκειν, to "bring out" a drama.

531. ἐξέθηκα: the vox propria for exposing undesirable infants, as Oedipus was. — παῖς ἑτέρα: i.e. the actor or poet who brought out the Banqueters.

533. ἐκ τούτου: resumes ἐξ ὅτου of 528.

534. νῦν: i.e. at the time of this second (proposed) production of the play.—κατά: after the manner of.—ἐκείνην: the famous, viz. the Electra in Aeschylus' Choephora, 164 ff.; cp. 180 and the use of the article in Italian: il Tasso, la Patti. In the Choeph. Electra, on going to the tomb of her father, Agamemnon, to offer libation, finds fresh laid thereon a lock of hair (βόστρυχος), which her hopes recognize as that of Orestes, her long-absent brother.—ἥδε: i.e. this revised play, which shall contain a new scene (889–1104) where Δίκαιος Λόγος and Ἄδικος Λόγος are duplicates of Σῶφρων and Καταπύγων in the Banqueters; see Hypoth. β' ad fin.

536. τὰδελφοῦ τὸν βόστρυχον: her brother's lock is perhaps the applause that greeted the kindred play in 427; but this is matter of dispute.

537–43. The poet's Miss Comedy here purses her demure lips and proves her "native modesty" by setting forth the many flat stock jokes she has abstained from, though in fact all are introduced into this very play; see 653, 734, 1206–1214 (κόρδαξ), 1297, 1490, 1493, and Introd. § 98 and note.

538. σκυτίον: the leathern phallus worn by the comic actors, on which see Introd. § 95 and note, and Haigh *Attic Theatre*² 289 ff.

540. φαλακροὺς: Arist. himself was bald, and Eupolis was so unrefined as to twit him on it in his Βάπται.—εἵλκυσε: the vox propria for dancing a certain pas, but just how is not now certain.

541. ἔπη: verses.

τύπτει τὸν παρόντ', ἀφανίζων πονηρὰ σκώμματα, οὐδ' εἰσῆξε δᾶδας ἔχουσ', οὐδ' ἰοὺ ἰοὺ βοᾶ,

 κοῦκ ἐτόλμησ' αὐθις ἐπεμπηδῆσ' αὐτῷ κειμένῳ. 550

542. ἀφανίζων: trying to conceal.

543. εἰσ-ῆξε: gnomic aor., ἄπτω (ἀίσσω), going back to ἦτις in 537 for its subject.

545. οὐ κομῶ: do not wear long hair means am not proud, put on no (h)airs—making necessity a virtue.

546. εἰσ-άγων: i.e. into the play; very saucy, because even now he is refurbishing the first Clouds and re-using the ideas of the Banqueters.

547. καὶνὰς: anything but true, as just noted. — ιδέας: ideas; not here as in 289.

549. ὅς: causal; for I. — μέγιστον ὄντα: Cleon was in the height of his glory after the capture of Sphacteria in 425 B.C. — ἔπαισα: i.e. in the most savage of all his plays, the Knights.

550. If van Leeuwen's contention is true that Arist., being of foreign blood, had exhibited the Knights in his own name illegally, and was hence prosecuted by Cleon and debarred from ever again exhibiting (see Intro. § 6), then it was not Cleon who was laid low (κειμένῳ), but the poet; and the reason why he "did not have the heart to jump on Cleon again" was not lest he might repeat himself, but because he did not dare (οὐκ ἐτόλμησα) to do so. The comic impudence of the claim certainly fits well with van Leeuwen's theory. True or not, however, the comic impudence is still present in saying that he never "jumped on Cleon" again; for he plays upon him as from a masked battery throughout the Wasps and ridicules his memory for twenty years after his death (in Frogs, v. 564, 405 B.C.).

Φρύνιχος πάλαι πεποίηχ', ἦν τὸ κῆτος ἦσθιεν.

551. οὔτοι: those dull rival poets. — Ὑπέρβολος: first a lamp-seller, then, after some lessons in rhetoric (v. 876), a συνήγορος (i.e. a "friend" whom you could hire to speak for you in the law-courts); successful in this, he next aspires to office (v. 623). After the death of Cleon he emerges as προστάτης τοῦ δήμου, "champion of the people." Later on, in 417 B.C., he will be ostracized and in 411 assassinated. So ran the life of ancient pettifogger-demagogues. — λαβὴν: what particular handle for attack is not known.

552. κολετρῶσι: to trample on = ἐμπεδάω.

553. "Eupolis atque Cratinus Aristophanesque poetae" (Hor. Sat. I. 4. 1) were the three greatest comic poets of the fifth century B.C. Eupolis lived about 446-411 B.C. — Μαρικᾶν: a comedy played 421 B.C.; hence this parabasis was written after 421. — πρῶτιστον: i.e. was the first attack. — παρ-εἰλκυσεν: lugged in, not παρ-ήγαγε presented, because the Maricas was such a heavy, awkward imitation of the Knights!

554. ἐκ-στρέφας: 88 n. To this charge of plagiarism Eupolis retorted, the schol. tells us, in his next play the Βάπται, claiming to have "collaborated the Knights and presented it to this bald head." Such sallies were mere good-natured banter often paralleled in modern after-dinner speeches. We need not believe that their rivalry for the prize led to an actual breach of friendship, as is sometimes stated. See Introd. § 98.

555. προσθεὶς κτέ.: for the purpose, the schol. says, of representing the mother of Hyberbolus. Comedy spared no one; see Introd. § 97.

556. Φρύνιχος: another contemporary poet, who had travestied the story of Andromeda. In place of this beauteous princess — chained to a rock to be devoured by a sea-monster, but delivered by the hero Perseus — he had substituted a "drunken old hag whom εἶθ' Ἑρμιππος αὖθις ἐποίησεν εἰς Ὑπέρβολον, ὅστις οὖν τούτοισι γελᾷ, τοῖς ἐμοῖς μὴ χαιρέτω· ἦν δ' ἐμοὶ καὶ τοῖσιν ἐμοῖς εὐφραίνησθ' εὐρήμασιν, εἰς τὰς ὥρας τὰς ἐτέρας εὖ φρονεῖν δοκήσετε.

ὑψιμέδοντα μὲν θεῶν

the whale ate" un-delivered. Eupolis had made off with her too, if we may trust the badinage of Aristophanes.

557. ἐποίησι: composed (a comedy), as in 335, 556. This was probably the Ἀρσιπώλιδες.

558. ἄλλοι πάντες: Arist. neglects to tell us that he himself was the first to imitate Eupolis in "pressing hard on Hyperbolus", viz. in the Peace (vv. 681, 921, 1319) brought out 421 B.C. at the Dionysia only a few months after the Maricas, which had been presented at the Lenaea. He continues the sport also in this play; vv. 623, 876, 1065. — ῥ84: first Eupolis (v. 553), then Hermippus (557), and now (ἤδη). As Hyperbolus was banished early in the year 417 never to return, this parabasis was probably written in 418. Note the iteration of εἰς Ὑπέρβολον to make us feel the iteration of these parrot-poets.

559. εἰκόνες: = εἰκόνας, from εἰκῶ = εἰκών. In the Knights,

864 ff., Arist. had drawn an odious comparison between Cleon and eel-catchers, who roil the water the better to catch. Clearly these uninventive rivals had been applying his eel-comparisons to Hyperbolus, i.e. not merely imitating the Knights as a whole in its concentrated attack upon one demagogue, but even "turning it inside out" to appropriate its clever details of phraseology (λέξεις, as the schol. says).

561. εὐφραίνησθε: not an everyday word; perhaps = to joy.

562. εἰς τὰς ὥρας κτλ.: till next year or season, when your taste will be tested again; for a year anyhow they will enjoy the reputation of good sense. ὥρας plural is regular. — εὖ φρονεῖν: echoes the sound of εὐφραίνησθε. — δοκήσετε: a poetic form for δόξετε. — After the Παράβασις proper follows usually a πνίγος as in 439-56. Here it is omitted, perhaps because never written.

563-74. Ὀιδή: probably sung

Ζῆνα τύραννον εἰς χορὸν
 πρῶτα μέγαν κικλήσκω· 565
 τὸν τε μεγασθενῆ τριαίνης ταμίαν, γῆς τε καὶ ἀλμυρᾶς θαλάσσης ἄγριον μοχλευτήν· πλείστα γὰρ θεῶν ἀπάντων ὠφελούσαι τὴν πόλιν, by a half-chorus, while the other half danced. The parabasis being a digression, the Clouds may ignore their own new-made divinity and summon orthodox gods to their dance according to parabasis custom, adding only their Father Aether to Zeus, Poseidon (566), and Helios (571). Here, as in the parodos, the poet passes readily from gay to grave, from parody to poetry, as if composing an antithesis with μέν . . . δέ. There is no jocularly in the prayer. Found in a tragedy, we should admire its gravity; found where it is, it explains why the Greeks flattered themselves that Comedy was part of a religious rite. — The student will note poetic words, as ὑψιμέδοντα, κικλήσκω; poetic forms, as Ζῆνα, πέδον; poetic order, as ὑψιμέδοντα and μέγαν, widely separated from τύραννον; poetic metaphor, as ταμίαν and μοχλευτήν. For the rhythm see Introd. § 137.

575-94. Ἐπίρρημα: an Asterword (cp. ἐπί-λογος, ἐπ-φδῆ) chanted by the κορυφαῖος, while the chorus, or a half-chorus, danced. Ἐπιρρήματα always consist of 8, 16, or 20 tetrameters, i.e. of some multiple of 4; and the ἀντ-επιρρήματα are always exact counterparts. For the trochaic tetrameter here, see Introd. § 132 ζ'. Whether this piece of the parabasis was in the original play or not is a debated question.

576. ἐναντίον: face to face.

δαιμόνων ἡμῖν μόνοις οὐ θύει' οὐδὲ σπένδετε, αἵτινες τηροῦμεν ὑμᾶς. ἦν γὰρ ἥ τις ἔξοδος μηδενὶ ξὺν νῶ, τότε ἡ βροντῶμεν ἡ ψακάζομεν. 580

 τὴν θρυαλλίδ' εἰς ἑαυτὸν εὐθέως ξυνελκύσας, 585
 οὐ φανεῖν ἔφασκεν ὑμῖν, εἰ στρατηγήσει Κλέων.

578. ἡμῖν: we should expect ἡμεῖς in agreement with ὠφελούσαι; but the nom. proving unsuitable is changed; as not infrequently.

579. ἔξοδος: expedition.

580. βροντῶμεν κτί.: the ancients believed bad weather to be one of divinity's direct expressions of disfavour. Hence those who studied τὰ μετέωρα with a view to physical explanation were regarded as atheists. Perhaps some such demonstration of the weather had indeed occurred some five months before the first Clouds, when the Athenians set forth on their disastrous expedition against Delium (Nov., 424 B.C.).

581. εἶτα: secondly. — τὸν θεοῖσιν κτί.: the accursed Paphlagonian tanner is Cleon, the demagogue, son of a tanner, presented in the Knights as a slave from Paphlagonia, whose oratory was of the ebullient sort, as if from παφλάζειν to boil and froth.

582. ἡρείσθε: imperfect; "were for electing," probably at the spring elections of 423, shortly before the Clouds was presented.

583. βροντὴ κτί.: quoted from Sophocles. In Ach. Arist. has the ἐκκλησία of the people dismissed for a mere drop of rain — which need not be a comic exaggeration, for ancient superstition was very crass.

584. ἐξέλειπε: imperfect, as if only a "conative" eclipse. The sun, too, only threatened one (ἔφασκε), contracting his wick (585). Here again may be an allusion to actual bad weather, compelling postponement of the election to the next meeting of the ἐκκλησία.

586. στρατηγήσει: the minatory use of the fut. indic. in a conditional clause; S. 1410, GMT. 447, infra 1278.

ἀλλ' ὅμως εἴλεσθε τοῦτον. φασὶ γὰρ δυσβουλίαν ἐπὶ τὸ βέλτιον τὸ πρᾶγμα τῇ πόλει συνοίσεται.

ἀμφί μοι αὐτε, Φοῖβ' ἄναξ,

[ἀντῳδή]

587. φασί: Athens was often spoken of as the darling of the gods and a fool for luck.

588. προσεῖναι: the regular verb for any quality that is attached to, or inherent in, or belongs to a thing. — μέντοι: adversat., as if μέν stood after δυσβουλίαν.

590. καὶ τοῦτο: even this Cleon-election. — ξυν-οίσει: ὠφελήσει (schol.).

591. δῶρων: = δωρο-δοκίας reception of gifts. — ἐλόντες: in its legal sense; convict.

592. εἴτα: after partic. as in 386. — φῖμώσητε: the usual verb for binding in the stocks is δέιν; but if the culprit is a voracious gull (λάρος), the poet thinks muzzling (φίμοῦν) would best stop his guzzling. — τούτου: out of its usual (attributive) position, perhaps for emphasis. — τῷ ξύλῳ: a neck-pillory. The complete stocks for neck, both hands, and feet, was called the πεντε-σύριγγον ξύλον.

593. εἰς τάρχαϊον: in the old fashion, as of yore; cp. εἰς τάχος = ταχέως. — ὑμῖν: you will find. — εἴ τι καί: καί admits the fact; even if you did err a bit.

594. συν-οίσεται: (if the text is right) = συνοίσει of 590; will turn out.

595-606. Ἄντ-ωδή: sung by the second half-chorus, a hymn to Phoebus Apollo, Ephesian Artemis, Athene, and Dionysus. Again the diction becomes elevated and religious; note ἄναξ, μάκαρα, μέγας, σελαγεί, as well as the epithets applied to the divinities.

595. ἀμφί μοι αὐτε: the first words of a famous strain to Apollo by the poet Terpander in hexameters: ἀμφί μοι αὐτε ἄναχ' ἑκαταβόλον αἶδ', ὦ φρήν "Sing me again, O my Soul, of the Lord, the Far-darter of arrows." This ἀμφι-ἀνάκτα opening was so much used by the dithyrambic poets that the verb ἀμφιανακτίζειν was formed for them, and they were comically named the ἀμφιάνакτες Hallelujah-tics, or Halle-lunatics. Arist. seems here to be outdoing their propensity for soaring sentences, wherein verbs were postponed to the end, and words belonging together were widely severed; for observe that the verb αἶδε or equivalent he never reaches at all, and ἀμφί and μοι are left stranded. — αὐτε: epic word used also in tragedy.

596. Κυνθίαν πέτραν: the Cynthian rock on the island of Delos, sometimes called Mt. Cynthus, boasts a lofty horn only by authority of the poets. Its real height is some 400 feet.

598. μάκαιρα: attracted into the relative clause, instead of σὺ τε, μάκαιρα, ἧ —.

599. οἶκον: the famous temple afterwards burned, 356 B.C., on the night Alexander the Great was born. "Great is Diana of the Ephesians."

601. ἐπιχώριος: forgetting they are vagabonds, the Clouds become Athenians.

604. πεύκαις: the prose torch is λαμπάς or δῆς. — σελαγεῖ: 2d sing. mid., art aflame; poetic, 285.

605. ἐμπρέπων: the reveller Dionysus is conspicuous 'mid his Delphic bacchanals in their orgiastic night-and-nature worship, as Nausicaa μετ-έπρεπε among her ἀμφίπολοι (Od. 6. 109).

607-27. Ἄντ-επίρρημα : corresponds in length (20 vv.), in delivery (probably by κορυφαῖος of second half-chorus), in rhythm, and in dance to the ἐπίρρημα.

608. συντυχοῦσα : = ἐπιτυχοῦσα ; cp. 195.

609. χαίρειν : depends on φράσαι ; to present greetings (lit. to bid rejoice). — ξυμμάχοις : added because of their presence at the Dionysia.

610. θυμαίνειν : poetic for χαλεπαίνειν.

612. τοῦ μηνός : distributive. — εἰς : for. — δραχμὴν : internal acc. with ὠφελούσα.

614. Σεληναίης : = σελήνης ; the ending -ης after ι is an Ionism ; cp. Τριτογενεΐη 989.

615. ἄγειν : observe, keep. The basis of ancient religious calendars was the lunar month of about 29½ days. Twelve such months fell about 11 days short of the solar year. To remedy the discrepancy, the Athenians since the time of Solon had used a complicated system of intercalary months and days which was far from perfect and needed frequent adjustment. At the time of this play the adjustment had been so long neglected that Hecatombaeon 1st (the Athenian New Year's Day) now fell often in August instead of June or early July. Hence the confusion not only of the gods' fast-days, and feast-days, as they here complain, but in civil matters as well. Revenues came in late, and military officers for the new year entered on their duties when the fighting season was half over. Relief was apparently expected this year from the Amphictyonic League, which had advisory powers on the calendar. But Hyperbolus, the ἱερομνήμων or delegate appointed thereto, had returned, it would seem, without remedy (624).

620. στρεβλοῦτε: are applying torture to slaves to extract evidence—a concrete way of saying that the Athenians were holding court, we might say, on Sunday.

621. Vice versa, fast-day in Olympus fell on a week-day in Athens.—ἀπαστία: an Epic formation for the prose νηστεία, used here because Epic personages are mentioned.

622. Memnon son of Eos and Sarpedon son of Zeus were slain in the Trojan War.

623. ὑμεῖς: in contrast with ἡμῶν.—ἀνθ' ὧν: wherefore.

624. καῖπειτα: after a partic., superfluous; cp. εἴτα in 386.

625. στέφανον ἀφηρέθη: the regular phrase for deposition from office. The Clouds take it literally, as if a rainstorm had carried off his official wreath. Perhaps it was as ἱερομνήμων that Hyperbolus offered the “handle” for attack mentioned in 551.

626. κατὰ Σελήνην: to base the year on the moon again is truly orthodox and old-fashioned advice for the Clouds to give, showing how entirely the parabasis falls out of the plot. End of the Parabasis.

627–813. An ἐπ-εισόδιον (episode, or after-entrance) in the court of Socrates' house. Enter Socrates, then Strepsiades. After the entrance examination and matriculation of vv. 478–509, there now comes elementary instruction looking to ultimate Rhetoric (627–93), then an unhappy attempt at Original Research (694–782) ending in expulsion.

627. Ἀναπνοήν: Respiration; a novel dogma of Diogenes of Apollonia. See notes on 229 and 424.

630. σκαλαθυρμάτια: “Kindergarten games”; ἄθλημα = toy. — ἅττα: = τινά (ἅττα, 251).

632. αὐτόν: in person; emphatic position, as in 197. — καλῶ: fut. — πρὸς τὸ φῶς: see 198 n. The interiors of the houses of the poor were ill-lighted, as to this day, in Greece and Italy.

633. ἔξει: 2d sing. of the fut. ἔξ-ειμι. — ἀσκάντην: is the sacred σκίμπους of 254.

635. Obtaining permission of the κόρεις, the initiate brings forth his σκίμπους, probably throws over it the sheepskin (see Frontispiece and v. 730), then seats himself, a true gymnosophist, barefoot and nightgowned.

638. The “mysteries” of Metre, Rhythm, and Grammar are now to be revealed: Metre, 641, Rhythms, 647, ἔπη, 658.

640. διχοινίκῳ: dat. of meas-κατ' ἐνόπλιον, χάποῖος αὖ κατὰ δάκτυλον.

ure ; he was cheated to the amount of two quarts.

643. πρότερον: preferable to. — ἡμι-κτέον: the name τετράμετρον, Strep. thinks, must be new for the 4-choenix measure commonly called ἡμικτέος, lit. semi-sixth of a μέδιμνος.

644. οὐδὲν λέγεις: nonsense! The opposite is εἶ or καλῶς λέγεις = good notion! well said! (1092, 1289). — περι-δου ἐμοί: is, in Eng., a question: "what will you bet me?" (But why the emphatic ἐμοί?)

646. ἐς κόρακας: 123, 133; perhaps in Athens the imprecation referred to the pit, or βάραθρον (1449 n.), outside the walls, where buzzards fed on the bodies of executed but unburied criminals; to the dumping ground or garbage heap. Of course the butt of the rural joke in the eyes of the poet is Socrates, not Strepsy.

648. ἄλφита: again the key-tone of the Practical Education is heard — Victuals.

649. κομψὸν κτέ.: in sharp contrast comes here one at least of the keytones of the sophistic education — to be refined, elegant, witty, blasé, précieux.

650. ἐπαύοντα: itself a word of higher culture: to be au fait, a connoisseur in any matter.

651. κατ' ἐνόπλιον: this rhythm in the march style (Alla Marcia, or Alla Cap-a-pié) was the anapaestic tripod, while the κατὰ δάκτυλον consisted of dactyls, the two differing thus:

- Στ. κατὰ δάκτυλον; νή τὸν Δί', ἀλλ' οἶδ'. Σω. εἰπέ δῆ.
- Στ. τίς ἄλλος ἀντὶ τουτοῦ τοῦ δακτύλου;

κριός, τράγος, ταῦρος, κύων, ἀλεκτρυών.
- Σω. ὀρᾶς ὃ πάσχεις; τήν τε θήλειαν καλεῖς ἀλεκτρυόνα καὶ ταὐτὸ καὶ τὸν ἄρρενα.

- Στ. νή τὸν Ποσειδῶ. νῦν δὲ πῶς με χρὴ καλεῖν; 665

Both were used to march by; but in one you probably began with the left foot, in the other with the right. For Arist. this amounted to Tweedle-dum and Tweedle-dee.

653 f. Accompanied with some indecent gesture. — ἀντί: but, or if not.

655. ἀγρείος: = ἄγριος 349, ἀγροικός 646. — γάρ: because. — ὦζυρέ: ὦ οἷζυρέ.

656. τί δαί: 491 n.

659 ff. Instruction in ἔπη or ὀρθο-έπεια, the correct use of words, the special subject of Protagoras and Prodicus. — ὀρθῶς: the usual promise of science, pseudo-or otherwise. — ἄρρενα: the confusion of grammatical gender (γένη, genera, classes) and natural sex is for many a stumbling-block to this day.

661. ἀλεκτρυών: a "double-barrelled" joke — not only on the farmer for putting the cock among τετρά-ποδες, but on the pedant Socrates, who passes over that error to magnify one of the Attic dialect. Other dialects had the form ἀλεκτορίς for hen.

662. πάσχεις: 234 n.; cp. 708, 816.

663. καὶ . . . καὶ: and . . . also.

- Σω. ἀλεκτρύαιναν, τὸν δ' ἕτερον ἀλέκτορα.
 Στ. ἀλεκτρύαιναν; εὖ γε, νῆ τὸν Ἀέρα· ἀτὰρ τὸ λοιπὸν πῶς με χρὴ καλεῖν; Σω. ὅπως;

 τὴν καρδόπην, ὥσπερ καλεῖς τὴν Σωστράτην.

666. ἀλεκτρύαιναν: proposed on the analogy of λέαινα from λέων, θεράπαινα from θεράπων. — ἀλέκτορα: this not only marks the gender but is the poetic form; as if some modern language-reformer should propose chicker and chickress, and banish chicken.

667. νῆ τὸν Ἀέρα: Streps. can already swear in Sophistese.

669. δια-: in composition is here thoroughly. — κύκλω: adverbial use.

670. μάλα: strengthens αὖθις: a second time again. — τοῦτο: sc. ἐστί. — τὴν κάρδοπον: feminine substantives in -ος are indeed an anomalous nuisance; cp. ἡ ὁδός, νόσος, ψῆφος, πλύνθος, etc. S. 200, HA. 152, G. 194.

674. “κάρδοπος, you think (σοι), amounts to the same thing (δύναται τὸ αὐτόν) as Cleonymus” (353).

675 f. The old man, still unused to the ways of schools, supposes his teacher is talking about things, not names. He is sure he does not identify kneading-trough and Cleonymus (big-bellied though he was); for Cleonymus never even owned one—dining out when he could, or if he must knead bread, “needing” it (to suggest a substitute for the ancient joke) in a mortar (θυνεία, a vessel small and unfit for the purpose).

678. I.e. change -ος to -η, and say troughy, as you do Susy, Polly, Sostraty.

 Στ. οὐκουν δικαίως, ἥτις οὐ στρατεύεται;
 ἀτὰρ τί ταῦθ', ἃ πάντες ἴσμεν, μανθάνω;

679. ὀρθῶς: again "scientifically," before everything else.

680. ἦν ἄν: would be. — Κλεωνύμη: this is what popular education leads to! Cp. the modern "Anybody's else" (for "anybody else's") and "Don'tt eeyou?" (for "don't you?").

681. First came the grammatical gender of animals 659, next of things 670, now of people.

684. Λύσιλλα κτί.: women who were perhaps more "talked about among men" than Pericles would have liked (Thuc. 2. 45. 2).

686. We know from Wasps 74 and 1267 that Philoxenus was of the same stripe as Amynias (Clouds 31 and 1259 ff.); hence probably Melesias too — all παῖδες ἀγένητοι (beardless), devoted to the turf.

688. ὑμῖν: in your judgment.

689. ἐν-τυχῶν: = συν-τυχῶν 608 = ἐπι-τυχῶν 195.

690. Ἀμυνία: the vocative does give him the air of a ladylike gentleman.

692. ἥτις: causal; when she. — οὐ στρατεύεται: an informal charge of ἀ-στρατεία; or perhaps he has just got his mission as ambassador to Thessaly (Wasps 1271) and hence is exempt from military service.

693. τί: to what end?

Σω. οὐδέν, μὰ Δί', ἀλλὰ κατακλινεῖς δευρὶ — Στ. τί

694. οὐδέν: to no end; the impatient question gets an exasperated answer. Socrates is done with him. — ἀλλά: still, he will allow Strepsy one more trial. — δευρὶ: i.e. on the ἀσκήτης.

694-726. First experiment in Original Research: vitiated by bedbugs.

697. χαμαί: in emphatic position. — αὐτὰ ταῦτα: the same must refer to his own πράγματα of 695; or could the phrase be adverbial (just this way)? Socrates' response fits well to this meaning, viz., There is no other way but this (698).

699. οἷαν: excl. — Socrates here either withdraws or falls into one of his long fits of abstraction.

700-05. An ode addressed to Streps. For the rhythm see Introd. § 138. Comparison with the ἀντιψδῆ 804-10 shows that two lines are lacking.

700. φρόντιζε δῆ: now think away (pres., not aor.); a comic take-off on all φροντιστήρια.

701. σαυτὸν πυκνώσας: concentrating yourself. He probably executed the other commands (διάθρει, στρόβει, πῆδα) bodily, not mentally, to the delight of the audience. Here too, however, as in 661, the real satire lies deeper, viz. on Socrates' desultory logic in word-fencing. Anywhere in Plato's dialogues we find him, "if landed in perplexity," leaping elsewhere.

703. ταχύς: in prose ταχέως.

705. Highly poetic: φρήν, γλυ-κύθυμος, ὄμμα. The irony is hard on poor Strepsy, as he "twists and bounds."

707 f. Tragic rhythms from the prostrate and covered form:
ἄτταταῖ makes a Cretic foot ($\frac{5}{8}$ ♩ ♩ ♩), τί πάσχεις a Bacchius (♩ | ♩ ♩), repeated in τί κάμνεις. As if: "what grief now | afflea-cts thee?"

709. δείλαιος: tragic, as in 12 and always.

710. Κορ—ίνθιοι: instead of κόρ-εις; as if Bed-ouins. As chief instigators of the war, the Corinthians were in truth the plague of Athens.

711 ff. Lugubrious anapaests, made more so by the dull, hopeless iteration of the same verse-ending; they parody the anapaestic laments of tragedy. — δαρδά-πτουσι: an Epic word; to gorge or devour ravenously.

712. ψυχὴν: life-blood.

717. καὶ πῶς: pray how can I grieve overmuch (λίαν)? — ὅτε:
now that (causal).

718 ff. A wicked parody on the φρούδη ψυχή, φρούδη δ' ἐμβάς·

719. ἐμβάς: he has become ἀν-υπόδητος, like the rest of this barefoot brotherhood (103).

721. φρουρᾶς: gen. of time;
cp. νυκτός, χειμῶνος, αἰθρίας (371).
There is also sound-play with φρούδος. His singing on sentinel duty is not wholly voluntary, in view of the "Bedouins."

722. ὀλίγον: almost. — Socrates returns.

723. οὗτος: here; English prefers dem. adv. to dem. adj.

726. The order Begone comes too late; Strepsy has just been bug-on-ed.

727-34. Second bout at Original Research, with nugatory result.

728. Streps. must exercise the faculty of philosophers and thieves — abstraction; he must find for himself his (s)peculative notion.
On adj. formation in -ικός see 483 n. — νοῦς: = νόημα (705, 743),

729. ἀπ-αιόλημα: tragic for ἀπάτη. — Socrates again abstracts himself. — τίς ἂν: a common tragic way of expressing a wish;
would that some one —. — ἐπι-over him the sheepskin (Διὸς κωδίων) used in purificatory rites.

is the joke (or the reality) of "riding the goat" in initiations?) Because of this literal "throwing on" of the σισύρα, Streps. uses ἐπι-βάλλω, instead of the usual ἐμ-βάλλω or ὑπο-βάλλω to suggest.

730. ἐξ ἀρνακίδων: from the lambskins; with a play on ἐξαρνη-τικῶν (1172; cp. ἔξαρνος 1230, and ἐξαρνεῖσθαι to deny) — hence the need for the tragic omission of the article τῶν. Out of the fleeces he sighs for some fleeceing scheme; or out of the skins some skin-flint plan. — ἀπο-στερητρίδα: he fails to catch the new adj. in -ικός (728), but has not forgotten his grammar lesson in genders, so forms a special feminine on analogy of ἀρνακίς. — Silence. Long Pause. Socrates abstracted.

731. ἀθρήσω: subjv. after φέρε; cp. φέρ' ἴδω 21, GMT. 257.

735-47. Third essay at Original Research with encouraging results — at first.

736. περὶ τοῦ: what about?

737. αὐτὸς . . . πρῶτος: this is the pedagogic doctrine of the real Socrates, that initiative must come from within; see 137 n.

740. καλύπτου: the pedagogue tends throughout to elevated diction; plain prose here would use a compound as in 735, 727. — σχάσας κτέ.: ease off your mind to rarity (lit. so as to be subtle); cp. 107, 409 for σχάζω, and 229 for the kinship of φροντίς and ἀήρ.

741. πράγματα: troubles.

742. ὀρθῶς δι-αιρῶν: with scientific analysis; again the catch-words of the day. δι-αιρεῖν was the technical method alike of Socrates and of the sophists. — οἷμοι τάλας: a tragedy is going on.

743. ἀπορῆς: construed with τι, not with νοημάτων; are in a quandary over.

745. ζυγώθρισον: perpend; the genealogy of the word is probably ζυγόν (yoke of a balance), ζυγώω, ζύγωθρον, ζυγωθρίζω. — Silence. Long Pause. Then Streps. shows his head from beneath the coverlet.

747. He at last has caught the -ικός adj.

748. τὸ τί: namely, what? French lequel?

749. φαρμακίδα: Thessalian witches were recognized masters of magic, even to deducing the moon from heaven. Thessalian drugs and incantation still held their repute in Horace's time (Epode 5. 21 and 45); his Canidia boasts polo deripere lunam vocibus meis (Epode 17. 77) — unless indeed Horace is merely adapting from old Greek sources. — εἰ: is our familiar supposing. — πριάμενος: may mean only to purchase the services of.

751. αὐτήν: bodily; in emphatic position. — λοφείον: properly a case for a crest (λόφος);

Greek Mirror.

755. ὅτιγ' τί δή : because why?

756. κατὰ μῆνα : cp. the old word μῆνη moon.

757. εὖ γε : bravo! Sarcastic, as we see by the issue in 781 ;
 but taken seriously by poor Streps., pleased and proud of his first δι-αίρεσις and his first ascension among τὰ μετέωρα. (If εὖ γε be spoken not ironically, but sincerely, then Arist. means to ridicule both for fools.) — προβαλῶ :
 489 n.

758. γράφοιτο : registered, sc.
 on the waxen tablet of the court calendar.

759. ἀφανίσῃς : in the legal sense to quash ; but the pupil takes it literally to cause to disappear.

760. In his halting perplexity Streps. allows four feet of the verse to fall apart.

761 f. There must be no coop- ing up of the intellect, no concentration; a cloud-worshipper should have a rarefied mind.

763. μηλολόνθην: cockchafer. Little beetles thread-tied by the foot are still found in the tropics, worn by young ladies as ornaments. — Silence. Pause.

764. ἡῦρηκα: Eureka! Why should not Streps. have the credit for this famous exclamation rather than Archimedes two hundred years later?

766. ἤδη: ever (346). — φαρμακοπώλαις: besides his drugs and burning-glasses, the pharmacist sold magic rings and other rarities. Cp. the apothecary's shop in Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet 5. 1.

768. ἄπτουσι: cp. 18 ἄπτε λύχνον. — λέγεις: do you mean?

769. τί δῆτ' ἄν: cp. 154.

770. ὁ γραμ.: the clerk of the court.

771. πρὸς τὸν ἥλιον: cp. 198.

772. ἐκ-τῆξαιμι: to melt out the letters would indeed be an ἀφάνισις of the suit.

773. νῆ τὰς Χάριτας: an uncommon oath, but appropriate to the graceful wit of Strepsy's scheme, which is a second practical application of science to the moral problems of life. Ironical probably; but see n. on 757.

774 f. δια-γέγραπται: stricken through, cancelled. — ξυνάρπ.: differs from ὑφαρπάζω 490.

ἐπιλησμότατον καὶ σκαιότατον γερόντιον ; 790

776. ἀντιδικῶν: partic.; if defendant. — δίκην: with ἀποστρέψαι.

777. ὀφλήσειν: see 34 n.

778. φαυλότατα: as easy as lying. He waxes proud; but alas, "Pride goeth before a fall." — καὶ δὴ: = ἤδη at once.

779. πρόσθεν: i.e. before mine. — ἐνεστῶσης: pending.

780. καλεῖσθαι: i.e. by the court crier. — ἀπαγξαίμην: this is Original Research (εὐρεσις) with a vengeance! But the satire is on the Higher Education as much as on the rustic.

781. οὐδὲν λέγεις: nonsense!

—Undone, but unrealizing it, Streps. talks back: "By the gods but I do" talk sense.

784. ναί: "O do;" tragically, for the blow has fallen.

785. ἐπιλήθῃ: ἐπιλανθάνει is the prose form. — καί: before the verb often means emphasis on the Eng. auxiliary; "whatever you do learn."

787. μέντοι: really, indeed.

789. ἀποφθερεῖ: = ἀπειφούμενος.

790. ἐπιλησμότατον: usually -μονέστατον. — Socrates turns away in high dudgeon or in abstraction.

- Στ. οἴμοι, τί οὖν δῆθ' ὁ κακοδαίμων πείσομαι ;

792. ἀπο . . . ολοῦμαι: tmesis.
 — γλωττο-στροφεῖν: to ply the tongue.

794 ff. Spoken by the κορυφαῖος in measured tragic trimeters, i.e. with no "resolutions" of long syllables into two shorts.

797. ἔστι: emphatic by position and by γε; "I have a son, it is true." — καλὸς τε κάγαθος: 101 n.

798. γάρ: since. — τί ἐγὼ πάθω: "what am I to do?"

799. εὐσωματεῖ: is brawny-bodied; prose would be εὐρωστος τῷ σώματι or τὸ σῶμα, or the like.
 — σφριγᾷ: is lusty; also poetic.

800. ἐκ: of origin; = descendant, scion of. — εὐ-πτέρων: a word of high diction, hence "of the élite" rather than our scornful "high-flyers." — τῶν Κοισύρας: daughters of —; see 48 n.

802. οὐκ ἔσθ' ὅπως οὐκ: most certainly; so in 1307.

803. Addressed to Socrates. Streps. hastens from the αὐλή across the street into his own house.

804-13. As Socrates retires (εἰσελθὼν 803), the chorus address him, as in the φθῆ they had sung to Streps. (700-05).

μόνας θεῶν ; ὥς 806
 ἔτοιμος ὃδ' ἐστὶν ἅπαντα δρᾶν, ὅσ' ἂν κελεύῃς.
 σὺ δ' ἀνδρὸς ἐκπεπληγμένου καὶ φανερῶς ἐπηρ-

 Φε. ὦ δαιμόνιε, τί χρῆμα πάσχεις, ὦ πάτερ ;
 οὐκ εὖ φρονεῖς, μὰ τὸν Δία τὸν Ὀλύμπιον.

810. ἀνδρὸς: since the reference is definitely to Streps., the omission of article is poetic. — ἐκπεπληγ.: dazed, perhaps with admiration of Socrates, as the schol. says (ἐπαινούντος). — ἐπηρ-μένου: excited, eager; 42, 1457.

811. ἀπολάψεις: fut. indic. as inv.; λάπτω to lap, used of wolves and dogs, is easily transferred to human creatures of prey.

812. ταχέως: by position is a nota bene postscript; and quickly.
 — φιλεῖ: is apt. — ἐτέρᾳ: adv.
 — Exit Socrates.

At about the middle point of many Greek dramas a new central character or theme is assumed.
 Here the new-schooling of the old generation is dropped as hopeless, that of young Pheidippides is essayed, with complete success.

814–88. Another ἐπ-εισόδιον, introductory to this second theme.
 Streps. issues, leading his brawny hopeful.

814. μὰ τὴν Ὀμίχλην: by Fog; swearing in terms of the New Religion is as far as the befogged Strepsy can get in it — which often happens. — ἐνταυθοῖ: sometimes = ἐνταῦθα; it was not inelegant, as is the corresponding Eng. “he was not to home.”

815. The command to “go and eat the pillars of his great-uncle Megacles” (124) may mean only wild rage in Streps. or may be “biting” irony for the historic Megacles (see v. 46), if the scho-liast's story is true that only the pillars of his house remained after a spendthrift life.

817. οὐκ εὖ φρονεῖς: you are

- Στ. ἰδού γ' ἰδού, 'Δί' 'Ολύμπιον'· τῆς μωρίας, καὶ Χαιρεφῶν, ὃς οἶδε τὰ ψυλλῶν ἔχνη.

- Φε. σὺ δ' εἰς τοσοῦτον τῶν μανιῶν ἐλήλυθας, not in your right mind; a frequent phrase.

818. ἰδοί: "listen to that." — τῆς μωρίας: gen., as in 153.

819. νομίζειν: exclamatory inf.; 268 — τηλικουτονί: cp. 799.

820. ἐγέλασας: present in Eng.; 174.

821. Here is topsy-turvydom truly Aristophanic: a little old man with new-fashioned notions vs. a strapping young man with old-fashioned ones. — On ἀρχαϊκᾶ see 483 n.

822. ὁμως γε μὴν: = ἀλλ' ὁμως; 631.

823. ὃ μαθὼν κτί.: "that will make a man of you"; with the Stress Triumphant, as when Archimedes said: δός μοι ποῦ στῶ, καὶ κινῶ τὴν γῆν.

824. ὅπως μὴ: with aor. subjv. to express prohibition; S. 1191, G. 1354, GMT. 283. Cp. ὅπως with fut. indic. v. 257. Streps. has caught the "mysteries" from the μαθητής in v. 143.

827. Confidentially and perhaps a little fearfully.

828. Δῖνος: 380.

829. αἰβοί: 102.

830. ὁ Μήλιος: the best-known atheist of the day came from the island of Melos, viz. Diagoras. The joke is as if Streps., some twenty-five years ago, had said

- ὥστ' ἀνδράσιν πείθει χολῶσιν; Στ. εὐστόμει καὶ μηδὲν εἴπης φλαῦρον ἄνδρας δεξιούς καὶ νοῦν ἔχοντας· ὦν ὑπὸ τῆς φειδωλίας 835

γνώσει δὲ σαντὸν ὡς ἀμαθὴς εἶ καὶ παχύς.
ἀλλ' ἐπανάμεινόν μ' ὀλίγον ἐνταυθοῖ χρόνον.
Φε. οἶμοι, τί δράσω, παραφρονούντος τοῦ πατρός;

"Robert G. Socrates," the audience expecting "Ingersoll."

833. χολῶσι: χολᾶν = μελαγχολᾶν = μαίνεσθαι = παραφρονεῖν = οὐκ εὖ φρονεῖν. — εὐστόμει: cp.
εὐφημεῖν 263; high-sounding for σιῶπα of 105, and followed by a "tragic" trimeter (794 n.).

835. ὑπὸ τῆς φειδωλίας: from their thrift, not because they were low fellows (πονηροί), as Pheidip. thought (v. 102). Satire, of course, as the bath-fee was only two coppers (χαλκοῦς). The fling at Socrates as sparing of ointment and bath is true; even his pupil Plato has him bathed and sandalled only on grand occasions (Symph.
174 a.).

838. ὥσπερ τεθνεώτος: this is the regular position for a ὥσπερ-clause, viz. before the main word (here μου), not after, as in Eng.

— κατα-λῶει: 2d sing. mid., and ου short, as often οι in ποιεῖν.
κατα- (δοῦν) in Greek verbs often = up with Eng. verbs, as in to finish up, to clean up, wash up, pack up, i.e. thoroughly. Here to bathe up a property (βίον) is to squander it, to pour it out like water. So in Latin e-lavo, e-luo.

839. ὑπὲρ: cp. ἀντί 796.

840. καί: see n. on 785.

841. ἄληθες: exclamation, distinct from ἀληθές; so, really now, indeed (ironical). — ἐν ἀνθρώποις:
in the world.

842. The commonest of Greek proverbs was γνῶθι σαντόν. — παχύς: thick-headed, fat-witted.

845. παρανοίας: gen. of the charge. — εἰσαγαγόν: sc. εἰς τὸ δικαστήριον.

846. σοροπηγοῖς: ἵνα ποιήσωσιν αὐτῷ σορὸν δηλονότι ἐγγὺς ὄντι θανάτου (schol.). — Re-enter Streps. with cock and hen.

850. καλεῖν: infinitive for imperative.

853. γη-γενεῖς: regular epithet of the earth-sprung giants who once stormed Olympus to unseat the gods, as now these sophist-giants proposed to replace Zeus by "Juice" (Δίνος).

855. ἂν: iterative, as in 54.

856. θοιμάτιον: "sacrificed" at v. 500.

857. κατα-πεφρόντικα: κατα- as in 838. Streps. has worn out his coat by thinking — the reason, perhaps, for its disappearance among modern college men.

858. τέτροφας: τρέπω.

859. εἰς τὸ δέον: see Intro. § 48. Pericles' entry of the sum he spent was εἰς τὸ δέον ἀνήλωσα. Poor Strepsy's variant is ἀπώλεσα!

861. ἐξ-άμαρτε: be as bad as you like (ἐξ-).

οἷδ' ἐξέτει σοι τραυλίσαντι πιθόμενος·

καὶ τῶν κρεμαθρῶν οὐ τρίβων τῶν ἐνθάδε.

Φε. αὐτὸς τρίβων εἷης ἄν, εἰ κρέμαίό γε. 870

862. τραυλίσαντι: Alcibiades, in part the original of Pheidip. (see n. on 46), must have kept his baby-lisp through life as seen in Wasps 44 ff. See also on 872 infra.

863. ὀβολόν: this antecedent of ὃν has been incorporated into the ὃν-clause and attracted into the ὃν-case; in the next verse it recovers its proper case (gen. of price with ἐπριάμην) in its proxy τούτου.

864. Διασίοις: 408 n. and Introd. §§ 51, 59. — ἀμαξίδα: a toy chariot, or it may be a gingerbread one. Sonny's "horse-complaint" had set in early.

865. Pheidip. yields; but, with the irony so common in tragedy, he, his father's only hope, is made here the first to give unheeded warning that he will prove his father's curse. — ἡ μὴν: regular initial phrase of a serious oath. — τῷ χρόνῳ ποτέ: some day.

867. ἔξελθε: Socrates issues.

868. νηπύτιος: a childling; Epic dim. of νήπιος (105). Socrates uses it ἵνα καταπλήξῃ τὸν νεώτερον (schol.). — γάρ: that's because; gives the reason for the unwillingness (ἄκοντα) of Pheidip.

869. κρεμαθρῶν: the poetic lengthening of α before θρ in comic iambic trimeter (see n. on 513) must be meant as an affected elegance on the part of Professor Socrates. So also seems to be τρίβων in the especially Euripidean sense of versed in (with gen.). — τρίβων: if κρεμάθρα is translated hanging basket (218 n.), we may then use for τρίβων our phrase to have the hang of a thing, for the sake of the joke in the next verse.

870. τρίβων: an old ἱμάτιον that had often gone to the fuller's to be suspended and "flogged" (τρίβω) in cleaning was called τρίβων — we might say a scrub or knock-about. The impudent answer of Pheidip. is therefore: "you would have the hang of a scrub yourself, if you were suspended."

872. ἰδοὺ 'κρέμαιο': listen to your "κρέμαιο"! It is not the youth's impudence that offends Socrates (that was a hopeful sign in "Young Athens"), but his broad pronunciation of -αι-, whereas cultured Athenians had begun to shorten such words as κλαίω to κλάω, καίω to κάω. Pheidip., being a sort of Tony Lumpkin, had said h-i-g-h-sted for hoisted; cp. the colloquial δαί for δή, ναί for νή. Or possibly Pheidip. lisped his ρ (see n. on 862), as Alcibiades does in Wasps 45 (ὀλᾶς for ὀρᾶς, κόλακος for κόρακος).

873. διερρηκόσι: wide apart (lit. flowing apart). Quintilian warns against this in Instit. Or. I. 11. 9: "Observandum erit etiam, ut recta sit facies dicentis, ne labra distorqueantur, ne immodicus hiatus rictum discindat."

874 f. As in 318, a string of rhetorical abstracts in -σις, the last one probably a novelty of Arist. Dropping the literal meanings (which should be noted), we may translate "the arts of exoneration, citation, and persuasive quash-ation," these belonging to defendant, plaintiff, and advocate respectively. χαυνώ is to make porous, spongy (χαῦνος); hence to make light of your opponent's argument.

876. καίτοι γε: "and yet"; spoken musingly. — ταλάντου: a hit at Hyperbolus and a hint for Strepsiades. If Hyperbolus succeeded, there is hope for — the rich-enough.

877. θυμόσοφος: of clever wit; εὐφυνής, ἐκ τοῦ ἰδίου θυμοῦ σοφός (schol.).

878. τυννουτονί: teeny-weeny; with a gesture, as in 392.

881. πῶς δοκεῖς: once a real question the phrase had become a mere adverb; you can't think how nicely.

882. ὅπως: with fut. indic., as in 257.

885. εἰὰν δὲ μή: i.e. if not both.

887. ἀπέσομαι: ἄπ-ειμι; exit Socrates, Streps. calling after him.

888. τὰ δίκαια: cp. 1315, 1339.

What the original play contained in place of 889-1114 it is now idle to speculate. The present verses are a substitution, as we learned from Hypoth. β'. If the Ravennas manuscript presents the text here as Arist. finally left it, he must have intended to write a song for the chorus but got no further than the title.

889. The Just and Unjust Arguments now appear before Pheidip. (and Streps.?) to present their respective methods of education, the old and the new. The schol. says they were costumed as fighting cocks and brought out in wicker cages. This seems fantastical to us, but is probably the truth. In Athens at that time bird costumes and cockfights were popular. — The rhythm for 889-

922 ff. φάσκων: as in 895. — A sententious, ragged beggar in Euripides' Telephus turns out to be Telephus himself, the king of Mysia. So, Arist. thinks, this rascally New Learning, this spruce Success, had formerly the ill repute of a beggar munching his scraps of pettifogger's wisdom.

As Athens at this period delighted in contests between athletes, musicians, triremes, legal disputants, fighting cocks and so on, not to mention her 27-years' war with Sparta, so also in most comedies a contest in words was offered. This debate took place in a form fairly fixed though admitting considerable freedom, viz. (1) a song by the chorus, (2) a summons to the combat two lines long from the κορυφαῖος, (3) the first speech (the chorus probably standing and not dancing), (4) an antistrophic song, (5) the antistrophic summons to the second speaker, (6) the second speech, and finally in some cases (7) a decision or award to the victor (κρίσις). — In this play the altercation in anapaests just concluded has been merely a wordy skirmish comparable to that between Homer's heroes before the real fray began (Mazon).

956. ἀνείηται: is let loose (ἵημι), as if κίνδυνος were some savage beast.

959 f. First exhortation (κατα-κελευσμός). The κορυφαῖος is a sort of Master of the Tourney, and shows the same grandiloquence as in 358 and 412. His formulaic two lines always set the metre for the disputant who follows — here anapaestic tetrameter (Introd.

 § 132 β').

960. ῥῆξον φωνήν: cp. 357, and rumpe vocem, to utter forth. — αὐτοῦ: = σεαυτοῦ, as often.

961-1023. Right Logic sets forth the old-time schooling of the heroes of Marathon, or, we might say, of Bunker Hill.

962. ἐγώ: emphatic. — σωφροσὺνη: sobriety, moderation, continence, mens sana. — ἐνενόμιστο: was the rule and custom, was current.

963. γρύξαντος: cp. 945.

964. εὐτάκτως: because walking dis-orderly in the streets betokened the slave, as the comic poet Alexis tells us. — εἰς κιθαριστοῦ: i.e. to his house; S. 870, HA. 730 a. From about ten to twelve years of age the boys had already learned reading and writing ἐν γραμματιστοῦ.

965. τοὺς κωμήτας: those of the same village or of the same ward (κώμη) in Athens. — γυμνοὺς: i.e. in tunic only, not wrapped up as now (987). — κατανείφοι: νείφω, not νίφω, seems to be proved the correct spelling.

To "snow barley meal-like" is our "raining cats and dogs."

966. προμαθεῖν: to learn betimes or early; cp. 476. — τῷ μὴρῷ κτί.: without holding thighs together — an unseemly posture.

967. Παλλάδα κτί.: the first words of two old national hymns: "Pallas the Sacker of Cities dread" and "A far-faring Strain." The words περσέπολις and τηλέπορος (and βόαμα?) were quaint and poetic in Aristophanes' time.

968. ἐντειναμένους κτί.: pitching or setting them to the key. ἁρμονίαν seems to be the "internal" object of the verb. The ἁρμονία "handed down by the fathers" was the Dorian, the three others (Phrygian, Lydian, Ionian) being imported from Asia.

Αδ. ἀρχαῖά γε καὶ Διπολιώδη καὶ τεττίγων ἀνάμεστα

969. βωμολοχεύσαιτο: played the fool. — καμπήν: a turn, musical flourish.

971. Φρῦνιν: this Phrynis, a player and singer of nomos (one of the grave and ancient forms of Greek song), had taken over from the dithyrambists (ἄσματο-κάμπται 333) trills and twists so difficult to turn that only expert musicians were equal to them.

972. πολλάς: sc. πληγὰς.

981. ἀνελέσθαι: to help himself to (mid.). — κεφάλαιον: the head, i.e. the bulb. — The article τῆς accompanies ραφανίδος because the radish was a regular relish; cp. "the salt," "the butter."

982. ἄννηθον: anise and parsley (σέλινον) illustrate the simple old-time fare. — πρεσβυτέρων: gen. of separation, as if the verb were ἀφ-αρπάζειν.

983. ὄψο-φαγεῖν: in modern parlance to make his dinner off the relishes and sweets. Also tittering (κιχλίζειν) and holding the legs (τὸ πόδε) crossed have survived, as children have.

984. The Dipolia was a bloody old festival to Ζεὺς Πολιεὺς, otherwise called Βουφόνια from its chief ceremony, the slaughter of an ox. Διπολι-ώδης would be for us "Candlemas-ish" or "Shrove-Tuesday-ish." — τέττιξ. (grasshopper or tree-cricket) was the name given to some ornament — a golden spiral or frontlet or what-not — used by men of the Marathon period to fasten up their long hair. It was as much out of fashion at Athens in 423 B.C. as are wigs with us.

985. Κηδείδου: thrown in with these antiquities, comes suddenly the name of this contemporary dithyrambic poet — a comic way of putting him too out of date. But an inscription of about 415 B.C. shows that he survived the gibe and was still composing dithyrambs. — ἀλλ' οὖν: well, anyhow; cp. δ' οὖν 343.

987. ἐν-τετυλίχθαι: to go bundled up (perf.). τυλίττω from τύλη a cushion.

988 f. ἀπ-άγχεσθαι: to choke, i.e. with rage. — ὀρχεῖσθαι: at the Panathenaic festival young men danced the famous Pyrrhic war dance, naked and armed only with helmet and shield. But the youth who had always been “coddled” in cloaks found his shield more useful to keep his abdomen warm than to brandish in warrior-fashion. This was neglectful of the honour of Athena the war-goddess Τριτογενεΐη. For the form of this last see n. on 614.

990. πρὸς ταῦτα: in view of this.

992. φλέγεσθαι: to burn in the cheeks, to blush; or perhaps to blaze up with resentment.

993. θάκων: θᾶκος is rather poetic for ἔδρα or θρόνος.

994. σκαιουργεῖν: to be a σκαι-οῦργος, a doer of σκαιά or loutish, ill-mannered acts.

995. τῆς αἰδοῦς τᾶγαλμα κτέ.: to mould or model the ideal of modesty in your heart (lit. the image or statue of modesty, as of a goddess). πλάσσω, whence πλαστικός, our plastic art.

996. εἰς: with gen., as in 964. The ὄρχηστρίς would be the modern ballet girl. — πρὸς ταῦτα: sc. τὰ πράγματα or τὰ γύναια wenchies.

997. μήλῃ βληθείς: to be struck playfully with an apple was the sign of being favoured in love. So Verg. Ecl. 3. 64: malis me Galatea petit, lasciva puella. — ἀπο-θραυσθῆς: ἀντὶ τοῦ ἐκπέσης (schol.); i.e. as if one's εὐκλεία were a chariot.

998. ἀντ-ειπεῖν: to talk back.
— Ἰαπετὸν: Iapetus was an elder brother of Cronus, hence even more antiquated.

999. μνησι-κακῆσαι κτί.: i.e.
by calling him "Methuselah" to call to his mind maliciously his own (long-past) youth, from which you were nested. νεοττός is a nestling bird.

1001. This Hippocrates, nephew of Pericles, and brave soldier, had lost his life in the battle at Delium six months before the first Clouds was given. But his sons were the butt of many jokes for their swinishness (ὕηνία). — νιέσιν: = νιόεσιν, with a pun on the Epic ὕεσιν from ὕς, as if they were the swi-ens of Hippocrates instead of scions. — εἴξεις: fut. of (the virtually present) ἔοικα. — βλιτο-μάμμαν: a honey-mamma;

i.e. a spoiled child that begged
"Honey, Mamma," Greek honey being our sugar. βλιτο- = με-λιττο-. Cp. συκο-μάμμας, "Figs, Mamma."

1002. ἀλλ' οὖν: 985. — λιπαρός: from open-air life and the use of ointment after gymnastics.

1003. στωμύλλων: στόμα gives στομύλος mouthy, hence στωμύλλω to babble, chatter. Modern slang fixes on the chin or the jaw, from which to form its verbs of like import. — τριβολ-εκτράπελα:
burry-oddities; we might say thorny problems.

1004. ἐλκόμενος: i.e. into court.
— πραγματίου κτί.: a trifling action-at-law of an obstinacious-disputation-ruinative sort.

The Academy was at that time a gymnasium, famous for the grove and shady walks and race-courses provided by Cimon's liberality, but later to be made forever famous by the teaching there of Plato. 1006. καλάμῳ: in honour of the Dioscuri, patron saints of knighthood.

1007. μῦλαξ was an ivy-like vine with white lily-like flowers;

we might substitute "morning-glory." — ἀπραγμοσύνης: is listed between smilax and silver poplar, as Kedeides was among the antiquities (985); translate by sans-souci or lazy-daisy or idle-heart's ease. — φύλλο-βολούσης: perhaps means shooting or putting forth its leaves; but editors disagree.

1008. When plane-tree whispers to elm. Again we hear the lyric poet from behind the comic mask.

1013. βαιάν: slender, spare; the prose is μικράν.

1019. ψήφισμα μακρόν: a comic surprise. The orator will present himself before the ἐκκλησία with a thin chest, a loud tongue, and (we might say) a long bill. — ἀναπείσει: sc. Ἄδικος Λόγος.

1022. Ἀντιμάχου: utterly fameless save for this mention and perhaps Ach. 1150.

1023. κατα-πυγούνης: the gen. with a verb of filling. As Μνημοσύνη is formed from μνήμων, so Catapygosyne (lewdness) from καταπύγων (529, 909).

1024-33. The antistrophic song opens the second half of the Ἄγών. Note the poetic καλλίπυργον fair-towering or lofty and κλεινοτάτην effulgent or the like; also the distance of ἡδύ from its substantive.

1025. ἐπασκῶν: 517.

1027. σῶφρον . . . ἄνθος: = σωφροσύνης ἄνθος.

1028 f. Antistrophe here fails to match strophe in 953, and daggers are set to warn of a corrupt text. — ἔρα: then, as it seems; S. 1102, GMT. 39, infra 1301. — ἐπί: in the time of.

1030 f. πρὸς τὰδε: = πρὸς ταῦτα 990. — κομψο-πρεπή: = κομψότητι πρέπουσαν; 649 n.

κομποπρεπή μούσαν ἔχων,

αἰρούμενον τοὺς ἦττονας λόγους ἔπειτα νικᾶν. 1042

1032 f. σί: Wrong Logic. —
ἀνὴρ: Right Logic.

1034 f. The Coryphaeus in his exhortation to Wrong Logic employs, and so prescribes for the following speaker, iambic tetrameter, a more impudent jog-trot rhythm than that used by Right Logic. See Intro. § 132 δ. — δεινῶν: emphatic; why?

1035. εἶπερ: if indeed; 86, 227, 251, 341, 356, 399, 443, and often.

1036. καὶ μὴν: yea verily; 4. — ὑνιγόμεν: imperf., while Right Logic was speaking. — τὰ σπλάγχνα: in prose, τὴν καρδίαν; acc. of specificat.

1037. ἅπαντα ταῦτα: all this (nonsense).

1038. μὲν: introduces a short preliminary on his name ἦττων λόγος. His real theme, the New Education, begins at σκέψαι δέ in 1043.

1040. καὶ ταῖς δίκαις: even in court trials. — ἀντι-λέξει: to make opposing speeches; ἀντ-ειπεῖν is merely to speak against. So ἀντι-λέξεις, not ἀντ-ερεῖς in Frogs 998.

1041. πλεῖν ἢ: an uninflected adverbial phrase, outside of the construction.

1042. ἔπειτα: cp. εἶτα 386, κάπειτα 624.

- σκέψαι δὲ τὴν παίδευσιν, ἣ πέποιθεν, ὡς ἐλέγξω,

1043. σκέψαι: turning to Pheidippides.

1044. θερμῷ: sc. ὕδατι, referring to 991.

1045. ψέγεις: turning to Δίκαιος Λόγος.

1046. κακιστον: most injurious.

1047. ἐπί-σχε: hold on; 495. — μέσον: i.e. around the waist. — ἄφυκτον: either active with σε (so that you cannot escape), or passive with λαβὴν easily supplied from λαβῶν (a grip not to be escaped).

1051. ψυχρά: triumphantly emphatic by long separation from its substantive. All natural hot springs were called Baths of Hercules. For him, when weary after his labours, Athena had produced the famous springs at Θερμοπύλαι.

1055. εἶτα: secondly. — ψέγεις: viz. in 991. — ἐν ἀγορᾷ: emphatic because not in its normal (attributive) position.

1057. ἀγορητὴν: another sophistic quibble, by appeal to "scripture." In Homer the ἀγο-ρητής was an orator before the ἀγορά or assembly (ἀγείρω) of the people. Here it is cited as if it meant marketplace-loafer (ἀγοραῖος).

1058. ἄνειμι δῆτα κτλ.: i.e. speaking of oratory (as if he had taken ἀγορητής in its Homeric sense), I will now (δῆτα?) go back from that (ἐντεύθεν) to the question of the tongue, which he had but touched on at first (1038 ff.).

1059. For Right Logic's repro-bation of the tongue see 1003, 1013, 1018, 931.

1060. σωφρονεῖν: *to practise
continence or chastity*; see 962, 1006. — δύο κακῶ: i.e. the practice of chastity and the non-practice of tongue.

1061. τῷ = τίνι. — πάποτ' ἤδη:
370.

1063. γοῦν: proves a statement by certainly (οὖν) one instance at least (γε). — Peleus had repelled the advances of Acastus' wife, and the gods had given him his famous (τὴν) sword, made by Hephaestus, but significant for him of only toil and battle.

1064. ἀστεῖον: nice, fine; ironical like χρηστός in 8.

1065. Hyperbolus the lamp-man (ὁ ἐκ —) by paying a talent (v. 876) had got the art of the orator. What were the rewards of chastity compared with those of πονηρία? — οἱ λύχνοι: the lamp-market; so τὰ ὄρνεα, οἱ ἰχθύες, τὰ εἰληφε διὰ πονηρίαν, ἀλλ' οὐ μὰ Δί' οὐ μάχαιραν.

Δι. καὶ τὴν Θέτιν γ' ἔγῃμε διὰ τὸ σωφρονεῖν ὁ Πηλεΐδης.

χρῶ τῇ φύσει, σκίρτα, γέλα, νόμιζε μηδὲν αἰσχρόν.

λάχανα, the bird-, fish-, and vegetable-market. — πλεῖν ἢ πολλά: in Eng. we say "more than a few."

1067. καὶ . . . γε: yes, and, emphasizing Thetis as a prize.

1068. ἀπολιποῦσα: Thetis, wishing to make immortal her babe Achilles, was wont to baptize him in fire by night and anoint him with ambrosia by day. Peleus once watching saw the child over the fire and cried out; whereupon Thetis the immortal Nereid left both and returned to her sisters beneath the sea (Apollodorus 3. 13. 6).

1070. Κρόν-ιππος: either 'an old horse (for Κρόνος see 398 n.), or a big antediluvian (ἵππος in compounds being used for size as "horse" in Eng. "horse-radish," "horse-chestnut").

1071. ἐν τῷ σωφρονεῖν: why emphat.? Cp. 1055, 1051.

1073. κιχλισμῶν: see 983 n.

1075. εἶεν: so far, so good; a transition-expletive (176). — πάρειμι ἐντεῦθεν: will pass on from that; cp. 1058.

1076. ἡμαρτες κτλ.: a condition expressed in parataxis; "suppose you have made a mistake." — τι: (played the adulterer) a bit.

1077. ἀπόλωλας: you are done for (perf.); the result of the supposed case. — ἐμοὶ δ' ὁμιλῶν κτλ.: now is seen how tongue-practice pays, as advocated in 1059.

1078. χρῶ τῇ φύσει: you may give rein to your natural man. —

μοιχὸς γὰρ ἦν τύχης ἀλούς, τὰδ' ἀντερεῖς πρὸς

 Δι. ἐξ εὐρυπρώκτων. Αδ. ἄρα δῆτ' ἔγνωκας ὥς οὐδὲν λέγεις; 1095
 καὶ τῶν θεατῶν ὁπότεροι

νόμιζε μηδὲν αἰσχρόν: the motto of the New Education, the test of a mind freed from prejudice.

1079. αὐτόν: sc. the husband.

1080. ἐπ-αν-ενεγκεῖν: imv. use; refer it on back.

1081. ὥς: repeats the ὥς of 1080. — Why is καὶ ἐκεῖνος emphatic? Cp. 1071.

1082. The Greeks of Aristophanes' time saw clearly the dissidence between their present standard of morality and that of the old nature-religion inherited from ancient fathers. Minds truly religious revolted; "if the gods do aught of shame, they are not gods" (Euripides, frg. 294). But the common man was cordially content with an adulterous Zeus; the old faith was "good enough for him." Thus religion in time becomes ir-religion.

1089 f. συνηγοροῦσι: lawyers (συνήγοροι) come from the ranks (ἐκ) of the lewd (εὐρύπρωκτοι), also tragic poets (1091), professional politicians (1093), and the large majority of the audience (1098). No wonder Δίκαιος admits defeat (1102).

1095. οὐδὲν λέγεις: 644 n.

 εὖ μοι στομώσεις αὐτόν, ἐπὶ μὲν θάτερα
 οἷον δικιδίοις, τὴν δ' ἑτέραν αὐτοῦ γνάθον

1103. δέξασθε κτλ.: Δίκαιος knows the entrance-requirements, viz. forfeiture of θοιμάτιον (497). He forfeits without waiting for the διαβήτης (178).

1104. ἐξαυτομολῶ: I desert. Exit, meekly following Ἄδικος into the φροντιστήριον.

We should next expect an opportunity given to Pheidip. to make his choice of teacher (937). But the matter has been just decided by the voluntary surrender of Δίκαιος. Re-enters Socrates.

1105. ἀπάγεσθαι: if this scene

(1105-14) is in place, the opportunity to "withdraw" his son seems to be even yet extended to Streps., that, when the catastrophe comes, it shall be tragically he, and no one else, who is to blame.

1106. διδάσκω: subjv.; am I to teach?

1107. μέμνησο ὅπως: the construction of verbs of striving (S. 1352, HA. 885, G. 1372) instead of the inf. (S. 1314, HA. 986).

1108. ἐπὶ μὲν τὰ ἑτερα: on the one side.

1112. μὲν οὖν: nay, rather (71).
Pheidip. "convinced against his will is of the same opinion still" as in v. 103.

ΠΑΡΑΒΑΣΙΣ ΔΕΥΤΕΡΑ

1113-30

The first six of Aristophanes' comedies, as preserved to us, have two parabases each. But the second never contains more than four of the seven parts making up the complete scheme; see introd. note to the first parabasis 510-626. The present one is briefer than any of them, perhaps because a fragment from the first Clouds or because left unfinished in the revision for the second. It consists of two parts: a κομμάτιον of two verses and one ἐπίρρημα of sixteen.

1113 f. Commation chanted by the κορυφαῖος; see Introd. § 139 for the rhythm. — χωρεῖτε: to the departing actors; cp. ἴθι χαίρων 510. — σοι: to Streps., but probably after his departure, and heard only by the audience.

1115-30. An ἐπίρρημα in trochaic tetrameter (Introd. § 132 5'), wherein the Clouds endeavor to win the five judges of the comic contests by promise of material favours and threat of material damage, dependent upon their decision.

1115. κριτὰς: emphatic, and almost a free acc., though it may be construed with φράσαι (cp. 961 and 1148 f.); translate as if ἃ οἱ κριταὶ κερδανούσι.

1116. ἐκ τῶν δικαίων = δικαίως as they rightly should. — ἡμεῖς: with stress, because a personal digression of the Clouds.

1117. ἐν ὥρᾳ: in good season.

ὑσομεν πρώτοισιν ὑμῖν, τοῖσι δ' ἄλλοις ὕστερον.
 εἴτα τὸν καρπὸν τε καὶ τὰς ἀμπέλους φυλάξομεν, εἶθ', ἦν ἐγὼ μάλιστα πασῶν ἡμερῶν δέδοικα καὶ πέφρικα καὶ βδελύττομαι,

1122. πρὸς: a tragic usage for ὑπό.

1125. σφενδόναίς: i.e. sling-stones of hail. — παιήσομεν: a rarer form for παίσω.

1128. τῶν ξυγγενῶν: sc. τις.

1129. ὑσομεν: and so put out the torches of the wedding procession — a bad omen. — ἴσως: minatory.

1130. ἐν Αἰγύπτῳ: where he would get no rain at all. We might substitute "in Guinea."

1131. Strops. enters with a sack of meal (1146 n.), counting the last days of the month. The εἰκάδες or twenties (17) were quite commonly reckoned backward from the last day (29th or 30th alternately); hence πέμπτη = 25th or 26th, τετράς = 26th or 27th, etc. So the Romans counted back from Nones, Ides, and Calends.

1133. Cp. the corresponding Tristes Kalendae (Hor. Sat. 1. 3. 87).

1134. ἔνη καὶ νέα: the name of the last day of the month; see L. & S. s.v. ἔνος.

1135. πᾶς τις: everybody. πᾶς eases the change to plural οἷς. — ὁμνύς: with φησί = swears.

1136. θεῖς μοι κτλ.: on depositing court-fees against me; a necessary initial step in a lawsuit. — ἀπο-λεῖν... ἐξ-ολεῖν: the latter is the stronger. In Eng. we finish one off or up indifferently.

1137. μέτρια κτλ.: a moderate and just request indeed!

1139. ἀνα-βαλοῦ . . . ἄφ-ες: defer . . . remit.

1140. ἀπο-λήψεσθαι: recover.

1145. ἡμί: I say; cp. ἦν δ' ἐγὼ said I, ἦ δ' ὅς said he. — Στρ. ἀσπάζομαι: the formal and elegant address of those times.

1146. τουτονί: θύλακον αὐτῷ ἐπιδίδωσιν ἀλφίτων (schol.).

1147. ἐπι-θαυμάζειν τι: i.e. beside the greeting (ἐπί) one must honour his teacher somewhat with an honorarium; cp. θαυμάζω 428.

1148. τὸν υἱόν: object of εἶπέ by prolepsis.

1149. ὃν: i.e. τὸν υἱόν. Some refer it to λόγον, viz. τὸν ἄδικον.

Σω. μεμάθηκεν. Στ. εὖ γ', ὦ παμβασίλει' Ἀπαιόλη.

ἀμφήκει γλώττη λάμπων, 1160

πρόβολος ἐμός, σωτὴρ δόμοις, ἐχθροῖς βλάβη, λυσανίας πατρώων μεγάλων κακῶν·

In this case εἰσήγαγες means introduced to the audience.

1150. Ἀπαιόλη: cp. ἀπαιόλημα 729. For παμβασίλεια cp. 357.

1154-64. Strepsy's joy demands lyric vent. In a jumble of metres he begins, the schol. says, with a line from Euripides' Peleus. See Introd. § 140.

1154. τᾶρα: τοι ἄρα. The ὑπέρ-τονος βοά must have approached a very war-shriek in the comedy, if not in Euripides.

1155. ἰώ: common in tragedy. — ὠβολο-στάται: the hated Shylock usurers, lit. penny-weighers, from ὠστημι to weigh.

1156 f. Iambic trimeters occurring within a song were probably not spoken as in dialogue, but sung or chanted. — ἀρχαῖα καὶ τόκοι: regular words for principal and interest, but used here with a word-play, to curse usurers "root and branch" — ancestors and children's children.

1158 f. Taken together, the dactylic tripodies make a pentameter. — οἷος: such a —, in implied causal relation to the preceding; cp. 699.

1159. δώμασι: = prose οἰκία.

1160. Spondaic solemnity. — ἀμφήκει: two-edged; poetic.

1161. πρόβολος, δόμοις: poetic. Note diaeresis of the three μέτρα.

1162 f. Dochmiacs indicate an acme of emotion. δόχμος = aslant. If we could but know the dochmiac dance-step!—λυσανίας: surceaser of sorrow; poetic. It ignores here the gen. within itself and takes a second (κακῶν), as such compounds often do in tragedy.

1164. Exit Socrates to summon the young "blade" (ἀμφήκης).

1165 f. Streps. makes their re-entry a grand procession by chanting a march-measure parody on Euripides' Hecuba 172 ff. Poetic are the words τέκνον (= νῖός or παῖς) and αἶω (= ἀκούω or αἰσθάνομαι); cp. 650.

1167. Enter Socrates and the Graduate.

1168. φίλος: tragic for φίλε.

1169. συλλαβών: taking him with you.

1170. One more dochmiac caper before coming down to πεζῇ λέξις, or prose, in 1171.

1171. χροιάν: probably a chalk-white; cp. 103, 1112.

1173. ἐπιχώριον: this local Attic bloom (ἐπ-ανθέω) is the modern bumptious "brass."

1174. τί λέγεις: asks not for information, but to challenge and dispute.

1175. οἶδ' ὅτι: a clause that has become adverbial, like I am sure; cp. πῶς δοκεῖς (881), the inv. ἀμέλει (422), οὐκ ἔσθ' ὅπως οὐ (802).

1176. βλέπος: Streps. is still in exalted mood; the prose word is βλέμμα. The Attic "look" is perhaps that of Triumphant Democracy.

1177. ὅπως: see 257 n.

1178. δὲ δὴ: δὴ is our expletive (not temporal) now or then. — ἔννην κτλ.: see 1134.

1179. γάρ: in questions is our expletive (not interrogative) why.

1180. γε: in answer, assents but qualifies. Cp. γοῦν (γε οὖν), which cites a confirmatory instance (1063 n.) — θήσιν: see 1136 n.

1183. εἰ μὴ πέρ γε: i.e. εἴπερ γε μὴ; unless of course, in a superior tone that reduces his father to a crushed absurdity.

1185. καὶ μὴν: and yet; a faltering appeal to custom. — γάρ: that's because.

1186. νοεῖ: means, intends.

1187. φιλόδημος κτλ.: the people's natural friend, a born democrat. Solon had by this time become a sort of Thomas Jefferson in public estimation. Lawyer-like, the young alumnus will explain the original intent and purpose of the lawmaker.

1189. κλήσιν: cp. 780, 875.

1190. γε: namely. Pheidip. interprets as if two articles were ἵν' αἱ θέσεις γίγνουντο τῇ νομηνίᾳ.

Στ. εὖ γ' ὦ κακοδαίμονες, τί κάθησθ' ἀβέλτεροι, present, τὴν ἔτην καὶ τὴν νέαν, i.e.

two days.

1191. θέσεις: deposits, sc. of the πρυτανεῖα. — τῇ νομηνίᾳ: i.e.
on the first of the new month, the νέα of the preceding verse.

1193 ff. We now see Solon's humanity: a summons for two days but no suit to be begun till the second, that the defendants (οἱ φεύγοντες) might have one day for compromise. This humane intent had been frustrated by the magistrates (αἱ ἀρχαί) for their own base ends (as we shall see), since now illegally, if we read Solon's law aright, they collect the fees on the ἔτη rather than the νέα.
But if illegally, as Pheidippides contends, then the plaintiffs will be non-suited and the depositors lose their money, as above said (1181).

1195. ἔωθεν: early, or in the morning; the force of -θεν from has evaporated. — ὑπ-ανιῶντο: reciprocal mid.; worry each other a bit (ὑπο-).

1196. πῶς: how happens it that — (qui fit ut —)?

1197. αἱ ἀρχαί: the authorities; an abstract in both languages replacing the concrete.

1198. οἱ προ-τένθαι: the foretasters; a board who tasted and approved the food for the annual banquet of the Phratry or Brotherhood held on the evening of the first day of Apaturia.

1199. ὅπως: = ἵνα; not with τάχιστα. — ὑφ-ελόιατο: Ionic form; = ἀφέλαιντο.

1200. διὰ τοῦτο: that's why. — προὔτένθουσιν: gnomic aor.

1201. τί κάθησθι: to the spectators.

Πασίας

εἴτ' ἄνδρα τῶν αὐτοῦ τι χρῆ προΐεναι;
οὐδέποτε γ', ἀλλὰ κρεῖττον εὐθὺς ἦν τότε 1215

1202. κέρδη; spoil, booty. — τῶν σοφῶν: sc. ἡμῶν, implied in ἡμέτερα.

1203. Ciphers, mere sheep, stacked-up jars. Sitting closely in rows, so they looked from the orchestra. ἄλλως with subst. is frequent.

1204. ὥστε: the audience is so stolid that Streps. must sing his own encomium.

1205. ἐπὶ: on occasion of —,
because of. — ἄστέον: ἄδω. — μοιγ-κόμιον: μοι ἐγκ.

1206 ff. Lyricism on a high horse. — μάκαρ: poetic (599). — Στρεψιάδες: he inflects his own name by the wrong declension.
See Introd. § 141 for the rhythm.

1207 f. ἔφυς: poetic for εἶ. — ὡς and οἷον: exclamatory, in causal relation to the excl. μάκαρ; cp.
1158. Note also the poetic disturbance of the word-order.

1211. λέγων: by the power of speech. The fruition of the college education is in sight.

1212. Exeunt Streps. and son.

1213-1302. Two ἐπεισόδια (episodes), wherein the ἡττων λόγος wins two great victories.

1214. Enters Pasiās of v. 21, a rotund money-lender, dragging a reluctant witness to his summons (κλησίς) of Streps. — εἴτα: an indignant then, or well. — προ-ίεναι:
to surrender, sacrifice.

capitalized NEVER. — εὐθὺς τότε:
 "then and there," i.e. at the time
 the loan was requested.

1216. ἀπερυνθριάσαι: to lay off blushes (?), i.e. unblushingly to refuse to loan. — σχεῖν; incur, be put to —.

1217. ὅτε: causal if or since,
 as in 7, 34, and often.

1218. κλητεύσονται: to be a witness to the κλήσις.

1219. ἔτι πρὸς τούτοις: a common pleonasm; besides, in addition to that. — δημότῃ: sc. Streps.

1220. The lawsuit mania of Athens is taken off in the Wasps, where a dog is put on trial for stealing cheese.

1221. ζῶν: as long as I live. — καλοῦμαι: in a loud voice; whereupon Streps. becomes audible, if not at once visible.

1222. μαρτύρομαι: I call to witness, by way of protest.

1223. δύο: emphatic by separation from its subst. — τοῦ: τίνος; for what sum? Cp. 22.

1225. ψαρὸν: dappled; the κοππατίας of v. 23.

1226. ὃν: sc. Streps.

1227. καὶ . . . γε: yes, and,
 stressing ἀποδώσειν.

1228. Streps. mocks Pasiās' antiquated oath; because (γάρ) by Zeus. The oath precedes the conj.
 as in 652, Wasps 1126, Frogs 192.

1229. ἀκατάβλητον: un-knock-downable.

 καὶ Ζεὺς γέλοιος ὁμνύμενος τοῖς εἰδόσιν. 1241

1230. ἔξαρνος εἶναι = ἔξαρνεῖσθαι to deny.

1232. ἐβελήσεις: will you be willing? Do not confuse βούλεσθαι to wish with ἐθέλειν to will or be willing.

1233. ἵν' ἂν: wherever (190). When there were many gods, it was important to choose with care the three before whose altars an oath could be most bindingly administered. — τοὺς ποίους θεοὺς: namely, what gods? Cp. τὸ τί 748.

1234. Zeus was always one of the three. Pasiās the capitalist adds Hermes the god of commerce and Poseidon the god of horses as most fit for the transaction.

1235. προσ-: in composition often = to boot, in addition. — ὥστε = ἐφ' ὧτε on condition; S. 1386, GMT. 587. 2.

1236. ἔτι: some day.

1237. Hides in tanning were thoroughly rubbed and cleaned (δια-σμήχω) with salt. This corpulent Pasiās would make an excellent wine-skin (ἀσκός) if so treated. That he should even expect a return of his loan, now that Zeus was dethroned, showed that he lacked "Attic salt." Sure of his champion Λόγος, Streps. can offer insult. — ὄναιτο: όνινημι.

1238. ἐξ χοᾶς: between 4 and 5 gallons. — χωρήσεται: will hold, have χώρα or space for.

1240. ἐμοῦ κατα-προίξει: = προῖκα ἐμοῦ καταφρονήσεις = "you shall pay for this." — ἦσθην: see 174 n.

1241. Ζεὺς ὁμνύμενος: swearing by Zeus; the partic, not the substantive, contains the substantive thought. Cp. ab urbe condita. — τοῖς εἰδῶσι: for those that know.

 In all ages those who come to "know" as suddenly and greenly as absurd Strepsy are apt to think their ancestral religion γέλοιος (a joke).

1244. English reverses the order, as often: answer before you dismiss me.

1245. Exit Streps.

1246. σοι: the witness.

1247. Enter Streps. with a kneading-trough.

1248. τουτί: put first for emphasis.

1250 ff. In Solon's time Athens had a property qualification for the franchise. Why, in these days of Enlightenment, should there not be an educational test for all creditors? Why pay one's debts to an ignoramus?

1252. οὐχ ὅσον κτλ.: not so far as I know; S. 1247, GMT. 778.

1253. ἀνύσας τι θάττον: 506 n.
 — ἀπολιταργίζω = to pack off.

1255. μηκέτι ζώην: English turns about; may I die if I don't.

1256. πρὸς: in addition to the 12 minas of v. 21.

Στ. τί δαί σε Τληπόλεμός ποτ' εἵργασται κακόν;

1257. καίτοι κτί.: pretends condolence, but intends contempt.

1258. εὐθικῶς: the fashionable elongation of εὐήθως; see n. on 483.

1259-1302. Second victory for ἡττων λόγος. — ἰὼ μοί μοι: not yet visible, this fast youth of vv. 31, 686 bewails in tragic phrase a broken head.

1260. ἔα: a tragic exclamation hard worked by Euripides. In Arist. it always strikes an attitude. — οὔτι που: asks a question as μὴ does, deprecating, or refusing credence; it surely can't be that . . . ?

1261. δαιμόνων: in place of υἱῶν, as if the wretched poet Carcinus were a god and his three sons (the constant butt of the comic poets) were demigods.

One of these, Xenocles, the schol. says, had dramatized (probably shortly before this) the story of Licymnius. The wail of Amynias (ἰὼ μοί μοι) is therefore perhaps from that tragedy, drawing forth this surmise of Streps.

1263. κατὰ σεαυτὸν κτί.: keep or go by yourself, with your κακο-δαιμονία. Don't infect me. Cp. 25.

1264 ff. According to the schol., a comic variant on verses in Licymnius — as if a complaint on luck cart-breaking (θραυσ-άντ' αὖτις) instead of luck heart-breaking.

1265. Should be read aloud for the sound-play.

1266. It is through Tlepolemus that Licymnius meets his death (Hom. Il. 2. 662).

1269. μέντοι: indeed; sometimes intrudes itself into the formula ἄλλως τε, καὶ especially. Not only honour, but pity, should move him.

1270. τὰ ποῖα: cp. 1233. Streps. forgets the entry in his ledger (31). — χρήματα: the last syllable disappears under ἃ ἔδαν.; cp. 214, 1192.

1271 f. Then you were really unlucky, says Streps., meaning if his son borrowed from him. But Amyntas misunderstands: Yes, in racing horses it was that I got my fall.

1273. Here Strepsy begins again his merry game of Duffers Outdone with a play on an old joke: (If you got your fall from a horse) why pray gabble as if you had tumbled from an ass? Of a man who was ἀπὸ νοῦ (i.e. a little "off" in his mind), the Greeks said that he had had a fall ἀπ' ὄνου. Cp. ἀπό-σιτος, used by Hippocrates of a sick man "off his food."

1275. "Not to be well" was urbanity for "to be demented." — αὐτός: i.e. your mind, not merely your bones and chariot. — τί δαί: see 491 n.

1276. ὥσπερ: as it were, colloquial "sort of." — σεσεῖσθαι: to have suffered concussion.

1277. The inf. ending -σεσθαι is a nettled and carefully matched retort to σεσεῖσθαι. The perfect tense means as good as summoned.

1278. ἀποδώσεις: fut. indic. threatens; cp. 586.

1280. A further application of the scientific education, as in vv. 750 (moon), 768 (ὕαλος), 1222 (ἐνῇ καὶ νέα). The theory that the sun drew water was at this time new.

1283 ff. Again the educational test applied to the creditor, as the test of Christianity applied to the Jewish usurer in the Middle Ages.

1285. σπανίζεις: are short. From a fellow-feeling Amynias makes a generous offer.

1286. θηρίον: jocosely taking τόκος as offspring, Strepsy asks what beastie is that ?

1288. πλέον πλέον: more and more.

1289. ὑπορρέοντος κτί.: in the insensible (ὑπο-) flow of time. This ῥέω suggests to Streps. his next question.

1292. οὐ δίκαιον: it is not the way, not in the nature of things, not natural.

1293 ff. Streps. has learned from his science that we should "live according to nature."

1296. ἀποδιώξει: appropriate to Amynias, who had come as a prosecutor (διώκων) ; "won't you prosecute your way ?"

1299. ἄξεις: ἄττω; cp. 543. Will you be nimble? He little suspects that within twenty lines he himself must be “nimble?” — ἐπιαλῶ: from ἐπ-ιάλλω (a Doric-epic word) to lay on (sc. τὸ κέντρον).

1300. σειραφόρον: 122 n. — Exit Amynias δρόμῳ.

1301. ἐμελλόν: I was bound to —, sure to —, “I thought I should —.” — ἄρα: = ἄρα; 1028 n. — ἐγώ: proudly.

1302. αὐτοῖς κτλ.: your wheels and all; S. 956 b, HA. 774 a, G. 1191. Streps. returns to his banquet. It has paid him to have even a small part of the modern college education in Science.

But now as in a tragedy, at the hero's height of success, comes the κατα-στροφή. The Clouds darken, and an ominous song is sung 1303–20. See Intro. § 142.

1304. ἐρασθεὶς: sc. πραγμάτων φλαύρων.

1305. ἀποστερήσαι: to withhold; 487.

1307–10. οὐκ ἔσθ' κτλ.: 802. Something will surely catch this sophist to-day, which will make him catch some mischief. This mystery veiled behind mystery is comically tragic and oracular. —

In Greek, maladies and passions (as πῦρ fever, ῥίγος chill, ὀργή wrath, etc.) are said to catch a man, not so often the man the malady.

1310. ἀνθ' ὧν κτλ.: for the knavish deeds he began; = ἀντὶ τούτων ᾧ.

1312. πάλαι ποτέ: prose would not add ποτέ.

1320. ἴσως δ' ἴσως: mayhap, mayhap. Fate delights in εἰρωνεία (understatement); her "maybe" = "must be."

1321. ἰοὺ ἰοῦ: the blow has fallen—literally. Streps. rushes forth with a huge mug in his hand (1473), to lament a broken head. See also v. 543.

1323. ἀμυνάθετε: a tragic or obsolescent variant of ἀμύνετε, and this rather old-fashioned for βοηθήσατε; S. 445 a, HA. 494, G. 779. —πάσῃ τέχνῃ: 885.

1324. τῆς γνάθου: his son had slapped his face; the Greek particularizes this to jaw. Ill treatment of parents (κάκωσις γονέων) was a serious crime among the Athenians, punishable with the loss of some of the chief privileges of citizenship.

1326. καὶ μάλα: = μάλιστα; assuredly, yes indeed.

1327. The πατρ-αλοῖας father-beater of antiquity corresponds to the modern wife-beater.

1329. χαίρω ἀκούων κακά: he has learned this from Ἄδικος Λόγος (910). On ἀκούω as pass. of λέγω see S. 1075, HA. 820, G. 1241.

1330. λακκόπρωκτε: you sink of iniquity!

1331. καὶ . . . γε: yes, and.

1332. ἐν δίκη: = δικαίως; cp. ἐκ τῶν δικαίων 1116

1334. λέγων: argument, like charity, should begin at home.

1335. τουτὶ: herein.

1337. ποίοιν: indignant ποῖος (247). But the son takes the question as a real one.

1338. Note position of verb and its further emphasis by μέντοι. On the causative middle see S. 1055, HA. 815, G. 1245.

1339. ἀντι-λέγειν: = γνώμας ἐναντίας λέγειν of 1314.

ΑΓΩΝ ΕΤΕΡΟΣ 1345-1451

The student should compare this and the first ἀγών (949-1104) in respect to the structure.

1345-50. See Introd. § 143 for the rhythm.

1349. ὅτῳ: dat. of cause.

1351 f. The κορυφαῖος here sets as the rhythm for the debate the same fish-wife iambic tetrameter that he assigned to Ἄδικος Λόγος in 1034 f.—τὸ πρῶτον: pleonastic with ἤρξατο.

1352. πάντως: of course, by all means; often with imv. or imv. substitute, as here.

1353. καὶ μὴν . . . γε: begins the agonistic speech as in 1036.

1356. The great popular poet Simonides had lived during the Persian wars, contemporary with Pindar and Aeschylus. A song of his in honour of a wrestler of Aegina named Κριός began (according to the schol.) ἐπέξαθ' ὁ κριὸς οὐκ ἀεικέως. Arist. here changes to ἐπέχθη probably by way of jest: "How Mr. Ram was sheared."

1357. ἀρχαῖον: whereas now the fashion was to argue subtly and be κομψός (649).

ᾄδειν τε πίνονθ', ὥσπερὶ κάχρυσ γυναικ' ἀλοῦσαν.
 26. οὐ γὰρ τότ' εὐθὺς χρῆν σ' ἄρα τύπτεσθαι τε καὶ ψόφου πλέων, ἀξύστατον, στόμφακα, κρημνοποιόν ; ' κάνταῦθα πῶς οἶσθέ μου τὴν καρδίαν ὀρεχθεῖν ;

1358. ὥσπερ: = ὥσπερ;
 GMT. 868. To sing when drinking was "too much like work." The Greeks had songs to lighten labour in the field (reaping, binding, winnowing); in the mill, the boat, the wine-press, at the draw-well — everywhere. For labour is lightened by rhythm. — γυναικ' ἀλοῦσαν: "women grinding at the mill" is a figure of the remotest antiquity.

1359. τότ' εὐθὺς: cp. 1215.

1360. τέττιγας: grasshoppers lived merely on air and dew, the Greek legend said, and sang without ceasing.

1364. ἀλλά: is quoted from the original command; cp. 1369. — μυρρίνην: each banqueter, as he sang his song, held a spray of myrtle or laurel in his hand.

1365. λέξαι: recite; not the same as εἰπεῖν; cp. 1344. With τῶν Αἰσχύλου supply ἐπῶν. — The holding of the myrtle (or laurel, as the schol. adds) was a sign perhaps of the poet-function of the banqueter.

1366. ἐγὼ γάρ: feignedly indignant: why, is it I that thinks — ?

1367. ψόφου πλέων: Shakespeare's "full of sound and fury." — ἀ-σύ-στατος is in-coherent; cp. σύ-στημα system. — στόμφαξ is formed from στόμφος (a full mouth); all words in -ᾶς are coarse and insulting. — κρημο-ποιόν: precipice-maker; refers to his huge and rugged phrases. In Frogs 821 his ῥήματα are said to go on horseback (ἵππο-βάμονα).

1368. ὀρεχθεῖν: leading up to a truly Epic battle, he uses a Homeric word. For us the meaning is uncertain; either to gasb or to raipilate.

1369. θυμὸν: instead of χεῖλος lip; biting my temper, i.e. to curb it.

1371. ῥῆσιν: speech, passage in a drama. — ἐκίνει: seduced, viz. in the tragedy of Aeolus.

1372. ἀδελφός: this was Makareus, son of Aeolus. — ᾧ ἀλεξίκακε: defender from evil (= Heaven save us!). Cp. *Ἀπολλὼν ἀπο-τρόπαιε. — ὁμομητρίαν: herein lay the shocking quality of the deed; for the marriage of a sister ὁμο-πατρία, which sometimes (though rarely) took place, was not held to be incestuous.

1373. κἀγὼ οὐκ: = κἀγὼνκ by synizesis. — ἐξηνεσχ.: the prose ἀνέχομαι is keyed up to Tragic pitch by ἐξ; ἐξ-αράττω duplicates it. ἀράττω to smite is itself a poetic metaphor for λαιοδρέω.

1374. πολλοῖς: sc. words or names.

1375. ἡρειδόμεσθα: hurled (lit. pushed, thrust); cp. 558.

1376. κᾶπειτα . . . καὶ . . . καὶ . . . καὶ: observe in all artless narrative the large use of the simple conjunctions and, then, and then, as here from v. 1361 on. With this finale of καί's cp. Ach. 380 f., 983 f., Eq. 251 f. Note also here the sound-play with α and π; for its sake we might render slang for slang, thus: he began to swish and swinge and swat and scrunch me.

1377. ὅστις: causal; cp. 692.

1383 f. μασμᾶν . . . κακκᾶν: baby-language seems never to have suffered from the confusion of tongues at Babel. It and music are universal tongues.

1384. οὐκ ἔφθης . . . καί: no sooner did you . . . than I . . . For φθάνω with partic. see S. 1295, HA. 984, G. 1586.

1385. προ-εσχόμεν σε: I would hold you before me.

1386 ff. A πνίγος requiring practice for good delivery, because of the resolutions -γοθ' ὅτι, μιარέ, and -γόμενος.

1387. οὐκ ἔτλης: did not have the grace; cp. 119.

1390. αὐτοῦ: right there, on the spot.

1393. ἐξ-ειργασμένος: of Tragic ring; after having wrought.

1394. λαλῶν: the Clouds frankly substitute by his chatter

1395. λάβοιμεν: = πριαίμεθα buy.

1396. ἀλλ' οὐδέ: nay, not even. — ἐρεβίνθου: gen. of price; for a pea.

1397 ff. The κορυφαῖος prescribes for the second half of the 'Αγών the same "squabble"-rhythm as before. — κινητὰ κτέ.: addressed as Motor and Heaven of phrases new, Pheidip. is made almost the peer of Poseidon, "the wild Upheaver of the briny Sea" (568). There is probably a parody here of Euripides' Medea 1317.

1399. ὁμιλεῖν: to be conversant.

1400. νόμων ὑπερφρονεῖν: the ideal also of the modern Uebermensch.

1402. πρὶν: without.

1403. αὐτός: this stings.

1404. γνώμαις, λόγοις, μερίμναις: flitting through the whole play, these "winged words" of the New Learning now come home to roost. For μερίμναι see 101, 420, 952.

1406. ἵππευε τοῖνον: note present tense; go on horse-ing it then.

1407. τέθριππον: sc. ἄρμα; a four-in-hand would double the outlay for the ζύγιοι hitherto kept (122). Note the play on τ and π; cp. 6, 1265.

1408. μέτειμι: I will pursue, perhaps should be 'πάνειμι go back to ἐκέισε τοῦ λόγου. The sophistling thus rebukes his father for "splitting him off" in the midst of a formal argument full of therefores, firstly, secondly, etc., as will be noted. Cp. ἀν-ειμι 1058, πάρ-ειμι 1075.

1413. τὸ σὸν σῶμα: not τὸ σῶμά σου, which would put no stress on "your."

1414. καὶ μὴν: surely, verily; cp. 4, 1036, 1353.

1415. A trimeter parody on Eur. Alcest. 694: χαίρεις ὀρῶν φῶς, πατήρα δ' οὐ χαίρειν δοκεῖς; father and son are there unheroically wrangling over the propriety of the father's dying for the son. — δοκεῖς: think right, approve (though in Euripides' line it means merely to think).

1416. σὺ: to be stressed, of course. — τοῦργον: sc. τὸ τύπτειν σθαι.

1417. ἐγὼ δέ γε: as usual, γε stresses the word before δέ; 169, 175, 211, 914, 915, 920.

1420. νομίζεται: again an appeal to custom, as in 1185. — τὸν πατέρα: with great stress: "old men in general, yes; but one's father — no!"

1421. ἀνὴρ: man, not a god. — νόμον: Advanced Thought of that time held that νόμος rose by convention or pact of man (θέσει), not by will of the gods. But if made by men, why not un-made? See also Introd. § 45.

1426. ἀφίεμεν: with magnanimous gesture. — συγκεκόφθαι: as if a substantive; we give them our past contusions (perf. tense) gratis.

1427 f. σκέψαι: this call to consider nature's beasts and pattern life "according to Nature," like barnyard fowl, — how often it recurs!

1429. ψηφίσματα: cp. 1019; a bitter taunt for Athens' democracy — that the difference between democratic man and beast is only one of decree (or degree!).

1430 f. Reasoning by analogy is apt to suffer shipwreck on consistency.

1436. ἐγ-χανὼν τεθνήξεις: you will have died with the laugh on me (ἐγ-χάσκω).

1437. ὦνδρες ἥλικες: addressing the old men of the audience with gravity—productive doubtless of levity.

1438. τούτοισι: sc. τοῖς νέοις.

1440. ἑτέραν γνώμην: the first γνώμη had nearly pounded Strepsy to death; another one, he thinks, will finish him off. — ἀπο-ολοῦμαι: tmesis, as in 792. — γάρ: perhaps best explained here as equiv. to its original elements (γ' ἄρ'); "I shall perish (γε) then (ἄρα)."

1441. καὶ μὴν: and yet; cp. 1185.

1445-51. One long "Overmeasure" verse (ὑπέρ-μετρον); see Introd. § 132 ε'. — λέγων: the key-tone of the play (Argument, Reason) is rung once more in Strepsy's ears. It has become his νέμεσις.

Στ. ὦμοι, πονηρά γ', ὦ Νεφέλαι, δίκαια δέ.

1446. χρεών: = χρή.

1447. τί δέ: echoes τί δέ of 1444. Strepsy's wrath is so hot that he snatches the πνίγος-verse away from his son. — ταῦτα: stressed by position.

1449. τὸ βάραθρον: the bodies of executed criminals were thrown into this pit just outside the walls of Athens, literally ἐς κόρακας. It was probably an ancient quarry.

1451. The second Ἀγών here ends, the ἤττων λόγος again victorious.

1453. ἀνα-θεῖς: referring; = ἐπιτρέψας.

1454. μὲν οὖν: nay, rather; 71, 1112.

1455. στρέψας: the omen of his nomen dawns upon him.

1456. τότε: in the first place.

1457. ἐπ-ήρετε: 42.

1458 ff. Clouds prove to be not always fleecy white, but sometimes carriers of Zeus's thunderbolts.

1462. When judgment falls, delusion ceases. The comedy has become a tragedy.

- οὐ γάρ μ' ἐχρῆν τὰ χρήμαθ', ἀδανεισάμην,

- Στ. οἷμοι παρανοίας · ὡς ἐμαινόμεν ἄρα, ὅτ' ἐξέβαλλον τοὺς θεοὺς διὰ Σωκράτη.

1464. ὅπως: with ἀπολείς; 257.
 — ὦ φίλτατε: to his son.

1467. Mocking the old man's words of 834.

1468. The tragic trimeter (i.e. without resolution of long syllables), the long α in πατρῶον, and the word αἰδέομαι for σέβομαι indicate a tragic parody or quotation perhaps of Euripides, since he uses καταιδέομαι several times. Athenians usually appealed rather to Ἀπόλλων πατρῶος. Here it is Ζεὺς, so that another winged word of Strepsiades may return to flap its raven wings about his ears.

1469. Mocks Streps. of v. 818.

1471. Δῖνος κτ.: the whole accursed verse and doctrine back on Strepsy's head just as he had taught it (828)!

1473. τουτονὶ: he holds up his toper's mug (δῖνος); see notes on 380, 1321.

1474. ὅτε: causal.

1475. Εἰπ' Pheidip, perhaps to the house of "Uncle Megacles." By Hypoth. β', what follows was written for the second Clouds.

1477. ἐξέβαλλον: imperfect tense for imperfect action; was for banishing.

ἀλλ', ὦ φίλ' Ἑρμῇ, μηδαμῶς θύμαινέ μοι, κἀγὼ τιν' αὐτῶν τήμερον δοῦναι δίκην ἐμοὶ ποιήσω, κεῖ σφόδρ' εἷς' ἀλαζόνες.

1478. Ἑρμῇ: to the stone image before the door; see 83 n.

1482. διωκάθω: cp. ἀμυνάθω 1323 on formation from διώκω.

1483. He has put ear to the lips of his stone counsellor. — δικορραφεῖν: the Greek "sewing" of a lawsuit (δίκη, ράπτω) is bringing it, getting it up; the Eng. "patching up" of a suit is rather to effect its compromise.

1485. ἀδολεσχῶν: a name often given to the philosophers by the comic poets, carrying the opprobrium of our vulgar word "blatherskite." — Ξανθίας is a common slave name.

1489. ἐμβάλης κτί.: tumble their house about their ears.

1490. ἡμμένην: ἄπτω; 18. — In burning thus the Socratic φροντιστήριον, Arist. was but staging a borrowed historic fact. Perhaps only ten or fifteen years before this a mob had burned the assembly house (συν-ἔδριον) of the followers of Pythagoras in Croton, Italy, and many of his school had perished.

1492. σφόδρα: "for all their swagger."

Μαθητής Α

1493. ἐὼν ἐσθ: from within;
see too v. 543.

1494. From the roof.

1495. The μαθητής rushes forth.

1496. δια-λεπ.: cp. 320 and (for the compound) διαλέγομαι; perhaps = I am holding conver- subtle-putation.

1497. πυρπολεῖ: a grandilo-quent substitute for the prose word ἐμπύμπρημι of v. 1484.

1498. θοῖμάτιον: the various threads of the comedy reappear.

1499. τοῦτ' αὐτὸ κτί.: "why just that it is that I am wishing (καὶ emphasizing verb as in 785).

1503. Streps. echoes from aloft the words of the great αὐτός in 225.

1505. Chaerophon's mask

Στ. τί γὰρ μαθόντες τοὺς θεοὺς ὑβρίζετε, would be known by its bushy eyebrows (146). He echoes -ήσομαι from Socrates.

1506. τί μαθόντες: cp. 402. — ὑβρίζετε: impf.; cp. the next verse.

1507. τὴν ἔδραν: used of the heavenly bodies, it means their position; here there is a coarse reference to its other sense, seat, to give an instance of the ὑβρις of the philosophers

1508. Hermes, appealed to in 1478 and now really appearing high above the actors and chorus on the θεο-λογεῖον, or stage of the gods, to superintend the vengeance meted out to impiety, would indeed have been an effective parody, had the play been acted, on the deus ex machina so dear to Euripides.

1511. μετρίως: in measure i.e. enough. The chorus retire marching in anapaests.

NOTES ON THE INTRODUCTION

1. The Vitae Aristophanis are to be found in Dübner, Kaibel, van Leeuwen, and the editions of Bergk and Meineke. | For the scholia on his life see Dübner's index. | Beside mention in Plato Apol. 19 c, whereon there is a valuable scholium, Arist. is one of the guests in Plato's Symposium. | Passages more or less personal begin at Arist. A. 377, 502, 628, E. 507, N. 518, V. 1016, 1284, P. 734.

3. The Vita XI (Dübner) begins: 'Αριστοφάνης ὁ κωμικοποιὸς πατρὸς μὲν ἦν Φιλίππου, τὸ δὲ γένος Ἀθηναῖος, τῶν δῆμων Κυδαθηναίος, Πανδιονίδος φυλῆς. Suidas' Lexicon, s.v. Ἀριστοφάνης: 'Ρόδος ἦτοι Λίνδιος, οἱ δὲ Αἰγύπτῳ ἐφασαν, οἱ δὲ Καμειρέα, θέσει δ' Ἀθηναῖος, ἐπολιτογραφήθη γὰρ παρ' αὐτοῖς. | Kydathenaion: δῆμος ἐν ᾧσσι τῆς Πανδιονίδος φυλῆς (schol. on Plato Symp. 173 b). W. Judeich Topographie von Athen (1905) 159 supposes it may have embraced the Acropolis and reached as far north as the Eridanus. | Birth-year of Arist.: van Leeuwen Prolegg. 39 and Starkie Ach. XI incline to 451, the year of Pericles' bill recognizing as citizens only those born of parents both of whom were Athenians (Aristot. Ath. Pol. 26. 3, Plut. Peric. 37). This might explain the doubt on the poet's citizenship, and the γραφὴ ξενίας said to have been brought against him by Cleon. | Country-joys are dwelt on especially in the peace-plays, as A. 32, 198, 245, 268, 872, 1005; P. 525, 550, 565, 587, 634, 765, 975, 1000; Γεωργοί frgg. 100, 107, 109. See also E. 805, N. 43, Νῆσοι frg. 387, and Busolt 3. 925. | Arist.' boyhood passed in the country: so Croiset 14-17 and van Leeuwen Prolegg. 13, basing perhaps on Thuc. 2. 14. | That A. 652-54 proves the poet's possession of land in Aegina is the opinion of W. Christ *Gesch. der gr. Lit.*² 248, Meyer 4. 313, Busolt 3. 1061, Croiset 13, Starkie ad loc., basing on schol. to Plato Apol. 19 c, κατεκλήρωσε δὲ καὶ τὴν Αἴγιναν, ὡς Θεογένης φησὶν ἐν τῷ περὶ Αἰγίνης. It is held however by schol. on A. 654 and by Römer 125, not to mention many others, that the Ach. passage refers to Callistratus. Christ-Schmid 393 leaves the question open.

4. Why was not Arist. the διδάσκαλος of his first play? Answers vary: because of his modesty, say those who take E. 512-45 and N. 530 f. seriously; because too young legally to receive a chorus (schol. N. 510); because a foreigner (van Leeuwen Vesp. XII); because a coward "safe crouched behind a name, Philonides or else Callistratus, put forth when danger threatened" (Browning Aristophanes' Apology, with the amenity due a brother poet!); because he was rich, or had μικροφωνία like Sophocles, or . . . etc. | That the Banqueters was brought out διὰ Καλλιστράτου is stated in Prolegg. de Comoedia III (Dübner p. xv 50 = Bergk p. xxxii § 12). Philonides is thought the more probable διδάσκαλος by Kock (Nub. 531) and Teuf.-Kaehl. 4. But Weber 95-108 regards the play as a political rather than a moral satire, aimed at such rhetorical πολιτικοί as Thrasymachus. If then Prolegg. de Com. (l.c.) is correct in further reporting that Arist. intrusted his political comedies to Callistratus, and those aimed at Euripides and Socrates to Philonides, it follows that Callistratus brought out the Banqueters.

5. Arist. refers to the Banqueters and its results for him in A. 502 f., 642 ff.; see also schol. on A. 378. | The poet prosecuted was Arist., say Fritzsche, Bergk, A. Müller, Ribbeck, Cobet, Capps,

Fr. Leo, Kaibel, Meyer 4. 377, Busolt 3. 1061, Haigh 73, Croiset 73, Starkie Ach. p. 247 (where see list of disputants and passages cited); was rather Callistratus (or Philonides), say C. F. Hermann, Petersen, Kock, Müller-Strübing, Briel, Wilhelm, Reisch, Römer (see Starkie l.c.). | Penalty of the suit: discussed by Croiset 78–80.

6. The tradition of a γραφὴ ξενίας (schol. Ach. 378, Vita XI li. 27 Dübner = Bergk XII § 4) is rejected by J. Kirchner (Prosopographia Attica), Römer (130), Busolt (3. 1061), Christ-Schmid (393); is held probable by Croiset (143); is matter of conviction with van Leeuwen (Prolegg. 39). Van Leeuwen's theory is this: the poet's stock was Aeginetan—note Pindar's third Nemean in honour of the Aeginetan Aristocleides, son of an Aristophanes. His father Philip sided with Athens in the war which began c. 488, and was one of those who migrated to Attica then (Hdt. 6. 90) or later in 458. He was admitted to citizenship, his wife remaining Aeginetan. Pericles' bill requiring for citizenship that both parents be Athenians was passed in 451. If now the poet was born before 451, his citizenship could not be challenged; if born later, his alienship was no less certain; if born just in 451, his status might be matter of doubt. In 431, Aegina being cleared of its inhabitants and occupied by Athenians, Philip claimed his old patrimony, and thus the passage in Ach. refers to Arist. and not to Callistratus.

7. From the ὑποθέσεις we know that Ach., Av., and Lys. were brought out by Callistratus, the Vesp. and Ran. by Philonides. Callistratus also had in charge Δαιτυλῆς (Prolegg. de Com. III 50 Dübner) and Βαβυλώνιοι (Suidas); Philonides taught Προάγων (Hyp. Vesp.), Ἀμφιάρεως (Hyp. Av.), and probably Nub. (Dübner Prolegg. de Com. III 52). Arist. himself is the official poet only for Eq., Pax (?), and Plut., though this list also is questioned (Vita XI 80 Dübner = Bergk XII § 12). | Were Callistratus and Philonides poets or only actors? Vita XII § 15 Bergk (= Dübner p. xxviii footnote) speaks of them as ὑποκριταί; but Vesp. 1018 honours them with the name of poet. For sufficient discussion see Teuf.-Kaehl. 5 and Starkie Vesp. p. 309. | Note that other poets sometimes employed διδάσκαλοι; e.g. Eupolis exhibited Autolykus διὰ Δημοστράτου (Athen. 216 d), and Eubulus made use of Philip son of Arist. as διδάσκαλος (schol. Plat. Apol. 19 b).

8. ἔγραψε δὲ δράματα μδ', ὧν ἀντιλέγεται τέσσαρα ὡς οὐκ ὄντα αὐτοῦ (Vita XI 85 Dübner = Bergk XII § 13). | On the son Araros: Hyp. IV Plut., Prolegg. de Com. (Dübner) XI 77, XII 36, XIII 16, XV 21.

9. The name of the third son was Nicostratus (Vitae XI 79, XII 43 Dübner) or Philetaerus (Suidas, schol. Plat. Apol. 19 c). | Arist. bald: E. 550, N. 540, P. 767 ff., Eupol. 78.

10. Names of all comedies by Arist.: Teuf.-Kaehl. 3 f., Kock Com. Fragm. | Arguments of the extant comedies: Teuf.-Kaehl. 8-19, Christ-Schmid 395-410, W. C. Wright Hist. Grk. Lit. 284-303.

12. Rhythms of Arist.: Rossbach 3. 2. 799 ff. | Diction: Tucker Ran. xxxiv-lvi. | Love of Nature: Croiset 15, Busolt 3. 925. | Pathos: exx. in A. 810 (starving Megarian takes "this one fig"), V. 291-315 (boy-escort pleads for figs), L. 596 f. (woman's bloom is brief), Pl. 281 f., 535 ff. | Structure of plays: so varied and supple as to be the despair of formalists. They would beg him, as Trygaeus begs the dancers in Pax 323, "not to spoil the thing by his capers" (μηδαμῶς . . . πρῶγμα κάλλιστον διαφθείρητε διὰ τὰ σχήματα); but like those dancers either his left leg or his right will break loose to fling one more heaven-high pas. — Thus his "Πάροδος" is not always an entering song. In Nub. the chorus sing it before entrance, in Thesm. they suddenly are presented to view without either entry or song, in Eccl. they sing their first song not as they file in but file out. — Nor are the choirs always half-choirs (12 in each), singing in responsion; see R. Arnoldt Die Chorpartien bei Arist. (1873) 178 on (e.g.) Thesm. 1136-59, and Zielinski 275 for Ran. 399-416. — Nor does P. Mazon believe that the "Ἀγών" (word-duel) need be cast in the rigorous mould required by Zielinski; Essai p. 5: "la comédie grecque est faite d'une succession régulière de cadres souples et non d'une succession incohérente de cadres rigides." He thus finds an ἀγών not unsymmetrical in A. 490-625, N. 358-475, Th. 372-530, where Zielinski found no ἀγών at all (or at most but fragments due to revision or corruption), because these passages were not of the stereotyped form seen in E. 756-941, N. 950-1104, Av. 451-638. | Wit of Arist.: Teuf.-Kaehl. 23 f., Starkie Ach. xxxviii — lxxiv. The latter elaborately classifies Aristophanic jests by the Aristotelian scheme found in Prolegg. de Com. X d Dübner (= Bergk XI = van Leeuwen Prolegg. 192 f.).

E. 173 f., 1303 f.), Gibraltar (Plut. Nic. 12). | Supreme insolence (ὑβρις) shown, for example, toward the Melians (Thuc. 5. 89); also in displaying the tribute and orphans in the orchestra of the theatre at the Dionysia in the presence of the allies (Isoc. 8. 82 f.). τίκτει τοι κόρος ὕβριν (Theogn. 153). ὑβρις φυτεῖε τύραννον (Soph. O. T. 873).

Pol.* 24. 2, Busolt 3. 224-28. The oppression must have been considerable and notorious to have drawn such heavy fire from the comic poets; see Arist. Βαβυλώνιοι, V. 237, Av. 147, 1022, 1050, 1422, Eupol. Πόλις especially frg. 233. | Hatred of Athens universal: Isoc. 8. 77-79. | Corruption of character by war: Thuc. 3. 82 f. | Ambition of Pericles: Plut. Peric. 7.

20. Peloponnesian war a conflict between democracy and oligarchy (Whibley 34); its cause, Sparta's fear of Athens' growing power (Thuc. 1. 23, 33, 86), or Athens' resolve to maintain her naval empire (Bury 397). | The "sycophants" or false informers and blackmailers: Xen. Conviv. 4. 30, Plut. Nic. 2 fin., 4 med., 5 init., Meyer 4. 141-43. | Fear of tyranny: Thuc. 6. 27. 3, 6. 28. 2; Arist. 21. Invasions of Attica took place in 431, 430, 428, 427, 425, and 413 B.C., when finally Decelea was seized and permanently occupied by the Lacedaemonians; Thuc. 2. 19, 2. 47, 3. 1, 3. 26, 4. 2, 7. 19. | Athens crowded with country-folk: Thuc. 2. 17. 1-3, 2. 52. 2-3, Arist. 23. Cleavage of opinion crosswise and lengthwise: not all noblemen were oligarchic, nor all conservatives ignorant; some old men were radical, some city-people religionists ; no working majority was left on any subject. Meyer 4. 148 ff., 420 ff.

25. Moral ruin resulting from war : Thuc. 3. 82 f., Meyer 4. 345 f., 417 f. Note the falling off of Athenian respect for sacred precincts between 446 B.C. at Brea, and 424 at Delium (C. L. Hicks Man. of Grk. Hist. Inscript. No. 29, Busolt 3. 417 f., Thuc. 4. 97 f.). Compare also Athens' oath in 445 B.C., to deal honourably and justly by Chalcis with her condemnation of the Lesbians in 427, and her butchery of the Melians in 415 (Hicks No. 29, Busolt 3. 433, Thuc. 3. 36, 5. 116). — Beloch, however (1. 594 f.), finds no moral deterioration resulting from the war but only a letting loose of passions previously there but asleep.

Some of his policies were as follows : (1) all offices of state and jury service thrown open to all citizens with pay (Aristot. Polit. 1274 a 8, Ath. Pol.

27. 4, Plut. Peric. 9, Bury 349, Abbott 135); (2) cleruchies (Plut. l.c., Bury 365, Abbott 111, 135, 286); (3) allies to be kept well in hand (Bury 362, 382, Abbott 130 f., 156-59); (4) league-money to be used to adorn Athens (Plut. Peric. 12-14, Bury 364, 373, Abbott 135-39); (5) splendour of festivals increased, and theoric fund established (Plut. Peric. 9, Holm 2. 204, Busolt 3. 264 f.). 35. Parodies of Kinesias, for example, in Av. 1372-1400; of cyclic poets in general, Nub. 335-38. | Of Timotheus it may be true that his originality lay rather in music, and that in his poetry he but followed tradition and the trend of his times, his metaphors, for example, being hardly more enigmatic than others by his predecessors. But when he sows these metaphors "with the sack and not with the hand," when almost every phrase is a strain for some "effect," who is not reminded of Molière's Précieuses Ridicules? When he calls a ship's oars its "mountain-feet" (οὐρείους πόδας, because made of the mountain-grown fir), when thole-pins are for him "marble-shining children" (μαρμαροφεγγεῖς παῖδας) which have "leaped out of the mouth" when crushed in battle (στόματος ἐξήλλοντο), when the sea strewn with wreckage and dead bodies seems to him "starry" (κατάστερος πόντος), can we say that the ridicule is not deserved in Arist. N. 333 ff.? See note on § 100. La Bruyère says of those who frequented the Hôtel Rambouillet: "They left to the vulgar the art of speaking intelligibly; a phrase, not over clear, expressed before them, was sure to bring on another still more obscure, which was at last followed by positive enigmas, always greeted with the plaudits of the whole circle. . . . To take part in these discussions one wanted neither good sense, memory, nor capacity, but esprit, not of the best or most genuine, but of the falsest kind."—It appears that here, too, the Greeks were precursors of the moderns.

36. For "resolutions" in tragic trimeter see Christ Metrik § 378.

37. Aeschylus neglected, and Euripides enthroned, at least with the youth: Arist. N. 1367, 1371, R. 771-78. Note that according to Couat 339 Arist. parodies no less than thirty-three of Euripides' tragedies—a pointless thing, had he not counted on the acquaintance of the public with the originals.

38. Bankruptcy of poetry at end of fifth century B.C.: Christ-Schmid 236. | Strabo 18 (1. 2. 6) αὐτὸ δὲ τὸ πρὸν λεχθῆναι τὸν ἀνευ τοῦ μέτρου λόγον ἐμφαίνει τὸν ἀπὸ ὕψους τινὸς καταβάλλοντα καὶ ὀχλήματος εἰς τοῦδαφος. | On "Art for art's sake": Meyer 4. 160 (Euripides) "ist stolz auf sein Denken, auf seine geistige Superiorität"—"nur zu oft ist ihm das Einfache zu einfach, und er greift zum Unnatürlichen."

46. Pericles and Aspasia: Plut. Peric. 24, Beloch 1. 474,

Couat 135 "Son mariage illégal avec Aspasia était, pour la plupart des Athéniens, un défi jeté à leurs traditions les plus respectables. ized. Need felt for a personal, not alone for a tribal or city god. Worship of Dionysus, Demeter, Persephone, the "nature-gods," recognized by the state along with that of the Olympian gods — i.e. religion becomes democratic, is no longer aristocratic, as in Homer). | The passing of Zeus: Gard.-Jev. 296, Harrison 29. "On me no spot is to be seen;
The tub of Faith hath wash'd me clean;
Each splash has vanish'd, scraped and scored On Holiness's washing-board;
In Vigilance's mangle I
Have wrung my Adam's-vesture dry;
And shine like snowy surplice fair,
Soap-lather'd with the suds of Prayer."

67. — (31) Morose People: as Timon; Phryn. 18, Plat. 218, Arist. Av. 1549, L. 809-20.

67. — (32) Proud People (κομῆται): Arist. E. 580, N. 14, 1100, V. 466, 1069, Av. 911, Com. Adesp. 12.

72. Aristophanes a "mere jester": Grote, ch. 67; the prize his main aim: Tucker Ran. xxii. But a glance at the structure of his plays will always reveal a serious purpose. His jolly personifications Πόλεμος, Εἰρήνη, Κῦδος (Hubbub), Θεωρία, Πλούτος, and Δῆμος (Uncle Sam) provide food for thought as well as laughter. And the droll interruptions of the clown or rustic may be shelled out from between the stages of a serious argument as the filling from a layer-cake. They are a mere device to keep the audience merry. The poet had to assume the gay air and the dunce's cap as Solon did his πυλίδιον (Plut. Sol. 8, A. Dieterich Pulcinella 156), the better to obtain a hearing and escape the penalty of overmuch gravity. Examples of such pre-, inter-, and post-luding nonsense are: A. 407-79, a hilarious rag-borrowing scene, to prepare for the earnest plea for peace; N. 314-411 a satire on modern science relieved of continuity by the absurd misunderstandings of Strepsiades; V. 500 ff., an easement of the otherwise offensive speech that precedes; L. 1122-61, a plea for reconciliation of Sparta and Athens, obscenely interrupted to save it for comedy; R. 316-419, the procession of the mystae saved from too great solemnity by the buffoonery of Xanthias and Dionysus; R. 674-737, two earnest appeals for amnesty and election of wise leaders introduced by two chaffing odes on Cleophon the demagogue and Cleigenes the bathman — reversing the usual order of grave and gay in parabasis as seen, e.g. in N. 563-626. Add to these the clown's part, assumed almost regularly in the δγῶνες by somebody, as by Demosthenes in E. 303-460, Demus in E. 756-941, Euelpides in Av. 451-638, Calonike (or γυνή α) in L. 476-613, Dionysus in R. 895-1098, Chremes (or γείτωρ) in Ec. 571-708, Blepsidemus in Pl. 487-599. See Zielinski 116 f.

73. Judgment of Arist. confirmed by others; e.g. concerning Cleon by Thuc. 3. 36. 6, 4. 21. 3, 5. 16. 1, Aristot. Ath. Pol. 28. 3; Hyperbolus πονηρός, Thuc. 8. 73. 3; Cleophon balker of peace (R. 1532), Aristot. *Ath. Murray Euripides (1906) xxxvili); should recall Alcibiades (R. 1431 ff.), Thuc. 6. 15. 4, Croiset 263, Busolt 3. 1579; should declare amnesty (R. 686-705), Lys. 34. 3. — What he says of lyric poetry's badness is confirmed by Timotheus' Persians; of Euripides as unsettling philosopher rather than dramatic poet, by the tragedies extant; of Kinesias by Lysias frg. 143 (= Athen. 551 e) and Plato Gorg. 501 e-502 a; of enervated and seductive music by Plato Rep. 398 e, 399 c d.

74. Comic poets "in the pay of the oligarchs": Couat 33-

55, 173, 382 f.; Holm 2. 448-51 (Arist. "the organ of the anti-democratic opposition").

Demagogues assailed: the Knights, the greatest piece of invective in any language, is levelled at Cleon, demagogue of Athens from 428 to 422 B.C. Not a bone in his character is left unbroken. He is reduced to "mincemeat" (Vesp. 63). The play opens with a curse upon him as a Paphlagonian slave in the house of Demus the People. He is called a most slanderous rascal (vv. 44, 247-50, 331, 450, and often), a tanner (136, 197, 203, 209, etc.), a cringing flatterer (47, 216, 266-70, etc.), a deceiver (48, 633, etc.), a supplanter of the honest servants of the People (52 f.), a "boss" who bestrides the world (75 ff.), an embezzler (137, 444, etc.), and a bawler (137, 218, 256, 274-76, 286, 304, 311, 626, and very often). The qualifications of a demagogue are low birth, ignorance, and general beastliness (βδελυγία, 181-93, 218, etc.); his handicap is any knowledge whatsoever (190). His methods are to agitate, bluster, and flatter (213, 363, 431, etc.). Rich and poor alike quake before him (223 f., 265). He is ready to play the informer and utter denunciation at any moment (235-39, 259-65, 278 f., 282 f., 299-302, 314, 326, 361, 435, 475-79, 628, etc.). He is an extortioner (248), a guzzler of plunder (248), a pension-getter for the veteran jurymen by increasing their business, importance, and pay (255 f.). He is a foul villain (303), impudent (304), a muck-raker (308), a tribute-fisher (313), a cheat in his private leather business (316 ff.), shameless (324 f., 397, 409), a trickster (332), and a gourmand (354 f., 361, etc.). Perjury and pilfering are sure signs of his incipience (425-28). He shirks military duty (443). He talks down to his hearers wagon-maker phrases, unlike the lofty Pericles (462). He treats privately with the enemy to his own gain (467). He prays to gods of his own (Juggle-naut, Hoax, and Humbug) for impudence, a ready tongue, and a shameless voice (634-37). He will go any length in overbidding for popular favour (626-82, 781-85, 871 f., 883-91, 905-11, 1101-06, 1164-1200). His good omen is a πορδὴ (639). He buys the whole Senate with an obol's worth of coriander (682). His favourite relish is "purse"-ley sauce (707). He chews food for the People ($\Delta\eta\mu\omicron\varsigma$) like a nurse, but swallows three quarters of it himself (716-18; cp. 1222 f.). He hinders the state from profiting by service of the $\kappa\alpha\lambda\omicron\iota\ \kappa\acute{\alpha}\gamma\alpha\theta\omicron\iota$ (734-36). His devotion to $\Delta\eta\mu\omicron\varsigma$ is wholly self-interested (780). He helps himself from the public treasury with both hands (826 f.). He muddies the stream the better to fish (864-67). He will "get even" with an enemy by having his property-assessment raised (923-26). His signet ring is a wide-gaping cormorant haranguing on the Pnyx (956). He knows but one scale in music, $\Delta\omega\rho\omicron\text{-}\delta\omicron\kappa\iota\sigma\tau\acute{\iota}$, "B-sharp in Harpeggi" ($\acute{\alpha}\rho\pi\alpha\gamma\acute{\eta}$); 987-96. The hollow of his hand is ever ready (1083); he steals for the public good (1226). — Other references to the demagogue: N. 1093 f., V. 32-41, 242, 409 ff., 596 f., 666 f., 669 f., 699, 759, 1100 f., Ec. 408-21. — For the real Cleon, Busolt 3. 988-98.

Democracy criticized: easily duped by demagogues, E. 753-55, 803 f., 1115, 1340-45; willing to follow rascal leaders, E. 734-40, P. 680-84, R. 727-33, Ec. 176-78, Pl. 920; stupid as a granny, E. 62, 396; liable to Sibyl-itis, E. 61; quick-tempered, peevish, a little deaf, E. 40-43, P. 607; loved "pensions" ($\mu\iota\sigma\theta\omicron\phi\omicron\rho\epsilon\acute{\iota}\nu$), E. 1352; procrastinated, A. 23, L. 56 f., Ec. 788-90; was fickle, A. 630 ($\tau\alpha\chi\acute{\upsilon}\beta\omicron\upsilon\lambda\omicron\iota$), 632 ($\mu\epsilon\tau\acute{\alpha}\beta\omicron\upsilon\lambda\omicron\iota$), E. 518 ($\epsilon\pi\acute{\epsilon}\tau\epsilon\upsilon\omicron\iota\ \tau\eta\nu\ \phi\acute{\upsilon}\sigma\iota\nu$), Ec. 218-20, 456 (woman-rule the only thing untried), 586 f., 797 f., 812-22, also Plat. 22, 220, Archip. 14; had the dicastic fever or litig-itis, Vesp. entire, with the chief symptoms in vv. 91, 94, 100, 108, 110, 112 ff., 281 ff., 511 f., 517 f., 563, 621-28, 651, 967-84, 999 f., 1102-21, see also E. 710, 1317, 1358-60, N. 208, 1004, 1220, P. 107 f., 505, Av. 40 f., 110 f., Ec. 657, and Telecl. 2; suffered from decree-mania, E. 1383, N. 1019, 1429, V. 378, Av. 1289, Ec. 812-22, frgg. 217, 584, N. 587 ($\delta\upsilon\sigma\beta\omicron\upsilon\lambda\acute{\iota}\alpha$); elected youngsters to office and foreign missions, A. 601-06, 680 ff., 716, V. 687; elected military leaders without regard to fitness, A. 1078, N. 581 ff., Av. 798-800, R. 727-33, Eupol. in $\Delta\eta\mu\omicron\iota$ (100, 102, 116, 117, 121), $\Pi\acute{o\lambda\epsilon\iota\varsigma$ (205), 310, Plat. 185, see also Couat 83.

Couat 382 thinks the charges of Arist. the "most virulent ever written against democracy"; but he forgets ps.-Xen. Rep. Ath., and he probably confuses the attack on demagogues with the criticisms of democracy. Neither are these criticisms the charges of a "mere jester." Much has become believable of democracy since Grote wrote his history in 1846. Arist. gives the reality perhaps more accurately (though with comic exaggeration) than Pericles in his funeral oration, which presents the high ideal but not the accomplished facts of Athenian democracy. At all events, it was Arist. and not Pericles' oration which, as the story goes, Plato sent to Dionysius of Syracuse when the latter wished to learn of the polity of Athens (Arist. Vita XI 60 Dübner).

Aristophanes not anti-democratic: Whibley 98 f., Croiset 176 ("nulle part il ne se montrait l'ennemi de la démocratie"), Th. Kock Rh. Mus. 39 (1884), 118-40. Arist. never said with Alcibiades "Democracy is a ὁμολογουμένη ἀνοία" (Thuc. 6. 89. 6), though in Equites he as good as says, after Demodocus: "Democracy is not tomfoolery, but it acts as if it were." Yet at the end of the play (1340-95) Demus is reformed and blest, and does not become either oligarchy or tyranny; for the poet does not believe the rule of the people essentially bad, as does ps.-Xen. in Rep. Ath. Indeed, he is so heartily a democrat that he ridicules the fear of συνωμοσία, tyranny, or Laconism as senseless: E. 257, 452, 476-78, 862, V. 345, 474-76, 482 f., 487-502, 507, 953, P. 640, L. 630, Th. 338 f. The very name of "aristocracy" or "Sparta" (= oligarchy) is detestable to the two Athenians in Av. 125 f., 815 f. In Th. 1143-47 there is a prayer to Pallas to come with peace, as hater of tyrants. | Aristocrats flouted: Kock Λα. 133 names the oligarchic aristocrats who are constantly the butts of Old Comedy, e.g. Alcibiades, Callias, Phaeax, Phrynichus, Pisander, Theramenes, Leogoras, Glauketes, and Morychus. (Perhaps this list should be revised.) Add Antiphon (Crat. 201 (?), Plat. 103, Arist. V. 1270, 1301). In L. 577 f. oligarchs seem to be collectively referred to.

76. Praise and blame: see n. on § 112.

77. Athenian audience in theatre conservative and democratic : Croiset 9-11. | Peace the theme of Ach. Γεωργοί, 'Ολκάδες, Pax, Lys., and Νῆσοι. | On injustice practised upon the allied cities and for pleas in behalf of milder treatment, see Βαβυλώνιοι, A. 642, E. 802, 1034, 1070 f., 1319, V. 669-71, P. 639-47, 759 f., 935 f., Av. 1422-60. | Alliance suggested with Sparta : P. 1082 ; and earnestly urged : L. 1114-61 ; see n. on § 81. | Dealings with Persia disapproved : A. 62-130. | Whibley 94-103 holds that Arist. "was the representative man of the middle party," "which accepted the constitution as it was, and worked loyally under it." | In attacking Cleon in the Knights despite the warning received after Babylonians, Arist. took a far graver risk than loss of prize. Nor was he merely a humorist when he wrote the present ending of Nubes. Nor was Hermippus merely a buffoon, no matter what his motive, when he brought suit against Aspasia (Plut. Peric. 32).

78. Arist. detests vulgarians — the πονηροί, ἀγοραῖοι (e.g. P. 750, R. 1015, frg. 471), and tradespeople. There fall under his ban all -πῶλαι and their offspring, as the στυππειο-, προβατο-, βурсο-, ἀλλαντο-, λυχνο-, βελονο-πῶλαι (E. 129-43, 739, Pl. 175) ; the σκυτοτόμος and νευρορράφος (E. 739 f.) ; the βурсοδέψης (N. 581), πυτινοπλόκος (Av. 798), λυροποιός (R. 679), κεραμεύς (Ec. 253), γεωργός (Pl. 903), and especially Euripides the son of a λαχανό-πωλις (A. 457, 469, 478, E. 19, Th. 387, 456, 910, R. 840, 947) ; cp. Nicophon 19 (K. 1. 779). For the unexampled portrait of the vulgarian in politics see Cleon's in Equites. | On all plebeian successors of Pericles see Busolt 3. 986 ff. | The Δίκαιος Λόγος will teach you to hate the ἀγορά (N. 991) ; under reformed democracy no ἀγένειος shall have business in it (E. 1373). | For ridicule of fops see n. on § 67, 20-24.

79. Arist. gentle with the oligarchs : so Couat 173, 184. | Reference to revolution of 411 B.C. : R. 689 ff. ; to recall of Alcibiades : R. 1422-34. But Arist. was never deceived by Alcibiades as Eur. was, who wrote an ode to glorify his Olympic victories (Plut. Alcib. 11 ; see n. on § 67, 3).

81. Plea for reconciliation between Athens and Sparta based on their religious union at the altars of Olympia, Thermopylae, and Delphi: L. 1128-61, P. 1082. | Panhellenism is first invoked in P. 302 to win peace, with a call on Boeotians (466), Argives (475), Laconians (478), and Megarians (481) to join. In P. 996-98 is a prayer for a spirit of friendliness between them. Later, Panhellenism is to be, not a federation, but actual Athenian citizenship for all resident aliens, well-wishers, the colonial islands and Ionia: L. 579-86. Whibley 100: "It is scarcely possible to overestimate the significance of this passage."

82. Arist. a "chimerical poet": Croiset 233. His wisdom uttered too late: Croiset L.c., Busolt 3. 1414, Meyer 4. 12 and 559. | Democracy in danger if it relaxed its tyranny! So Pericles: Thuc. 2. 63. 2. | Diodotus' speech: Thuc. 3. 42-48.

83. Quotations are from Grote's History ch. 67, and Jevon's Hist. Grk. Lit. 263. Also Browning twits Arist. on his ineffectiveness not only in politics but in restraining the trend of the times: Aristophanes' Apology (Cambridge edit., 1895) 659 and 656 f.

84. Society without slavery a novel doctrine: Nestle 359 f.

85. Women in Arist.: wanton (L. 1-3, 107-10, 191 f., 677, 715 ff., Pl. 959-1096); extravagant, proud, fond of adornment (N. 48-52, L. 42-48, frg. 320 naming 52 articles of toilet "καὶ ἄλλα πολλά"); fond of wine (L. 114, 195 ff., 235, 466, Th. 347 f., 393, 557, 630 f., 733-59, Pl. 645, 737, 972, Pherecr. Κοριαννώ and frg. 143); general bad character (Th. 383-432) as caused by Euripides' slanders, 473-519, 531-65, frg. 10, Plat. 174. — But Praxagora has good things to say of women in Ec. 215 ff. (are conservative), 233 ff. (loving mothers), 236 (resourceful), 441 (are a πράγμα νοουβουστικόν), etc. | On Eur. the misogynist: Nestle 267, 254. | Humour of Thesmoph.: Müller and Donaldson Hist. Grk. Lit. ch. 28 § 9.

86. Communism (including that of wives): Eccl. presents the theory in 571-709 (ἀγών), the results in the scenes following thereupon. Note especially vv. 590, 594, 597. | Socialism — equal distribution of wealth: Plut. especially vv. 128-97, 487-618 (ἀγών) for the theory, vv. 850-1209 for the results. Note 552 f.

(distinguishing the πένης from the πτωχός), 600 (where Chremylus in answer to the argument in favour of poverty can only say οὐ γὰρ πείσεις, οὐδ' ἂν πείσης). The irony of the finale is the same as that in the finale of Vesp. and Aves, i.e. the seeming success is only tinselled blank failure. — See R. Pöhlmann Gesch. des antiken Communismus (1901) 2. 1-32.

88. Priests rallied: P. 1031 and Eupol. 211 on Stilbides; Av. 851-95, Pl. 1171-90 they serve only for the perquisites — will desert the established cult, if one shall appear more remunerative. | Soothsayers: Diopieithes in E. 1085, V. 380, Av. 988, Telecl. 6, Phryn. 9; Hierocles in P. 1046-1126, Eupol. 212; Lampon, see n. on v. 332 infra. | Oracles: E. 61, 109 ff., 797 ff., 818, 961-1095, 1229, V. 159 f., P. 1063-1120, Av. 962-91, L. 770-76. | Omens: E. 639 πορδή = παρμός, Av. 719-22 ὄρνις-ὄνος, R. 196 on leaving home. | Thessalian witches: N. 749. | *Bogey*s: R. 293 and frg. 501 Ἐμπουσα.

89. Arist. himself an unbeliever: so Couat 241, 244 f., 250 ff., Meyer 4. 434, Browning op. cit. 651.

90. G. L. Dickinson Greek View of Life 44 f.: "Arist., if there had been an established church, would certainly have been described as one of its main pillars."

91. The gods ridiculed: Zeus, N. 367-402, 1081, ἡττων ἔρωτος, P. 42 σκαταιβάτης, Pl. 87-93 distributes wealth blindly, 125 his κερανοί cheapened, 128 his ἀρχή below that of Plutus, 582-91 he is either poor or a miser. — Apollo, Av. 584 μισθοφορεῖ. — Aesculapius, V. 122 f., Pl. 653-747 his temple-cures mocked, 706 σκατοφάγος. — Demeter, Av. 581. — Dionysus, throughout Ran. — Hermes, P. 180-728, Pl. 1097-1170 deserts the Olympians. — Hercules demigod, Av. 1574-1693, R. 38-164, 503-18, 550-68. — In general, they are lecherous, P. 849 f., Av. 557-60; sacrifice to them is quid pro quo, Av. 1514-24, Pl. 1113-16; their worship is expensive, Av. 612-26; their names are ornithized, Av. 864 ff. — Foreign gods: see n. on § 49. | Orphism hinted at: N. 254 ff. (initiation parodied), Av. 692 ff. (cosmogony parodied?), R. 145 (βόρβορος), 1032 (Orpheus brings rites). | But the day of the purifier such as Epimenides was long past, that of the healing priest in the temples of Aesculapius was, for the educated, rapidly waning. The wise had scaled a "peak in Darien" and were looking upon a new ocean. Rohde 2. 90.

92. Couat 229 finds that more than a third of the old comedies, whose titles are known to us, travestied mythologic subjects. But familiarity with their gods was always characteristic of the Greeks; note the song of Demodocus on Hephaestus in Od. 8. 266 ff., Homer's Hymns to Demeter (202 ff.) and to Hermes, the tug-of-war in Il. 8. 18 ff., and the ancient story of "Ἥρας δεσμοί." | In the mediaeval plays — the Mysteries, Miracles, and Moralities — easy familiarity is had with the devil, a sheep-stealer makes off with his booty while the "shepherds watch their flocks by night" (Secunda Pastorum, Towneley Plays), Cain uses outrageous language of God (Mactacio Abel, v. 238), and Noah must beat his wife to get her to go into the Ark (Processus Noe cum Filiis). Even in Dante's Inferno (21. 137-39, and 22 last third) demons with droll names (Malacoda, Alichino = Harlequin, Cagnazzo, Graffiaccane) must lighten the gloom with not overrefined frolic.

93. On the Feast of Fools see in great detail E. K. Chambers The Mediaeval Stage (1903) 1. 274-335.

95. "Consecrated Scurrility," or τωθασμός (Grote ch. 29, Frazer on Pausan. 1. 37. 3, Aristot. Polit. 1336 b 16) was practised in honour of Demeter (Hom. Hy. Demet. 202, Diod. Sic. 5. 4. 7, Pausan. 7. 27. 10), Damia and Auxesia in Aegina (Hdt. 5. 83), Dionysus (Athen. 622 b-d), Apollo in Anaphe (Apoll. Rhod. 4. 1717 ff., Conon c. 49), at the festivals Χόες, Λήναια, Ἐλευσίνια (Suidas s.v. τὰ ἐκ τῶν ἁμαξῶν σκώμματα, schol. Arist. Pl. 1014, specimen of γεφυρισμός Arist. R. 420-34), Στήνια (Phot. and Hesych. s.v.), Θεσμοφόρια and Ἀλῶα (Harrison 136, 148). For the same in Egypt see Hdt. 2. 60; for Africa Sall. Jug. 66. 2; for Italy Ov. Fast. 3. 675. Probably abuse saved an object or person from the envy of the gods or the evil eye. So farmers thought cummin grew better ἂν καταρώμενοι σπείρῳσι καὶ λαιδοροῖντες (Plut. Moral. 700 f.).

Phallus-worship connected itself with Dionysus as a god of vegetation. It was the "fetish of life," and "may have belonged to Pan-cult as to Hermes-cult in Arcadia and elsewhere" (Farnell 5. 433; cp. 5. 11). | φαλλοφόροι: Athen. 445 b, 621 f, 622 c d; Aristot. Poet. c. 4 ἡ κωμῳδία ἀπὸ τῶν τὰ φαλλικά ἐξαρχόντων. The Brea-colonists had to "send annually ἐς Διονύσια φαλλόν" (Hicks Man. of Grk. Hist. Inscript., No. 29). | Phallus carved over a city-gate at Alatri (Baumeister 1702) and Ferento (C. Sittl Die Gebäuden der Gr. u. Römer (1890) 122). | Phallus efficacious against the evil eye (Sittl 121). | Phallus worn by comic actors—not by the chorus: Arist. N. 538 f, V. 1342–49, Th. 239, 643–48, 1114, Haigh 290 f., A. Körte Jahrb. des kais. deutsch. archaeol. Instit. 8 (1893), 66 ff.

Obscenity carved in European cathedrals: Jules (Champ)fleury Hist. de la caricature au moyen age (1871), espec. pp. 245, 222, 155, 239 ff.; Thos. Wright, Hist. of Caricature and Grotesque (1865), through the first 200 pages. | For modern survival of phallus and obscene pantomime in Thrace and Thessaly, see W. Ridgeway, Origin of Tragedy (1910), 17 ff., or R. M. Dawkins in J. H. S. for 1906, 191–206. | On the necessity of obscenity in Old Comedy, see Couat, 375–82.

96. On one vulgarity see n. on v. 394 infra. | ὑπόνοια the mark of New Comedy, αἰσχρολογία of the Old: so Aristot. Eth. Nic. 4. 8 (=1128 a 23).

97. Ugliness on comic stage: see n. on § 67, 28; A. Dieterich Pulcinella (1897) 37 f. | Poverty ridiculed: Hermann 3. 45; n. on § 67, 27. | Jests at expense of the dead: e.g. Pericles (Arist. A. 530), Cleon (P. 47 f., 269–72, 313–15, 647–56, 669, 753–60), Hyperbolus (Th. 840), Euripides (Ran., second half), Phrynichus politician (R. 689). | The mother of Hyperbolus was jeered by Eupol. in Μαρικᾶς, of Cleophon by Plat. (56), of Euripides by Arist. (A. 457, 478, E. 19, Th. 387, 456, 910, R. 840, 947). | An exceptional instance of sensibility at sight of an unburied human body is recorded by Plato Rep. 439 c.

98. Saucy impudence a mark of Old Comedy and one of its recognized means of raising a laugh. For instances of self-praise and boasting aside from Arist. see Crat. 237, 306, Pherecr. 191, Eupol. 357, Lysip. 4 (K. 1. 701), Metagen. 14 (K. 1. 708); on contempt for competing poets see n. on § 67, 17.

A good example of this latter is the railleury poured out by the stripling Arist. upon his aged rival Cratinus. In A. 848-53 he pictures the old poet as a young buck wearing his hair in rakish fashion (perhaps parted in the middle?), playing the lady-killer and so feigning not to be passé. In A. 1173 is a prayer that he may unexpectedly collide with a handful of muck aimed at some one else. In E. 400, 526-36 he notes the ancient toper's love of drink and suggests that he receive public (not board, σίτησις, but) drink in the Prytaneum as a reward for his past great services, and not be permitted to go on drivelling out comedies, "played out" as he is. (Unhappily for Arist., the "driveller" wrote a play the following year, the πυρίνη Flask, which won the prize over Niibes!)

As for bragging, the parabases of the first six comedies of Arist. are nothing but six long odes of comic self-glorification and bids for the prize. See A. 628-64, E. 507-70, N. 518-62, V. 1015-59, P. 732-74, Av. 685-736 (where the birds promise πλουθυγίαν, εὐδαιμονίαν, etc., if the audience will believe them gods, i.e., proclaim them victors):

The humour of the impudence lies often in this, that the poet lays claim to a virtue which at that very time he patently lacks. Examples are as follows: He never yet has come forward to praise himself (A. 628 f.) — yet does so now. Ditto E. 512-16. Poets should be flogged who praise themselves (P. 734) — yet he proceeds to take the risk. He alone has put an end to comedy's jeering at rags and making war on fleas (P. 740) — yet note his own Euripidean tatters in Ach. and the battle with the fleas in Nub. 634, 696-725. He attacks no ιδιώτας ἀνθρωπίσκους but only some great Hercules like Cleon (P. 751 f.) — yet cannot keep his hands off even barbers and bathmen (Av. 300, R. 709). He has no brace of slaves bribing the audience by tossing them nuts as his rivals have (V. 58 f., cp. A. 657, Pl. 797-99) — yet his slave scatters the barleycorns in P. 962. He will not lampoon Euripides again (V. 61), yet on the same day with the promise does lampoon him in the Προάγων. "Nor shall we make mincemeat of Cleon again" (V. 62), yet he is slyly hashed to pieces in the same play in the debate between Philo-Cleon and Bdely-Cleon. He has not the heart "to jump on" a fallen foe (N. 550), yet for instances where Old Comedy assails not only the fallen but dead see P. 752 ff., Th. 840 ff., Ran. all the second half, and n. on § 97. He never repeats his jokes (N. 546 f.), yet says this when he is repeating, or trying to repeat, a whole play. His ideas are always new (l.c., V. 1044, 1053, frg. 528), yet (to mention a few among many) cp. Th. 690 ff. with A. 326 ff., Th. 466 ff. with A. 496 ff., Th. 733 ff. with A. 738 ff.

If therefore he scorns the vulgarity (τὸ φορτικόν) of his rivals, and claims that he has never descended to it, if it "rouses his gall, turns his stomach, and ages him more than a year" (R. 1-18, 358, N. 524, 537-43, P. 739-50, and often), we at once suspect that he will do his best to outdo those rivals in that same vulgar stuff. And so he does on every page, with the phallus and kordax everywhere (n. on § 95 and v. 540) and Lysistrata as climax. It could not be otherwise. Vulgarity and buffoonery (βωμολοχία) are the quintessence of Old Comedy; and for that Arist. stood stanchly to the end. Better honest coarseness, he thinks, than the modern delicate-handed hypocrisy. — Yet writers on Arist. continue to take N. 537 ff. seriously and make him out as attempting to elevate and purify the stage!

With the audience Arist. is unceremoniously familiar; few ugly names are left unapplied. They are not merely ταχύβουλοι and μετάβουλοι (A. 630, 632), but ἀνόητοι, εὐρύπρωκτοι, ἀβέλτεροι, λίθοι, πρόβατα (N. 898, 1096-1101, 1201 ff.), μαινόμενοι, κακότηεις (P. 55, 822 f.), δραπέται ἐστιγμένοι (Av. 760), γαστρίδες, βωμολόχοι, λωποδύται, ἀνδραποδισταί (Th. 814 ff.), ἐπίορκοι (R. 275 ff.), συκοφάνται (Ec. 440), ἄδικοι (Pl. 99). Cp. further E. 518, V. 65, 1052, P. 659, L. 1217-20, R. 783, 808, and Telecl. 4, Plat. 94. Sometimes one of the audience is singled out by name: V. 74 f., 81, R.

308 (?), Ec. 167, Pl. 800. Only rarely are they flattered as clever (δελιοί): E. 233, R. 810, 1109-18. — Other references to the audience: A. 442, E. 163, P. 1115, especially in bidding for the prize in the main parabasis, as in E. 546 ff., V. 1051 ff., P. 761, 765 ff., Av. 723-36, or elsewhere (Ec. 1141), and in direct appeal to the judges (κριταί): A. 1224, N. 1115-30, Av. 445 f., 1101-17, Ec. 1142 f., 1154-62; also Pherecr. 96. (For the prize sometimes a prayer is put up: E. 586-94, Th. 306, 355 f., 1229-31.)

Robert Browning's strictures on Arist. are most serious. He addresses him as "O genius and O gold," but deplores his exaggeration and advises him to "load his lash with no least lie." This is indeed poetic nemesis. As Arist. robbed Euripides of his rags in Ach., he is now himself despoiled, and can say with Euripides φροῦδά μοι τὰ δράματα (A. 470). Arist. should have been an Englishman, as also Josh Billings, whose prediction in his Farmer's Allminax for 1871 is a gross exaggeration: "This will be a good year for Allminax, they will do better this year, than they have did for the last 30,000 years."

99. Comedy scorns books: Arist. R. 943, 1114, 1409, frg. 490, Eupol. 304; the new schooling: n. on § 67, 13; the new music: n. on § 67, 18; fustian poetry: one item suffices to illustrate it — its dithyrambic compounds such as are in Timotheus' Persians 100 μακρανχενόπλους, 134 μελαμπεταλοχίτωνα, 229 μουσοπαλαιολύμας. Arist. can beat these; see P. 831 ἐνδιαερνανερηνγέτους, V. 505 ὀρθροφοιτοσυκοφαντοδοκοταλαίπωροι, Ec. 1169 a word of 180 letters! For others see N. 1004, V. 1357, R. 839, 963, 1337, and Blaydes on Ec. 1169 for an endless list.

100. Arist. antipathetic toward Socrates: Meyer 4. 429; on the other hand with a natural affinity for Plato, both being gentlemen and poets, and neither fanatic: Meyer l.c.

102. Euripides as seen by Aristophanes: his heroes are lame and ragged beggars: A. 395-479, P. 147 f., R. 842, 846, 1063; he and all his stage-folk keep up a constant democratic chatter (λαλιά, στωμυλία): A. 429, R. 91, 841, 943, 948-52, 1069, 1160; he discusses the problems of philosophers such as Socrates: R.

1491-99, 1477; he uses the language of the day and debates in the quibbling clever style of the rhetors before the courts: A. 444, 447, P. 532-34, R. 775, 826-28, 901; his one ambition and teaching was to be σοφός, to think (νοεῖν), to show comprehension (σύνεσις): A. 400 f., 445, E. 18, N. 1377, L. 368, Th. 21, 93, 927, R. 776, 893, 954-58, 973, 1451, frg. 638; his favourite themes were love-sick women, incest, adultery: N. 1371 ff., Th. 546 f., R. 850, 1043-54, 1079-81; his warblings and versicles (ἐπύλλια) were immoral: A. 398, P. 532, R. 849, 942, 944, 1302-09, 1323, 1328; his gods were Aether, Glib, Grasp, and Sniff: R. 892 f., Th. 272; or there were no gods at all: Th. 451 (see n. on § 57); he taught men to be μοχθηροί (R. 1011), ἀγοραῖοι, κοβάλοι, πανούργοι (R. 1015), στωμύλοι (R. 1069), to ἀνταγορεύειν (R. 1072), and shirk civic obligations (R. 1065 f.); his disciples were such as Cleophon and Theramenes (R. 967); he had filled Athens with ὑπογραμματεῖς and βωμολόχοι (R. 1084 f.), and emptied the gymnasia of all save chatterers (R. 1070, 1088, 1491 ff.). — See also n. on § 103.

| Arist. believed a poet should be the teacher of men and should make them better: R. 1008-10, 1030-36, 1053-56, A. 500, 645, 656-58, R. 391 f., 686 f.; Rohde 2. 224, S. H. Butcher Aristotle's Theory of Poetry and Fine Art, ch. 5.

103. Euripides patriotic: see his Heracleidae and Suppliants; tragic: Aristot. Poet. 1453 a 29 τραγικώτατος τῶν ποιητῶν; sympathetic: Mrs. Browning's "Our Euripides the human, With his droppings of warm tears," and cp. Arist. A. 413, 420, 422, R. 1063-66; woeful: O. Ribbeck "Prophet des Weltschmerzes" (Nestle 28). He unfrocked and denatured his heroes: note on § 102; neglected dramatic situation for the sake of περίπατοι (excursuses), ἀντιλογίαί (debates), and Socratic philosophy: Ran. 942, 775, 1491-99, 1477, Nestle 35-38; insulted dramatic propriety by introducing comic scenes: Nestle 32, 397 quoting schol. Androm. 32 and hypotheses to Alcest. and Orest.; was guilty of various mannerisms such as the stereotyped prologue (Ran. 1197-1247), and linguistic tricks such as κατῆγεν ἤγεν ἤγεν (Bacch. 1065, cp. Ran. 1336, 1354 f.) and οὐ θέλων θέλων or νύμφην ἀνυμφον

(Alcest. 141, 242, 521, 528, Hec. 431, 566, 608, 612, 948, 1121, sescenties, cp. Ran. 1082, 1334); left his chorus external to the play: Aristot. Poet. 1456 a 26-28, Arist. A. 443; employed the deus ex machina: Nestle 398 for recent discussions. | His themes disgusting, e.g. those of Chrysippus, Aeolus, Sthenoboea, the Cretans and Cretan Women: Arist. R. 850, 1079-81, N. 1371 ff., Nestle 33 f. and 394, who thinks Euripides stands to Aeschylus and Sophocles as Ibsen to Goethe and Schiller. Arist. felt that the grandeur of the Aeschylean tragedy was missing because the religious sense of Fate (such as that which doomed the house of Atreus) was gone out, leaving the Phaedras and Melanippes of Euripides to be actuated by the secular lawless passion of ordinary sexualism. Such presentation might be true to life and yet a libel; for the true soul of man is more divine than his life. Therefore Arist. called Euripides a libellous woman-hater.

104. If Ridgeway's theory of the origin of the drama be correct, viz. from the annual sacrifice and dirge celebrated at the tomb of the dead chieftain, may we not fancy that comedy, though distinct in origin, came in time to be the substitute for the games which followed the dirge and enlivened again the downcast spirits? So, too, now the military band plays a funeral march when escorting the soldier to his grave, but a quick and lively piece on the return.

108. Alcibiades' assault on Hipponicus: Plut. Alcib. 8.

109. Arist., like Plato, had his vision of a perfect Republic. It shall be no aristocracy (Av. 125 f.), nor tyrannical democracy either (147), but a Sans Souci (904 ff.) whence all undesirable citizens shall be excluded — hungry lyric poets, oracle-mongers, charlatan-scientists, government-inspectors, lobbyists (ψηφισματοπῶλαι), father-beaters, modern musicians, and informers. Revolutionists are roasted there (1584). There shall be no demagogues; only "the best" shall rule (R. 718-37, E. 738).

110. Socrates not a physical philosopher in mature life: Plat. Apol. 19 cd, Xen. Mem. 1. 1. 11; but for his earlier studies see Plat. Phaed. 96 b, Xen. Conviv. 6. 6 f., Couat 294, Mind N. S.

18 (1909), 278 f. Hence it is believed by Ivo Bruns Das literar. Porträt der Griechen (1896) 181 ff. and Meyer 4. 429 that in 423 B.C. Socrates was popularly supposed, and perhaps by Arist. also, to teach such doctrines as are put into his mouth in Nubes.

111. The cross-currents of the time: Meyer 4. 148 and 420. | Pisander: n. on § 67, 3; for his politics see Andoc. 1. 36, Whibley 90, Busolt 3. 1291. | Euripides scorned demagogues: Hec. 131-33, 254-57, Orest. 772, frgg. 194, 200, 784, 788, Nestle 289 ff.; loved democratic Athens: Heracleidae and Suppliants, Nestle 283, 314; longed for peace: frg. 453 from Kresphontes, Nestle 310; esteemed the middle class and the small farmer: Suppl. 238-45, Orest. 917-22, Nestle 299 ff.; deplored the power of the orators: Orest. 902-08, Med. 580-83, Hippol. 486 f., 989, frgg. 56, 206, 253, 439, 583, 597, Nestle 206 ff., 317 f.; vilified soothsayers: El. 400, Iph. A. 520 f., 956-58, Phoen. 954-59, frg. 795, Nestle 110 ff. | Cleon denounced Nicias: Thuc. 4. 27. 5; inveighed against rhetoric: Thuc. 3. 38. 2-7, Meyer 4. 421 f.; was the accuser of Anaxagoras: Diog. Laert. 2. 12, Busolt 3. 9. | Euathlus (n. on § 67, 5) accused Protagoras: Diog. Laert. 9. 54 reporting Aristotle. | Dioppeithes' law: Plut. Peric. 32, Busolt 3. 826, P. Decharme in Mélanges Perrot (1903) 73-77.

112. Praise of the "good old times" is frequent: Crat. 165, 238, 239, Telecl. 1, Arist. chiefly in the ἀγῶνες of Nub. (952-1104) and Ran. (895-1098, especially vv. 1014-17, 1071-73), E. 565-80, V. 1095, L. 274-82, 285, 665, Ec. 215-28; mention of Aeschylus: A. 10, N. 1365, frg. 153 and latter half of Ran.; of Myronides: L. 801, Ec. 303-07; of Phormio: E. 562, L. 804; of Phrynichus, tragic poet: V. 220, 269, Av. 748-50, Th. 164-67, R. 1299 f. (other mention being neutral). — Praise of the living or just-dead almost absent: Agathon: R. 84 (doubtful if praise); Arignotus: E. 1278 (lauded only to contrast with Aripkrades); Cratinus: R. 357 (dead); Dexitheus: A. 14 (contrast to Chaeris); Iophon: R. 73 (doubtful); Lamachus: Th. 841, R. 1039 (dead); Sophocles: P. 531; Pericles: Eupol. 94. In Ran. 696 Athens is praised for

NOTES ON THE TEXT

Hypothesis a'. ἀποτυχὼν κτλ.: it may be held as certain that no second Nubes was ever played; for Aristotle made no mention of such production in his Διδασκαλῖαι, as is proved by the schol. on v. 552. Indeed Ritter, van Leeuwen, and others doubt if the poet ever meant to present it a second time. They think he rewrote the parabasis, with perhaps a few other changes, and published the play as an appeal from the unjust judges and the mob to the cultured and posterity — hence the use of the first person ἐγώ in the parabasis. Van Leeuwen Prolegg. ad Nub. VII.

1. On sleeping outdoors see V. 68, where Philocleon sleeps ἐπὶ τοῦ τέγους. The thing is common in Greece and the Orient; there is no need to assume here the use of the ἐκκύκλημα, as do Merry, Rogers, and Mazon.

2. τὸ χρῆμα τῶν νυκτῶν: what a monster of a night, instead of what a monstrous night. The chief quality of a person or thing becomes the substantive thought and word, the person or thing being then thrown into the gen. or the adjectival form. Hence in Engl.: that rascal of a man, your Highness, his Majesty; in Greek: Τυδεὸς βία, σθένος Ἡερίωνος, ἱς Τηλεμάχοιο, δέμας Ἀγαμέμνονος, Ἰοκάστης κάρα (beloved Jocaste), δμμα νύμφας (dear bride), βίη Ἡρακληΐη (mighty Hercules); K.-G. I. 280. | In Arist. τὸ χρῆμα is thus used c. gen. as here with exclamat. ὅσον A. 150, E. 1219, Th. 281, R. 1278; without ὅσον V. 933, Av. 826, L. 83, 1031, 1085, Pl. 894, frg. 67. | For pl. νύκτες = horae nocturnae K.-G. I. 18. | On Greek facility of imagination in the theatre (imagining night when day), see Gard.-Jev. 687, and note children in their games: “Let’s play Bear”; then presto: “Let’s play Fire-engine.”

4. ἕν: not by any means is every ἐγώ or σύ emphatic; but those at the verse-end usually are: e.g. 49, 507, 1301, A. 50, 72, 325, 358, and often.

5. οὐκ ἄν: for the freq. omission of the verb after ἄν see GMT. 227; in Arist. after οὐκ ἄν or οὐδ' ἄν indic. is omitted in A. 137; N. 5, P. 907, Ec. 390; opt. in A. 966, 1035, N. 108, V. 298, Av. 11, 816, L. 130, Pl. 924; partic. in E. 1252. The verb is further omitted after οὐκουν ἄν L. 307; τί δῆρ' ἄν N. 154, 769, L. 399 and Eupol. frg. 46; τί δ' ἄν Th. 773; ὥς ἄν Ec. 735; other ἄν-connections N. 690, 1379, Av. 356, L. 113, 115, Ec. 920.

6. Alliteration (sound-play in the initial letter): cp. 12 f., 1049, 1376, 1407, A. 983 f., R. 829.

7. In-moving of the Attic country-folk; Thuc. 2. 14, 2. 16. | θε: causal, Lat. quando, quandoquidem; A. 401, 647, E. 1112, 1122, N. 7, 34, 717, 1217, 1474, V. 1134, P. 196, 1251, L. 421, Th. 707, R. 22, 1189 (from Sobol. Synt. 154 f.). This usage runs through the language; see Nilsson 51, 75, 90, 107, 129. | κολάσ' ἔστι: final -αι was usually sounded short, as witness the accent, e.g. of τράπεζαι, λύομαι, λύεσθαι (K.-Bl. 1. 320). Hence in daily speech it was probably elided like any short vowel, and for this reason in Arist. also, though not in tragedy, whether falling in arsis or thesis; e.g. in inf. (N. 7, 42, 523, 550, 780, etc.), in 1st sing. as οἶμ', δέομ' (V. 941, 1426, P. 102, 324), in 2d sing. as μέμνησ' (Av. 1054), in 3d sing. as φαίνειτ', κρεμήσεται' (V. 273, 808), in 2d sing. inv., as χάρισ', θέας' (P. 392, 906). Or -αι may stand fast, with aphaeresis of the foll. initial, as ἄχθομαι γώ A. 62, κεληγίσαι κέλενον V. 501. Sometimes, though rarely, crasis takes place, as in δήξομαρα A. 325, περίοφομάπελθόντα R. 509. Cp. ᾄμ = ᾄμοι 773, and see K.-Bl. 1. 238 and 223; Blaydes here.

13. Diaeresis of the three μέτρα is noticeable in varying degree: striking in e.g. A. 31, 199, N. 13, 47, 686, E. 100, 165, 218, P. 291, Av. 175, L. 884, R. 184, 608, 1203; less so in e.g. N. 147, 169, 225, 651, 678, 790, 802, 854, 869, 878, 885, 1258, A. 181; hardly at all in 127, 131, 854. Cp. notes on 16, 50, and for tragedy see T. Goodell Class. Phil. 1 (1906), 165.

14. κόμην ἔχων: cp. E. 580 c. schol., 1121, Av. 911, 1282, Xen. Rep. Lac. 11. 3, Lysias 16. 18, and see Gard.-Jev. 65.

15. ξυνωρικεύεται: prob. abridged from ξυνωριδι-κέυεται; cp. κομψ-ευριπ-ι-κῶς (E. 18), ἀμ-φορεύς, σκίμ-πους (N. 255) for *σκιμ-πο-πους and see Brug. 135, Herwerden Lex. Graec. Supplet. (1902) s.v. τριμίσκον.

16. Equal bisection of iambic trimeter is shown by T. Goodell Class. Phil. 1 (1906), 145-66, to be neither infrequent nor vicious, as is often stated. It is effective rhetorically in pointing contrasts and hinting at heightened feeling. The instances in tragedy Professor Goodell has collected; exx. in comedy with punctuation are E. 79, 671, 673, 1008, N. 16, 141, 1142, 1201, 1246, P. 847, 879, Th. 186; with hiatus E. 75, N. 487, 780, 822, 1177, V. 6, P. 588, 694, 833; with natural syntactic detachment A. 1027, E. 750, 1159, N. 101, 126, 181, 212, 814, 886, 1237. See further the exx. in n. on 51.

18. παῖ: addressed to a slave, is regularly without ὦ; so 132, 614, 1145 and very freq. But in familiar tone it is ὦ παῖ as in A. 432, 1136, 1137, 1140, Plat. Men. 82 b, Symp. 175 b. (In N. 87, 1165, V. 290, etc. ὦ παῖ is to son, not slave.) On ὦ c. voc. see J. A. Scott A.J.P. 24 (1903) and 26 (1905).

21. φέρ' ὦ: by Arist. used only in quest. (22 times), e.g. 494, 787, 847. For φέρε in quest. see n. on 218; for subjv., n. on 731.

22. τοῦ: gen. of exchange; N. 31, V. 1424, P. 848, Demos. 7. 23, Plat. Lys. 208 a, Xen. Cyr. 3. 1. 37. K.-G. 2. 378.

23. κοππατίας: on substantives in -ίας see Curt. Stud. 9 (1876), and for comedy Peppler 38. Exx.: μαστιγίας (R. 501), στιγματ- (L. 331), ὄροφ- (V. 206), καπν- (V. 151), συκοφαντ- (E. 437), πωγων-, σχιζ-, ἐμ-, σπογγ-, etc.

24. ἐκκόπην: ἐκκόπτω is the vox propria for destruction of eyes, teeth, and trees! Of eyes: A. 92, N. 24, Av. 342, 583, 1613, Demos. 18. 67, 24. 140, 24. 141, Aeschin. 1. 172, Luc. Tox. 24; of teeth: R. 548, 572, Phryn. frg. 68, Septuag. Exod. 21. 27; of trees: Hdt. 6. 37, 9. 97, Thuc. 6. 99. 3, Xen. Anab. 1. 4. 10, 2. 3. 10, Hell. 6. 5. 37, Lysias 7. 11, 7. 15, 7. 24, Demos. 53. 15 (of vines).

26. τοῦτ' ἐστὶ . . . τοῦτ' : cp. P. 64, Soph. O. T. 1013. For the quite diff. phrase τοῦτ' ἐκείνο see n. on 985. Different also is Av. 507.

28. πολέμιστήρια : on prizes to the victors in the Panathenaea c. 400 B.C. see Roberts and Gardner II no. 169 (or Dittenberger 2, no. 668), Mommsen Feste 85-98. Prizes for ἵπποι πολέμιστήριοι were as follows : in the single-horse race, 1st prize 16 amphoras of oil, 2d prize 4 ; in the 2-horse chariot-race, 1st prize 30 amphoras, 2d prize 6 ; for the 2 finest 2-horse chariots in the procession 4 amphoras and 1.

30. τί χρέος ἔβα με : in Euripides τί χρέος ἔβα δῶμα, where χρέος = χρῆμα as often. For Euripides' love of the terminal acc. (no prepos.) note in Hippol. alone vv. 36, 108, 233, 760, 782, 836, 841, 974, 1102, 1371.

32. ἑαλίσας : cp. Xen. Oecon. 11. 18. On horses and horsemanship in Greece see M. H. Morgan's transl. of Xen. περὶ ἵππων, with fine essays and notes (1893).

35. ἐνεχυράσασθαι : in support of the aor. -σασθαι of the Mss. see 1141 δικάσασθαι, GMT. 127, and the long list of such aorists in K.-G. I. 195-97 ; note also the marks of old fashion in Strep-siades' speech, as ὅπως 60, τοῦ πάππου 65, ἐκρινόμεθα 66. But in view of Kaehler's note here, showing that after φημί in the sense of promising, threatening, etc., Arist. uses the fut. inf. 27 times, it would be but obstinate to stickle for the aorist in two places. | On ἐνέχυρα and debts in general see Gard.-Jev. 539. | ἐτεόν : used by Arist. in quest. only ; e.g. 93, 820, 1502, E. 32, 733, 1246, 1392.

39. σὺ δ' οὖν κάθευδε : δ' οὖν with imv. and σύ (or 3d person δ, ἦ, οἱ, αἱ) in A. 186, N. 39, V. 6, 764, 1154, Av. 56, L. 491, Th. 612, R. 31 ; Aesch. Prom. 935, Eum. 226, 887 (c. potent. opt. μένους ἄν) ; Soph. Aj. 114, 961, El. 891, O.T. 310, 669, O.C. 1205, Tr. 329, 1157 ; Eur. Androm. 258, Her. Fur. 726, Rhes. 868, etc. The pronoun to us seems hardly to admit emphasis ; see n. on 4 and 1364. Cp. also μὴ σύ γε L. 189, 871.

39. ἰσθ' ὅτι : practically an adverb, as if ἰσθότι, like δηλονότι, it ignores syntax of ὅτι, though sometimes qualified by εἴ, σάφ', or τοῦτ' ; P. 373, Av. 1408, Th. 12, Pl. 183, 889. Adverbial also is (εἶ) οἷδ' ὅτι in A. 555, N. 1175, V. 1348, P. 365, 1296, etc. Sobol. Synt. 120. Cp. also πῶς δοκεῖς 881, οὐκ ἔσθ' ὅπως (οὐ) 802, θαν-μαστός-ὄσος, ὑπερφνωῶς-ῶς, and the like; K.-G. 2. 353 f. and 415.

40. εἰς τὴν κεφαλὴν: cp. A. 833, P. 1063, Pl. 526, 651, Plat. Euthyd. 283 ε, Demos. 18. 290, 19. 130.

41. εἶθε: in Arist. c. opt. E. 404, 618, L. 940, 974, Th. 1050, Ec. 947; c. indic. N. 24, Ec. 938; c. ὄφελον (-ες, -ε) N. 41, V. 731, P. 1068. R. 1382. Only three of these instances occur in dialogue verse (iambic trim.), viz. L. 940 (spoken by Kinesias the poet) and N. 24 and 41 (in the mouth of the old rustic); the other exx. are in lyric verse, dactylic hexam., or quoted from Euripides. In accord with this, εἶθε is certainly rare in Attic prose. I find it only in Xen. Mem. 1. 2. 46, Hell. 4. 1. 38, and Plat. Phaedr. 227 c. εἶθ' ὄφελον (-ες, -ε) I do not find at all outside of poetry. Here therefore Streps. seems to fall into the tragic style of Euripides, who uses εἶθε very frequently.

46. Μεγακλῆος: for the family tree see J. Kirchner Prosopographia Attica (1903) 2. 53; in part as follows:

NOTES: ¹ Hence the family name Alcmaeonidae. ² The Reformer 508/7 B.C. ³ The great Traitor. ⁴ Contemporary with the Clouds and mentioned by the comic poets (see Kock 1. 418 and 704) and by Thuc. 1. 126. 12. See also C.I.A. 1. 122-24 and 148-50. Schol. on Pind. Pyth. 7 says that he won an Olympic victory with chariot 436 B.C. Perhaps he is ὁ Κοισύρας in Ach. 614.

48. ἐγκεκουρωμένην: cp. 800, Ach. 614. Schol. here: ἔστι δὲ Ἑρετριακὸν τὸ ὄνομα. αὕτη δὲ ἐγαμήθη Πεισιστράτῳ ἐπιχειρήσαντι τυραννεῖν. Hence she must have been a daughter of the 2d Megacles in the above table (Hdt. 1. 60). But Lex. Vindobon. 60 says of her: ἦν μήτηρ Μεγακλέους, καὶ Ἀλκμαίωνος γυνή. Hence the modern uncertainty, so great that Wilamowitz denies her existence (Arist. und Athen 1. 111).

50. Itemizing diaeresis, as in 661, 1131, A. 31, V. 676 f. (anap. tetram.); cp. N. 212, 761 for probably a like meditative delivery.

51. One word exactly fills the 2d half of the verse. Of this there are 28 exx. in the first three plays. But in only 14 of them is there any likelihood of a medial caesura between the two halves. Such likelihood is underscored in the following: A. 37, 63, 87, 161, 194, 368, 374, 526, 603, 605, 871, 1089, 1176; E. 18, 37, 62, 175, 611, 1152, 1155, 1157, 1168, 1370; N. 15, 51, 166, 730, 747.

54. ἀν ἔφασκον: "iterative ἄν," GMT. 162; a colloquial usage found over 50 times in Arist., not at all in Hom., Hes., Pind., Aesch., twice in Soph. (Phil. 290, 443), once in Eur. (Phoen. 401), six times in Hdt., once in Thuc. (1. 71. 3), here and there in Xen. See R. C. Seaton Class. Rev. 3 (1889), 343. Exx. in this play c. impf. indic. 54, 855, 979, 981 (?), 1385; c. aor. indic. 977, 1382, 1384, 1385.

57. πότῃν λύχνον: if original with Arist., the metaphor was soon borrowed; see Plat. com. frg. 190 ὠνήσομαι στίλβην (an earthen vessel) ἥτις μὴ πότις. Cp. ἀδη-φάγος (big-eating, full-grown) applied not only to ἀγωνιστὴς ἵππος by Pherocr. 197 and to ἵππων ζεύγος in official inscriptions (e.g. Dittenberger 2, p. 489), but also to λύχνος by Alcaeus com. 21 and to τριήρης by Lysias (frg. 103 Bait.-Sauppe).

58. κλάης: to get cuffed or some other cause for weeping; so 1415, 1418, 1436, 1439, A. 822, 827, V. 440, etc.; espec. freq. in the fut. κλαύσει and κλαύσεται as a threat, as at 933, P. 255, 532, etc.

59. τῶν θρυαλλίδων: "partitive" gen., regularly c. art. as in French: "Donnez-moi du pain"; A. 184, 805, V. 239, P. 30, 258, 772, 960, 962, 1102, 1111, 1136, 1145, 1169, Av. 357, R. 1263 (K.-G. I. 345). Cp. gen. after παπατρώω, παρεσθίω in E. 1026, P. 415, R. 988.

60. ὅπως: in place of ὥς temporal belongs to Ionic prose (ὅκως) and to tragedy. It is found only here in Arist., perhaps as befitting the old-time farmer. Sobol. Synt. 154 notes ὅποτε for ὅτε in the mouth of another rustic, Dicaeopolis (Ach. 19), and ἐπεί temporal in frg. 403. Cp. further ὅπως ἀνωράτω (= ὥς ἀν.) in P. 207 (as ὅπως c. superlat. in Theogn. 427, Aesch. Agam. 600, 605, 1350, etc.), and ὅπως in final clauses in tragedy, Thuc., and Xen. (GMT. 313. 2). | υἱὸς οὐτοῦ: no article is needed when the demonstrat. really points to something present here or there; A. 130, 187, 960, 1049, E. 1177, 1181, V. 262. So ὀδί in A. 908, V. 1132, L. 1072, Ec. 27, and ὀδε A. 336, 454, 810, 985, E. 1166, etc. These exx. show that the demonstrat. does not tend, in Arist. at least, to take position after the substantive, as is stated by K.-G. I. 629.

63. Cp. Eur. Phoen. 58, where it is the mother who names one of her daughters.

65. τοῦ παπποῦ: "from his grandfather," the gen. being the πατρικὴ πτωσίς. "Die spätere prosa kann das nicht mehr sondern muss praepositionen, ἀπό, in 'Ιὰς und κοινὴ auch ἐπὶ, dem genetiv zusetzen" (Wilamowitz Eur. Herac. 31). Exx. of grandfather's name held by grandson are to be seen in Av. 283, Thuc. 6. 54. 6, Plato Lach. 179 a, Parm. 126 c, Theag. 130 a, Demos. 39. 27, 57. 37, and in the genealogy of Aristophanes, Sophocles, Pericles, Cleisthenes, Alcibiades, Nicias, and the elder Thucydides.

66. ἐκρινόμεθα: for the sense to dispute, quarrel, see Eur. Med. 609, Hdt. 3. 120, Menand. Epitr. 529 (Körte) and cp. ἀνακρίνομαι Hdt. 9. 56, διακρίνομαι Hdt. 9. 58; also the comic derivation of his name given by Agoracritus in Eq. 1258 ἐν τῇ ἀγορᾷ γὰρ κρινόμενος ἐβροσκόμην. | τῷ χρόνῳ: adverbial and with art., as here, in 865, 1242, V. 460, frg. 198; but it is common without art., and regularly so in Aesch.

69. πόλιν: often means the Acropolis, for the Athenians; Thuc. 2. 15. Used in Arist. in this sense it omits the art. if a prepos. is present; e.g. εἰς πόλιν L. 302, 912; πρὸς πόλιν L. 288; ἐν πόλει E. 267, L. 245; ἐκ πόλεως E. 1093. See Starkie on Vesp. 492 for Aristophanic usage of article with πόλις, ἀγορά, πνύξ, ἀγρός, etc.

70. Μεγακλῆς: whether the poet should or should not contract the nomin. of proper names in -κλῆς into -κλῆς (as in prose) depended upon his metrical needs. In Arist. no contraction takes place if the 4th syllable from the end is short—hence always Περι-, Σοφο-, Ἱερο-, Ξενο-, Ψιλο-, Χαρι-κλῆς; but it does take place if this syllable is long—hence Ἥρα-, Θεμυστο-κλῆς. K.-Bl. 1. 432 Anm. 6, Kock on Eq. 283, Speck 34. | ξυστίδ' ἔχων: opportunities were by this time rare for the old families of nobility to appear in the elegant costume of Marathonian days (Thuc. 1. 6). Alcibiades and his like might wear outlandish sandals, a trailing robe and long hair, but the sansculottic masses of Cleon's time were against it. See Neil on Eq. 967, Athen. 534 c, 512 δ c.

71. μὲν οὖν: not continuative as in 66, but corrective (imo vero) as in 221, 1086, 1112, 1454; = μὴ ἀλλά (Av. 109), μὰ Δι' ἀλλά (Pl. 22, where see van Leeuwen). | φελλέως: probably not a proper name as in L. and S., but any stony mountain-slope, such as that of Hymettus, where soil is thin and pasturage scant. Harpocr.: τὰ πετρώδη καὶ αἰγίβοτα χωρία φελλέας ἐκάλουν.

72. ἐνημμένος: enwrapped in, seems to be the Ionic and poetic vox propria when one is clad in any sort of skin (διφθέραν, λεοντήν, παρδαλὴν, νεβρίδα, νάκος, etc.); so Av. 1250, R. 434, Ec. 80, frgg. 65, 253, Eur. Ion 1490, Hdt. 7. 69, Luc. Tim. 6, Bacch. 1, Herc. 1. Cp. ἐπαμμένος Hdt. 1. 199, 8. 105.

74. κατέχει: regarded as imperf. in K.-Bl. 2. 570.

76. δαιμονίως: cp. P. 541, Pl. 675. Alex. 167 (K. 2. 358) οἶνος γέρων δαιμονίως. So δαιμόνια P. 588. Adjectives were fortified not only by the colorless adverbs πάνυ, σφόδρα, μάλα, but by others of (originally) definite meaning, just as German uses adverbially furchtbar, tüchtig, riesig. Such were δεινῶς, ισχυρῶς, τελῶς, ἀτεχνῶς, ἐπεικῶς, ὑπερφνῶς, θαυμαστῶς, θαυμασίως, καλῶς. Cp.

also adverbial phrases such as ἀφατον ὥς (φρόνιμος Av. 428), ἀργαλέον ὥς (σοφός V. 1279), ὑπερφνωῶς ὥς (λευκοπληθής Ec. 386). For a complete study see Schwab 482-495.

80. Φειδιππίδιον: a coaxing diminutive in friendly tone; so Ξανθίδιον R. 582, Δημίδιον E. 726, 1199, Ἑρμῆδιον P. 382. Others carry contempt as Βοιωτίδιον A. 872, Λαμαχίππιον A. 1207; and others are meant to be comically impudent and quite improbable except in the play, as Σωκρατίδιον (N. 222, 237, 746), Εὐριπίδιον (A. 404, 475). See Peppler 20-27.

82. ἴσθι: means (1) there! used when doing what is requested: 255, 635, 825, and often; (2) see there! used when repeating some word or phrase of another to deride it: 818, 872, 1469, E. 87, 344, 703, etc.; (3) there, when handing or bringing something to some one: A. 434, 470, E. 909, 1166, V. 805, 851, etc. It is stressed by an added γε: 818, 1469, E. 87, L. 441, etc.

83. Ποσειδά τουτονί: so in 1478 there is an appeal to the statue of Hermes, and in V. 875, Th. 748, Pherecr. 87, Eur. Phoen. 631 to Apollo Φοῖβος or Ἀγνέως.

84. μή μοι γε: the same phrase and with no verb 433, V. 1179, 1400, L. 922, Plat. Hipparch. 229 ε, μηκέτ' ἔμοιγε R. 1407; with verb E. 19. Cp. without γε or verb A. 345 μή μοι πρόφασιν, Pherecr. 67 μή μοι φάκους, Alex. 127 μή προφάσεις ἐνταῦθά μοι, Demos. 4. 19 μή μοι μυρίους ξένους, Arist. Av. 145 μηδαμῶς ἡμῖν παρὰ τὴν θάλατταν, L. 938 μή 'μέ γε, Plat. Protag. 318 δ μή οὕτως, 331 ε μή μοι, Men. 74 δ μή μοι οὕτως. Soph. Ant. 577 μή τριβὰς ἔτι. Cp. infra 196, 267 μήπω γε.

86. ὄντως: a word coming in probably from philosophic discussion on τὸ ὄν Being, and τὰ ὄντα. Note Gorgias' treatise περὶ τοῦ μὴ ὄντος. In Arist. it is found at N. 86, 1271, V. 997, R. 189, Ec. 786, Pl. 82, 286, 289, 327, 403, 581, 836, 960, frg. 586, E. 177 (doubtful); in Aesch., Soph., and Thuc. not at all, in Eur. a few times, in Antiphon once (2 β 10), in Hdt. once (7. 143. 6), in Plato often, in Demos. 4 times, Aeschin. 6 times, but in no other orators.

90. λέγε δή: δή c. inv. very common, e.g. with λέξον 340;

ἀγε 478, 636, 775; εἰπέ 500, 652, 683, 748, 778, 1410; φρόντιζε 700; φέρε 940, 1088.

94. ψυχάν: from Aristot. De Anima 1. 2 we learn what various philosophers up to this time had held the soul to be; e.g. Democritus πῦρ, Thales κινητικόν τι a motive principle, Diogenes of Apollonia ἀήρ, Heraclitus ἀναθυμίασις fiery vapour, Hippo ὕδωρ, Critias αἷμα.

96. πνιγέης: Hippon's oven-doctrine of the heavens is put into the mouth also of the learned Meton, Av. 1001.

97. ἀνθρακες: for Heraclitus' comparison of men to ἀνθρακες see Sext. adv. Math. 7. 129 f. in Ritter and Preller § 41 or Diels 64.

98. Against this identification of Socrates and sophists in both theory and practice see the protests of Xen. (Mem. 1. 2. 31) and Plato (Apol. 23 d).

101. φροντισταί: were attacked by the comic poets it would seem almost by concert. On the same day with the Clouds were exhibited Κόννος by Amipsias and Πντίνη by Cratinus. In Πντίνη Chaerephon figured as a "dirty man and poor" (αὔχμηρὸς καὶ πένης, schol. Plat. 331 Bekker); in Κόννος the chorus was made up of φροντισταί. (See n. on 179.) By whomsoever originated the name φροντιστής stuck to Socrates as a stinging word of contempt. Xen. Conviv. 6. 6, 7. 2, Mem. 4. 7. 6, Plato Apol. 18 b. | καλοὶ τε κάγαθοί: the aristocrats of Athens took to themselves the names καλοὶ κάγαθοί, ἐσθλοί, χρηστοί, γενναῖοι, ἀριστοί, βέλτιστοι, δεξιοί, δλίγοι, ἐπιεικεῖς, γνώριμοι, ἐπιφανεῖς, εὖποροι, εὐδαίμονες. The masses ("poorer class," "baser sort," "riff-raff") were οἱ πολλοί, τὸ πλῆθος, πονηροί, πένητες, χείρους. See ps.-Xen. Rep. Ath., Aristot. Ath. Pol., Neil's Equites, App. II. Such being the case, it is only in ridicule that Arist. here applies the noble term to Socrates and his friends.

102. αἰβοί: σχετλιασμοῦ δηλωτικὸν ἐπίφθεγμα παρὰ Δωριεῶσιν (Bekker Anecd. 360. 11). At present it is found only in Arist. to mark disgust and derision always except in Av. 1342; viz. A. 189, E. 957, N. 102, 829, 906, V. 37, 973, 1338, P. 15, 544, 1291, Av. 610, 1055, 1342. Cp. the variants αἰβοιβοῖ P. 1066, ιαιβοῖ E. 891, V. 1338.

104. Χαιρεφών: 144-146, 156, 503, 831, 1465, 1505, V. 1408, 1412, Av. 1296, 1564, frgg. 291, 539, 573, Crat. 202, Eupol. 165, 239, Com. Adesp. 26, Xen. Mem. 1. 2. 48, 2. 3. 1, Plat. Apol. 20 c, and as interlocutor, in Gorg. and Charm.

105. νήπιον: perhaps a word persisting in common speech, if not often emerging in written language. It has recently turned up in Menand. Epitr. 28 (Körte). But for this fact, we might have taken it as one of Strepsiades' old-time words; for it occurs nowhere else in Arist. exc. in dactylic hexameter (P. 1063). See n. on 868.

106. ἀλφίτων: as here 176, 648, E. 1359, V. 301, P. 477, 636. Cp. τὰ σιτία E. 575, μᾶζα A. 732, βόσκειν for τρέφειν 331.

108. εἰ . . . γε: when the verb is omitted in the main clause (especially if negative), almost invariably γε appears in the subordinate clause (Sobol. Synt. 136); e.g. A. 60, 137, 296, 619, 966, E. 961, N. 108, V. 299, 1256, etc., Eur. Ion. 961, Iph. T. 866, Phoen. 1347.

109. φασιανούς: Athen. 386 d-87 f.; V. Hehn Wanderings of Plants and Animals, Engl. transl. (1888) 274. | Διωγέρας: V. 1269, Eupol. 44, Plat. 106, Andoc. 1. 17, 1. 22 and throughout, Athen. 387 a, schol. here.

110. ἀνθρώπων: c. superlat. = πάντων = in the world; Schwab 433. | ἔμοι: in form and posit. hints at para-tragedy; cp. Aesch. Suppl. 602 φίλτατ' ἀγγέλων ἔμοι, Cho. 1051, Soph. El. 1126, Eur. Hippol. 1333.

112 ff. Diog. Laert. 9. 52: πρῶτος ἔφη (Protagoras) δύο λόγους εἶναι περὶ παντὸς πράγματος ἀντικειμένους ἀλλήλοις; Eur. frg. 189, Xen. Oecon. 11. 25, Plat. Apol. 18 b, 19 b, 23 d, Isoc. 10. 1 ff., Aristot. Rhet. 2. 24. 11, Cic. Brut. 8. 30.

120. ἱππίας: see briefly G. Gilbert Constitutional Antiquities, Engl. transl. (1895) 320-24, or in full A. Martin Les Cavaliers Athéniens (1886), a book of 588 pages.

123. ἐς κόρακας: ἐς is the fixed form of the prepos. in this phrase; K.-Bl. 2. 248, Sobol. Praepos. 38. Hence the verb σκορακίζω.

124. μὲ: sc. ὄντα. The partic. usually present after περιορῶ

(GMT. 148, 885) is at times omitted, as also after τυγχάνω, διατελῶ, αἰσθάνομαι, ὀρώ.

126. With the spirit of Streps., who will not admit that he is "down," cp. that of the Marathonian heroes (E. 571-73) and of Pericles (Plut. Peric. 8). | οὐδ' ἐγώ: nor will I either, no more will I (yield than you). | πесών γε: prostrate, beaten, γε stressing the preceding word as usual. I cannot think it has occult connection with ἀλλά . . . μέντοι, nor in general with other groups such as καὶ μὴν, οὐ μὴν, οὐ μέντοι, ἢ μὴν, ἀλλὰ μὴν — as the incautious might gather from Neil's Equites p. 194. Cp. N. 53, V. 231, 268, 548, Av. 639, R. 1198.

127. ἀλλά: five ἀλλά's in five successive verses! They mean adverse winds and a chopping sea in the speakers' hearts.

130. σχινδαλέμονε: cp. R. 819, σμλεύματα R. 819, παραπρίσματα R. 881, σκαριφησμοί R. 1497, and infra 320 λεπτολογῶ, στενολεσχῶ.

131. ἔχων: keep on, continue to; so 509, A. 341, L. 945, Th. 473, 852, R. 202, 512, 524, Ec. 853, 1151, Crat. 195, Eubul. 107. 6 (K. 2. 201), Plat. Euthyd. 295 c, Gorg. 490 e, 497 a, Phaedr. 236 e, Hdt. 3. 52, Luc. Icarom. 24, Pseudosoph. 1. The limitations of the idiom seem to be (1) that it is colloquial, (2) always in nomin. sing. except once (Arist. Th. 473), (3) always with a verb in 2d sing. except here and Ec. 853, (4) always in disapproval, and most common with ληρεῖς, φλυαρεῖς, or a verb of hesitation, K.-G. 2. 62.

131 f. τί . . . οὐχὶ κόπτω: Why am I not knocking, why not at it already, why delay knocking? So the present after τί οὐ in A. 359, E. 1207, L. 1103, 1160, Plat. Protag. 311 a, Lysis 211 d. Distinguish such from the aorist after τί οὐ in A. 592, V. 213, L. 181, 906, 1161, frg. 466, and in many exx. from many authors collected in K.-G. 1. 165; for the significance of the aor. see n. on 174.

132. παιδίων: the usual formula is παῖ παῖ (N. 1145, A. 395, 1097 f., 1118 f., V. 1307, Av. 57, R. 464). The dimin. here is neither in coaxing nor contempt (see 80 n.), but due to the needs of the metre, so Peppler 31. Blaydes on Plut. 227 collects nearly a hundred exx. of diminutt. in -ίδιον.

137. Socrates as an intellectual midwife; Plat. Theaet. 149 a, 150 c.

138. τηλοθ: probably a bit of Euripidean vocabulary. From Theognis to Theocritus he alone seems to have used it (Cycl. 689, frg. 884), unless we except two tragic adēspota (77, 94 N.).

141. θαρρῶν: c. imv. very common; 422, 427, 436, 990, V. 388, 547, P. 159, R. 7, 1005. θαρρήσας E. 623, Av. 461, 1512. The imv., θάρρει is used only seldom with another imv., though often alone. | ἐγὼ οὐτοσί: the deictic οὐτοσί with the first personal pronoun, as here, in A. 367, E. 1098, L. 94, Pl. 868.

145. This flea-jump satire stuck in the memory. See Xen. Conviv. 6. 8; Luc. Prom. 6, Philopat. 12. For modern flea-jump measurement see Revue des Deux Mondes for 1867, p. 542 (Mar. 15). The writers on Salivary Glands, etc., obtained master's degrees at Cornell University in 1902 and 1905. | ἄλοιτο: so in RV.; not ἄλλοιτο.

150. τὰ πόδα: biped is the beetle also in Pax 7.

153. τῆς λεπτότητος: causal gen. with or without art. after an exclamat., as in 364, 818, 925, 1476, A. 64, 67, 87, 1205, 1210, E. 144, 350, V. 161, P. 238, 239, Av. 61, 223, 295, 1131, L. 967, Ec. 787, Pl. 389, 1126-32. K.-G. 1. 389. | φρηνῶν: by the time of Arist. φρην was alien to plain prose except in the phrase νοῦς καὶ φρένες, as in L. 432, Th. 291, R. 535. In the 27 other passages where Arist. uses the word, all but this present are either lyrical or clearly in parody or para-tragedy. Hence here too tragic tone is probably intended. W. G. Rutherford New Phrynichus (1881) 9.

154. τί δῆτ' ἔν: for ellipse of verb after ἄν see n. on 5. Cp. also ellipse after τί δῆτα A. 1011, P. 859, 863.

157. How insects "with no larynx or lungs and hence properly no voice (φωνή)" can make noises, was a question that Aristot. took up (Hist. of Animals 4. 9. 2 = 535 b).

158. κατὰ τὸ στόμα: κατά = via, as in V. 141 (τρήμα), Av. 1208 (πύλας), Plato Rep. 359 d (θυρίδας), Timae. 79 d (ρίνας), Thuc. 4. 48. 2 (θύρας), 4. 67. 3 (πύλας).—This acoustical quest. is a satire on the physics and physiology of the day. For the guesses on sound and hearing see ps.-Plut. Moralia 902 b, 901 f, or better, Diels 177. 20 (for Empedocles), 325. 4 (Anaxagoras), 344. 31 (Diogenes of Apollonia), 336. 6 (Archelaos); or see Ritter and Preller s.v. ἀκοή in the index.

161. δὴ λεπτὸν κτλ.: cp. Hippocr. Aphor. 7. 51 (vol. 4. 592 Littré) explaining a sneeze: ὑπερχίεται οὖν ὁ ἀήρ ὁ ἐνεῶν, ψοφέει δέ, ὅτι διὰ στενοῦ ἢ διέξοδος αὐτοῦ ἐστίν.

162. εἰθῦ: c. gen. = straight towards. Epic used ἰθὺς, Hdt. ἰθύ. Of the form εἰθῦ I find but 23 exx. in the Indices—15 in comedy, 5 in Plato (Ast), the other 3 in Thuc. 8. 88, 8. 96, Xen. Hell. 1. 4. 11. Lyric poetry, tragedy, and the orators are without it (exc. once in Eur. Hippol. 1197?). Hence εἰθῦ would seem to be colloquial. In Arist.: E. 254, N. 162, P. 68, 77, 301, 819, Av. 1421, Ec. 835, frgg. 161, 656; Eupol. 47, 183, 304, Pherecr. 110, Epicrat. 10 (K. 2. 286). H. Richards' article in Class. Rev. 15 (1901), 442 ff. (holding that εἰθῦ c. gen. in Attic prose was, as a rule, only a synonym of εἰς, ὡς, ἐπί, or πρὸς, with no such definite notion as straight for) I hold to be abortive.

165. The σάλπιγξ-notion Arist. could have got from Pigres' Batracho-myo-machia 199 καὶ τότε κώνωπες μεγάλας σάλπιγγας ἔχοντες | δεινὸν ἐσάλπιγγαν πολέμου κτύπον.

169. ἑ γε: see Neil's Equites p. 191, and my note in Selections from Plato on Apol. 22 d, Append.

170 f. For the Thales-incident see Plat. Theaet. 174 a. Socrates dissuaded from overmuch astronomy (Xen. Mem. 4. 7. 4-6), which was rather the pride of Hippias the Elean (Plat. Protag. 318 e, Hipp. Maj. 285 b c. Plato prob. has this passage in mind in Rep. 529 b c (ἀνω κεχηνώς, and ἐξ ὑπτίας νέων ἐν γῇ), where see J. Adam.

174. ἦσθην: I like; i.e. Greek aorist = Engl. present. So ἦσθην in 1240, E. 696, P. 1066, Av. 570, 880; ἐθαύμασα N. 185; ἐγάλασα E. 696, ἐδάκρυσα Av. 540; ἐχάρην Av. 1743. So also in tragedy the aorist of verbs of emotion and its result (as ἠλγήσα, ἔκλανσα, ἀπέπτυσσα), of arrogating (as ἐπῆνεσα or ἤνεσα, ἐδεξάμην), of bidding, advising, and giving oath (as ἔπον, ὑπέπον, παρήνεον, κατώμοσαν, ἀπώμοσαν); exx.: Aesch. Pers. 224, 844, 1000, Cho. 887, Soph. Aj. 99, 536, El. 668, 1322, 1479, Phil. 1289, 1314, 1434, Eur. Alcest. 1095, Androm. 421, 785, 1234, El. 248, 622, 644, Hec. 1276, Hel. 330, 664, 668, 673, Hippol. 614, Iph. A. 440, 469, 509, 655, 874, Iph. T. 862, 1023, 1161, Ion 1614, Cycl. 266, Med. 272, 707, 791, Orest. 1516, 1672, Suppl. 1161, 1171, Troad. 53, 718. — This same "dramatic" or "instantaneous" aorist for Engl. present is seen largely in other verbs; see Arist. N. 820, E. 269, 1368, 1372, Aesch. Prom. 181, 277, 401, 773, Pers. 972, Soph. El. 677, Eur. Hel. 348, El. 215, Her. Fur. 177, Hippol. 846, Troad. 887, 1046, Phoen. 679. K.-G. I. 163 f. — It would be well to win one point of view and one explanation for this "dramatic" aor., the question-aor. after τί οὐ (see n. on 131 f.), the Homeric aor. in comparisons, the "gnomic," the "empirical," the "general description," and the "future" aor. (GS. 255–263, GMT. 60–62, 154–158). That explanation is perhaps as follows:

The Greek language has but few finite forms of any verb which merely name the action. They are usually clogged with temporal additions, and give a picture of the action as one that is or was or will be going on. When therefore the Greeks needed the verb-act stripped of time (ἀ-όριστος) yet embodied in person and number, their inflectional wealth encumbered them. λαμβάνω = "I am taking," not "I take"; ἔλαβον gives the notion "take," but throws it back in time to "took." — How then say in Greek "I take coffee daily," "Thanks," "He writes a good hand," "Why not knock?" "Murder!" "Faint heart never erects a trophy"? Either by using the present tense — which the Greeks also use — or idiomatically (shutting ear to augment) the aorist; hence for the above sentences respectively, ἔλαβον, ἐπῆνεσα, ἔγραψε, ἔκοψα, ἀπώλομεσθα (Arist. Ach. 333), ἔστησε. This refusal to hear the augment, this recognition of merely the verb-notion in the aorist-stem (especially easy in 2d aor. roots, as λαβ-, φνγ-, φαγ-, etc.) was the easier because of the very large use of this ἀ-όριστος (or time-unlimited) stem in all other moods beside the indicative.

(Observe also that in exclamatory passion the Greeks fled from the finite forms to the acc. c. inf.; see n. on 268.) For exx. of the "gnomic" aorist see n. on 350; for theory of its origin, Carl Mutzbauer Die Grundlagen der gr. Tempuslehre (1893) 35, with review of the book by D. B. Monro, Class. Rev. 8 (1894), 34 in complete agreement with Mutzbauer; G. Herbig Indog. Forsch. 6 (1896), 249 ff. espec. 261 ff.; H. Melzer Indog. Forsch. 17 (1904), 239 f.; M. Bréal Mém. de la Société de ling. 11 (1900), 278-80; K. Brugmann Vergleichende Gram. (1903) 2. 574. The older view of the gnomic aor. (a sample past instance) is still maintained by K.-G. 1. 159, and P. Cauer *Grammatica Militans*² (1903) 101.

176. ἐπαλαμήσατο: a rare word; Eur. frg. 918 N., Xen. Cyr. 4. 3. 17, Arist. A. 659 (in parody), P. 94 (probable parody of Euripides Bellerophon), and here. The Indices report no further use. παλάμαι = μηχαναί in V. 645.

177-179. Teuffel-Kaehler read παλαιόστρας for τραπέζης in 177, and τραπέζης for παλαιόστρας in 179.

178. διαβήτην: may some of the mystification lie in this instrument? Also in the hocus-pocus of Meton, Av. 1003, it plays a part.

179. Cloak-stealing being easy, like modern arson, was severely punished, viz. by death (Xen. Mem. 1. 2. 62, Demos. 24. 114, Aristot. Problems 29. 14); Eupol. 361 charges also the pilfering of a wine-ladle against Socrates. Though thieving was a common charge of the comic poets, and should have been discredited, yet probably some of Socrates's judges twenty-four years later may have fancied they had caught the thief at last. So to this day many Southerners believe that Benjamin Butler did steal spoons in New Orleans during the Civil War. | For the similarity in sound of α and υ see K.-Bl. 1. 53, Brugmann 48. In the 3d cent. B.C. Boeotians wrote φυκία for οικία, καλύ for καλοί. | The suggestion in the text-notes, that the pun θοῖμάτιον-θυμάτιον was inserted at the last moment, has something in its favour, if we recall the impromptu nature of comedy from its very origin. The same account must be given of Eccl. 1158 f., and also of Vesp. 1025–1028, if van Leeuwen is right in dating the Πόλεις of Eupolis as competing with Vespae. Müller-Strübing makes a like claim for Ach. 593–618 (on which see Busolt 3. 1058). | The comic poets often pitched naturally on the same subjects at the same or about the same time, e.g. on Socrates in 423 B.C., Arist. in Nub. and Amipsias in Κόννος; on Hyperbolus in 421, Eupolis in Μαρικᾶς, Leuco in Φράτερες, Arist. in Pax; on Melanthius in 421, Arist. in Pax, Leuco in Φράτερες; on Pisander in 414, Arist. in Av., Phrynichus in Μονότροπος; on Cleophon in 405, Arist. in Ran., Plato in Κλεοφῶν; on comparative excellence of poets in 405, Arist. in Ran., Phrynichus in Μούσαι; on a sans-souci life in 414, Arist. in Av., Phrynichus in Μονότροπος.

180. ἐκείνος: the famous; cp. 534, A. 708, K.-G. 1. 650.

181. ἀνέσας: very common; 506, 635, 1253, V. 30, 202, 398, 847, 1158, etc. Cp. on the one hand θᾶπτον c. inv., on the other the large use of adjectives temporal and local for adverbs, as σκοταῖος, τριταῖος, σῦτος, ἐπιβῶμιος.

183. μαθητιᾶ: like verbs in -ιάω expressing bodily malady, many are formed of a comic nature for mental ailments, or to indicate a strong or inordinate passion for a thing, as in our "school-fever," "music-mad," "stage-struck." Thus like ὀφθαλμάω, λιθ-, ιλιγγ-, σκοτοδινιάω, are formed γεροντιιάω to get the old-age malady, βεμβικιάω to have the spinning-fever, μελλο-νικιάω to have the Niky-dilly-dallies (Av. 640); others, indicating desire for a thing, are στρατηγιάω, σπουδαρχιάω (office-seeking passion), θανατιιάω (enamoured of death), μαστιγιάω (to be pining for a whipping, to want a whipping). For -ιάω verb-lists see Blaydes here or L. Sütterlin Verba Denominativa in Altgr. (Strassburg, 1891) 29–39.

183. For presentation of a scene in the αὐλή of a house Kock on Pherecr. frg. 67 cites A. 1123, E. 997 f., 1164, V. 853, P. 1021, Th. 726, Pl. 624, Arist. frg. 530. For the manner of changing the scene here I combine the opinions of Albert Müller Berl. phil. Woch. for 1900, col. 924 and K. Zacher same journal for 1900, col. 70. For a like rolling back on revolving side-columns in the old fifth cent. theatre, cp. Th. 279 (van Leeuwen) and Aesch. Eum. 64.

186. τοῖς ἐκ Πύλου: see Thuc. 4. 41. 1, 5. 24. 2. | Δακωνικοῖς: adjectives in -ικός derived from names of people or countries are rarely applied to persons. See C. W. Peppler A. J. P. 31 (1910), 428 ff.

188. βολβοῖς: cp. the comic account by Epicrat. 11 (K. 2. 287) c. half century later of the study of the pumpkin by the pupils of Plato.

191. τί γάρ: in such quest. γάρ is adv., not conjunct., still almost the original γ' ἄρ(α), well. So K.-G. 2. 335 f. | ἐγκεκυφότες: bending over forwards (Thesm. 236, Thuc. 4. 4. 2); ἀνα-κύπτω is to bend backwards (Thesm. 230).

192. ἱεβο-δίφῳσι: cp. ἀνα-διφᾶν, ἐκ-διφᾶν, and μηχανο-, πραγματο-, δικο-δίφης, and Herod. Mim. 3. 54 ἀστρο-δίφης.

196. μήπω γε: so 267, A. 176, E. 960 (μὴ δῆτά πώ γε), 1100.

198. πρὸς τὸν ἄερα: in the air; cp. πρὸς (τὸν) ἥλιον 771, V. 772, P. 567, Ec. 64, frg. 603; πρὸς (τὸ) πῦρ A. 751, V. 773, P. 1131; πρὸς τὴν αἰθρίαν Th. 1001, Pl. 1129; πρὸς εἰλην frg. 627; πρὸς λύχνον P. 692; πρὸς τὴν σελήνην Andoc. 1. 38; πρὸς τὸ φῶς infra 632.

200. πρὸς τῶν θεῶν: πρὸς c. gen. in adjuration is used by Arist. chiefly, by Demos. always, in entreaty, command, or question; only once in affirmation and that in a parody on Eur. (frg. 51). Beside πρὸς τῶν θεῶν (the most frequent) Arist. uses πρὸς θεῶν, πρὸς (τοῦ) Διός, (τῶν) γονάτων, τῆς Ἑστίας, αἰδοῦς, τῆς γῆς, τῆς δεξιᾶς, τῶν κρεῶν. Exx. in Nub.: 314, 366, 481, 784, 1103. Sobol. Praepos. 179.

201. ἀστρονομία: the first appearance of the word. It is defined in Plat. Gorg. 451 c. Its use in navigation nobody called in question (Xen. Mem. 4. 7. 4, Plat. Rep. 527 d); but when it ventured to establish the material of the heavenly bodies (sun a stone, etc.) the people's view of it was probably expressed in Arist. Nub. 1506 f, Xen. Mem. 4. 7. 6, Eur. frg. 913. See Plat. Legg. 966-67, Plut. Nic. 23. 3 f.

203. πότερα: (or πότερον) omits the alternate quest. also in V. 498, Av. 104, 427, R. 69, 1052, 1141, 1455, as in Plato. K.-G. 2. 532. | On Athenian cleruchs and their land see Starkie on Vesp. 715, Gard.-Jev. 602; on the Lesbian distribution, Thuc. 3. 50. 2.

204. οὐκ ἀλλά: 258, 482, 498, 898, and very often. Cp. ἤκωτ' ἀλλά 316, 380; μὰ Δι' ἀλλά 330, 1291, E. 85, V. 297, 954, 1409, etc.; μᾶλλον A. 458, Av. 109, Th. 646, R. 103, 611, 745, 751, Plat. Men. 75 a, Alc. I 114 d. In all these English drops ἀλλά.

206. γῆς περιόδος: for the map of the world shown by Aristagoras of Miletus to king Cleomenes of Sparta 499 B.C., made of bronze, see Hdt. 5. 49.

208. ἐπεὶ: in Arist. always in a causal sense, never temporal, except thrice in parody (Pax 660, 1092, 1283) and once in mouth of a rustic (frg. 403). As is the rule, the causal clause always follows the main clause, never precedes. See Bachmann 9, Sobol. Synt. 154, Nilsson 114. The same rule for position of the clause holds also for the causal ὥς-clause; n. on 551.

209. ὥς: here and in like sentences (see infra) some supply before ὥς a "never fear" and take ὥς causally, others supply ἵσθι (as K.-G. 2. 372), though ἵσθι is regularly followed not by ὥς but by ὅτι (Sobol. Synt. 120) and ὅτι does not appear in this type of sent. until the Septuagint (e.g. Ex. 3. 12, Jdg. 15. 7, 3 Kings 19. 2). Such explanat. by ellipse is too easy and isolating; the true theory should connect this type of ὥς-usage with all relative clauses which measure the truth of the main clause, or rather of the main thought, whether expressed or not. Such are not merely sentences of the ὥς . . . οὕτως type or of the Homeric wish-type αἰ γάρ . . . ὥς (Il. 8. 538, 18. 464, 22. 346, Od. 9. 523, 17. 251, 21. 402), but also those relative clauses which are said to express cause (ὥς, ὅτι, ὅς, and ἄτε or οἶα or ὥς c. partic.) or purpose (ὥς, ὅπως, ὅς), or are translated as exclamations (ὥς, οἶος, ὅσος, etc.), and even the ὥς- and ὅτι-object-clauses after verbs of knowing and saying. Cp. "ut tua est temperantia," "qua es prudentia." See Monro Hom. Gram. §§267-270, and for an explanation my Selections from Plato p. 446. — As for the present passage, whatever the psychological meaning may be of our reassuring "oh" when we say (replying to doubt or despondency) "Oh, he will be sure to come," or "Oh, you will be well soon," it exactly conveys the feeling of ὦς here and in A. 333 ὦς ἀπωλόμεσθα Oh, murder! 335 ὦς ἀποκτενῶ Oh, I'll kill him, P. 320, Ec. 1075, Soph. Aj. 39, Eur. Med. 609, Androm. 255, 587, Phoen. 720, 1664, Hel. 831. (The other passages usually cited in this group are better explained otherwise; see n. on 1158, 1207.) — This same measuring and exclamatory Oh, so, or how is in the ὦς of the ὦς ὠφελον wishes and lies at the root of such usage as is seen in Theocr. 2. 82 (ὦς ἴδον, ὦς ἐμάνην), 3. 42, Il. 14. 294, 19. 16, 20. 424.

210. καὶ ποθ': καὶ thus heading a quest. is very frequent, e.g. 398, 1333, A. 86, V. 665; see n. on κἄτα 259, K.-G. 2. 247, L. & S. s.v. καὶ II 2.

213. Subjugation of Euboea: Thuc. 1. 114.

214. ποθ' ὅτι: some editors, with the Mss., write ὅτιν, others 'οθ'. But in neither way could Streps. himself have thus accommodated his word to the initial vowel of the following speaker. Pre-audition is too much to claim even for the Greeks. It is easier to believe that in daily speech the last syllable of ἔστί was almost inaudible as in modern Greek στάσ (ου), and hence that all final shorts were rhythmically negligible, if the following speaker overlapped as in 652, 726, 729, 733, 778, and often. The writing 'στ' is therefore here the one nearest to the heard word; so in A. 178, P. 187, Av. 90, 1495, R. 1220, frg. 18 ἔστ'; in N. 1192 προσέθηκ', 1270 χρήματ', V. 793 εἰπ', P. 275 δέσποτ', 1054 φράσσετ', L. 49 ποτ', 736 καταλέλοιπ', Pl. 132 τοῦτ'.

214. ὅπου ὅτι: almost invariably in repeating another's question, the Greeks used the relative-interrog. form of the adverb (ὅπου, ὅπως, ὅποι, etc., for ποῦ, πῶς, ποῖ); so 677, 690, 753, 760, 1248, 1495. For all exx. in Arist. see Kaehler on v. 664 Anhang.

215. τοῦτο: preparatory, like ἐκείνο, to some following clause; cp. 380, 887, 1412, V. 47, P. 146, 1075, R. 1369, Th. 520, 556, Pl. 259, 573, 594, 898, 921. K.-G. 1. 658 f. Cp. also the resumptive demonstr. 1262.

217. οιμῶσθε: a warning and imprecatory verb like κλάειν 58; οἰμῶζε in A. 1035, E. 891, Av. 846, 960, etc., fut. in P. 466, 1207, R. 178, 279, 706, etc.

218. φέρει: often in questt.; 324, 342, 366, 370, etc. Cp. φέρ' ἰδω 21. | κρεμάθρας: perhaps this was a platform suspended from above or supported by posts, accessible by ladder or stairs, of the sort still favoured in modern Greece. In the eating-houses of country towns they are large enough to accommodate a table and guests, serving the purpose of a semi-private dining-room. So K. Zacher in Berl. phil. Woch. for 1900, col. 72.

219. αὐτός: the δεσπότης; so frg. 268, Plat. Protag. 314 d, Pollux 3. 74 Ἀριστοφάνης κατὰ τὴν τῶν πολλῶν συνήθειαν τὸν δεσπότην "αὐτὸν" κέκληκεν. | ὁ Σώκρατες: exclamatory vocat.; GS. 24, K.-G. 1. 48.

226. ἔπειτα: in questt. of surprise or indignation, common; 1249; A. 917, V. 1133, P. 1235, Av. 911, L. 914, Pl. 1148; so κάπειτα Th. 637, and εἶτα (see n. on 259).

227. εἶπερ: ellipse of the verb is common; e.g. Plat. Rep. 497 e, Euthyd. 296 b, Legg. 667 a, 900 e; so also after εἶπερ ποτέ, ὅστις (R. 39), ὅσπερ (V. 404). Cp. ἴσθ' ὅτι 39, and see K.-G. 2. 573.

228. On Diogenes of Apollonia see Diels 341-54, Gomperz 1. 371 ff., Philemon frg. 91 (K. 2. 505). According to Theophrastus De Sensu 44, Diogenes believed that we φρονεῖν τῷ ἀέρι καθαρῷ καὶ ξηρῷ. κωλύειν γὰρ τὴν ἰκμάδα τὸν νοῦν. — ὅτι δὲ ἡ ὑγρότης ἀφαιρεῖται τὸν νοῦν σημείον διότι τὰ ἄλλα ζῶα χεῖρω τὴν διάνοιαν. ἀναπνεῖν τε γὰρ τὸν ἀπὸ τῆς γῆς ἀέρα, καὶ τροφήν ὑγροτέραν προσφέρεισθαι. His own words are (Diels frg. 5): καὶ μοι δοκεῖ τὸ τὴν νόησιν ἔχον εἶναι ὁ ἀὴρ καλούμενος ὑπὸ τῶν ἀνθρώπων, καὶ ὑπὸ τούτου πάντας καὶ κυβερνᾶσθαι καὶ πάντων κρατεῖν. αὐτὸ γὰρ μοι τοῦτο θεὸς δοκεῖ εἶναι. — But he was an eclectic, and combined with this doctrine of ἀήρ (originally that of Anaximenes) the νοῦς-theory of Anaxagoras, the δίνη of Leucippus, and ἀνάγκη from all alike. Hence the Aristophanic Socrates in this comedy is not the first syncretistic philosopher. Philosophy itself was jumbled in those days.

228. ὀρθῶς: the proud word of science; 251, 659, 742, 1186, Av. 690, 692. Hippocrates in his essay περὶ διαίτης uses it ten times in the first chapter, three times in the first chapter of περὶ φύσιος ἀνθρώπου; and in περὶ νουσῶν the first sent. reads: ὅς ἂν περὶ ἰήσεως ἐθέλῃ ἐρωτᾶν τε ὀρθῶς, καὶ ἐρωτῶντι ἀποκρίνεσθαι, καὶ ἀντιλέγειν ὀρθῶς, ἐνθυμέεσθαι χρὴ τάδε. But A. Dieterich (Rh. M. 48. 281) takes it to be the "Schlagwort" of the Orphic sect.

232. οὐ γὰρ ἀλλά: as if οὐ γὰρ ἔστιν (ἄλλο) ἀλλά — for it is nothing else but —, for the simple truth is, for really, nam profecto. "ἀντὶ τοῦ καὶ γάρ" (schol.). Cp. Ran. 1180 οὐ γὰρ μοῦστίς ἐστιν ἀλλ' ἀκουστέα, there is nothing for me (to do) but to listen; Ran. 498 οὐ γὰρ ἀλλὰ πειστέον, there is no help for it — I must obey; Eq. 1205 οὐ γὰρ ἀλλὰ τοῦ παραθέντος ἡ χάρις, Eccl. 386 οὐ γὰρ ἀλλ' ὑπερφύως ὥς, for it was nothing short of miraculous how —. The other instances are Ran. 58, 192, Eupol. 73, Plat. Phaed. 84 a, Euthyd. 286 c, 305 c, Rep. 492 c, Phaedr. 276 d, Alc. I 124 d, Eur. Suppl. 570, Iph. T. 1005, Bacch. 785. — In connection with οὐ γὰρ ἀλλά should be noted the other phrases, omitting ἔστι; such as τί ἄλλο ἢ, ἄλλο τι ἢ, οὐδὲν ἄλλο ἢ, and especially that form of paratactic argumentum ex contrario οὐ { — μὲν in which the — δέ negative belongs to both clauses together but not to either separately, meaning οὐκ ἔστιν, it is impossible that —; e.g. in Lys. 12. 47, Demos. 9. 27, Antiph. 5. 63.

The current explanation is different, viz. that οὐ γὰρ ἀλλά, οὐ μὴν ἀλλά, οὐ μέντοι ἀλλά are all alike in being merely more forcible variations of οὐκ ἀλλά, as seen in v. 204; that is, οὐ denies the proceeding and ἀλλά introduces the substitute truth.

It is true that Mss. sometimes punctuate after γάρ (as in this passage in RV, and in the Clarkianus of Plat. Phaed. 84 a, Alc. I 124 d), and also that οὐ γάρ is a fixed phrase in answers — γάρ of course being adverbial (see e.g. Plat. Crat. 406 d, Alc. I 111 c, II 139 a). But the difficulty editors have on the one hand of finding anything in most of the passage for οὐ γάρ to deny, and the ease on the other hand of supplying ἔστι, incline me to this latter as the more probable explanation. — Only in Arist. Lys. 55 οὐ γὰρ μὰ Δί', ἀλλά is it clear that οὐ γὰρ strongly negatives the preceding (see van Leeuwen's note); but one instance, especially when marked apart by μὰ Δία, can hardly set the interpretation for a score of recalcitrants. It should rather be classed with οὐ μὰ Δί' ἀλλά (P. 1046, Ec. 556, Plat. Hipp. 228 a) and μὰ (τὸν) Δί' ἀλλά (P. 6, Lys. 1090, Pl. 22, 111), which are indeed intensives of οὐκ ἀλλά (see n. on 204). K.-G. 2. 286.

234. πάσχει: often translated "do" like the intrans. πράττω and ποιέω; so 662, E. 346, 864, 888, V. 1, 1014, Av. 1044, R. 718; and so τί πάθω what am I to do? (798). But here πάσχει is used and not ποιῶ, because the subject κάρδαμα is inanimate. We say in Engl. "the rain came down in torrents"; but Greek says, καταφέρεται is brought down. (For ποιῶν intrans. = πράττειν; see P. 1054, Ec. 624, Pl. 1205.)

239. κατὰ τί: P. 192, Av. 916, Ec. 542, 559, 604. Cp. Od. 3. 72 κατὰ πρῆξιν, on business. | For Socrates' mask see Haigh 292.

247. ποίους θεούς: scornful ποῖος; so 367, 1233, 1337, A. 62, 109, 157, 761, E. 32, 162, V. 1202, 1369, 1378, Av. 1233, 1346, L. 730, 922, 1178, Th. 30, 874, R. 529, Pl. 1046. It is common also in Plato, but only twice, it would seem, in tragedy (Soph. Tr. 427, Eur. Hel. 567). In the same tone ποῖ Lys. 193, ποῦ Eur. Ion 528, Herac. 369, 510. — With article, ποῖος has its normal sense, as in 1270, Av. 418, 963.

249. On the improbability of the use of iron money at this period see Naber in Mnemos. for 1897, p. 444.

250 ff. The first to enucleate fully the details of the following initiation scene was A. Dieterich (Rh. M. 48 (1893), 275–83); see also Rohde 2. 49. As Dieterich observes, a more comic mixture of heterogeneities can hardly be conceived. A modern approach to it might be some college burlesque introducing, let us say, Herbert Spencer, a Short Course in Evolution, Theosophy, Domestic Economy, a "Hoosier," an initiation into a college fraternity, the drum and fife of the Salvation Army, etc. Surely Socrates could no more have been hurt by personal satire as wide of the mark as this than a modern college president is when lam-pooned by his undergraduates. — For proof that this scene parodies Orphic initiation rather than Eleusinian, Sabazian, or others, see schol. on 260 and Harpocr. s.v. ἀπομάττων.

251. εἶπερ . . . γε: so 341, A. 307, 1228, E. 1310; but εἶπερ γε 696, 930, V. 1153, 1263, Av. 1359, L. 992, R. 77, 1368, ἥπερ γε E. 366. Cp. καίτοι . . . γε and καίτοι γε 876.

256. ἐπὶ τί: ἐπί of purpose = εἰς or πρὸς; Av. 340, L. 22, 481, 1101, R. 168. Cp. εἰς 269.

257. ὥστερ με: that such unemphatic and small street-gamins as με, μου, σου, σοι, σε, μιν, αὐτοῦ, etc. should thrust their way to the front of the sentence between the legs of larger folk is not abnormal, but immemorially normal. See J. Wacknagel Indog. Forsch. 1 (1892), 333 ff. Exx.: Il. 1. 201 καί μιν φωνήσας, 16. 720, 21. 347, Callinus, 1. 20, Terpender 2. ἀμφί μοι, Soph. O.C. 944, 1333 πρὸς νῦν σε κρηῶν, Tr. 436, Phil. 468, Eur. El. 264, Ion 293, 671, Hdt. 6. 34 καί σφας ὡς οὐδεὶς ἐκάλεε, Arist. A. 295, V. 363, P. 77, Av. 95, 1550, L. 376, 753, 905, Th. 1134, R. 504, Lysias 17. 2 καί μοι κάλει, Plat. Gorg. 506 c καί με ἐὰν ἐξελέγξης, Herod. Mim. 3. 33. See also infra 533, 595, 759, 795, 1025, 1034, 1148, and note such words as που, περ, etc.

259. εἶτα: frequent in questt. of indignation or surprise; 1214, A. 312, V. 52. R. 21, 138, Pl. 45. So καὶτα 1292, L. 24, R. 203. Cp. ἔπειτα 226 n., καί 210 n.

260. λέγειν τρίμμα: The inf. was freely used in comedy, and hence probably in daily speech to qualify substantives. A parasite, e.g. describes himself as τύπτειν κεραυνός, ἐκτυφλοῦν τιν' ἀστραπή, |

φέρειν τιν' ἄρας ἀνεμος, ἀποπνίξαι βρόχος | θύρας μοχλεῖν σεισμός, εἰσπηδᾶν ἀκρίς, | δειπνεῖν ἀκλητος μυῖα, etc. Antiphanes 195 (K. 2. 94 or Athen. 238 d). Cp. also Aristophon 4 and 10 (K. 2. 277 and 280).

263 ff. While chanting this invocation the portly Socrates probably dances round his victim in the fashion of the swindlers who "initiated" the ignorant in Corybantic mysteries. Cp. the scene in Plat. Euthyd. 277 d and Dio Chrysost. 12. 33 εἰώθασιν ἐν τῷ καλουμένῳ θρονισμῷ καθίσαντες τοὺς μουμένους οἱ τελούντες κύκλῳ περιχορεύειν. See also the famous passage on Aeschines in Demos. 18. 259. Dieterich (Rh. M. 48. 282) thinks it likely that the prayer is a close imitation of the Orphic invocations, comparing the Orphic hymns 31. 6, 43. 10, 51. 17, 46. 8.

263. εὐφημεῖν χρή: a call for silence common to all Greek religious services, whether for sacrifice or prayer. Cp. our "Let us pray." The formula varies: as here in E. 131δ, P. 96, 1316, R. 354; εὐφημεῖτε A. 237, 241, P. 434, R. 1273; εὐφημία 'στω (or ὑπαρχέτω) V. 868, Av. 959, Th. 295; εὐφημος πᾶς ἔστω λεώς Th. 39; εὐφήμει N. 297. | ἑπακούειν: to listen to, pay attention to; E. 1080, V. 317, Av. 205, Th. 628. Distinguish ὑπακούειν to hear and answer, to come in response (e.g. to a prayer or knock at the door); 274, 360, A. 405, V. 273, P. 785, L. 878, Ec. 515, Plato Crit. 43 a, Phaed. 59 c. Cp. παρακούειν to overhear (by stealthy listening), R. 750.

264. ἀναξ: only in P. 89 is it used of mortal man by Arist., and then of one who was soaring to heaven to confer with the gods. | τὴν γῆν μετέωρον: Plut. Moral. 896 d 'Αναξιμένης τὴν γῆν (φησι) διὰ τὸ πλάτος ἐποχεῖσθαι τῷ ἀέρι. Aristot. De Caelo 2. 13 (294 b 13) 'Αναξιμένης καὶ 'Αναξαγόρας καὶ Δημόκριτος (τὴν γῆν) φασιν ἐπεπωματίζειν (sits like a pōma or lid on) τὸν ἀέρα τὸν κάτωθεν.

265. λαμπρός τ' Αἰθήρ: nomin. for vocat., perhaps for mock gravity, or because ritualistic (GS. 12); cp. 1168.—Cp. Eur. frg. 941 ὄρᾳς τὸν ὑποῦ τόνδ' ἄπειρον αἰθέρα | καὶ γῆν πέριξ ἔχονθ' ὑγραῖς ἐν ἀγκάλαις; | τοῦτον νόμιζε Ζῆνα, τόνδ' ἥγου θεόν. Frg. 877 ἀλλ' αἰθὴρ τίκτει σε, κόρα, | Ζεὺς δὲ ἀνθρώποις ὀνομάζεται. Frg. 919

κορυφή δὲ θεῶν ὁ περίεχθόν' ἔχων | φαεινὸς αἰθήρ. Frg. 839 aether is ἀνθρώπων καὶ θεῶν γενέτωρ. In Ran. 892 Arist. has Euripides pray to αἰθήρ ἐμὸν βόσκημα.

268. τὸ εἰπεῖν ἐμὲ: the exclamatory inf. always betrays emotion. Put even δεινὸν ἐστὶ before it, and the emotion is cooled. With article, as here: 819, Av. 5, 7, R. 741, Ec. 788, Pl. 593, Plat. Symp. 177 c, Phaed. 99 b, Xen. Cyr. 2. 2. 3, Eur. Alcest. 832, Med. 1052 (GMT. 805, K.-G. 2. 46); yet sometimes without article: V. 835, Aesch. Eum. 870, Soph. Aj. 410, Demos. 21. 209 (GMT. 787, K.-G. 2. 23). | κυνῆν: κυνῆ = κυνέα, sc. δορά; so ἀλωπεκῇ, ἀρκτῇ, λεοντῇ, λυκῇ, μοσχῇ, νεβρῇ, παρδαλῇ, τραγῇ, etc.

269. πολυτίμητοι: usually applied only to divinities, adored, hallowed; 293, 328, E. 1390, V. 1001, P. 978, 1016, Av. 667, Th. 286, 594, R. 323, 337, 397, frg. 319. But it is given also to Hercules (A. 807), Aeschylus (R. 851), and with comic effect to σῖτος (A. 759) and ἰχθυῖδια frg. 387, 9. | εἰς ἐπιδείξιν: εἰς of purpose; V. 369 εἰς σωτηρίαν, 562 and 645 εἰς ἀπόφενξιν, frg. 619 εἰς ἐμβολήν. Cp. ἐπὶ 256 n.

271. Ὀκαιοῦ κῆποι: see the pretty verses thereon in Eur. Hippol. 742-51, and cp. Hes. Theog. 518. | Νύμφαις: the dative is regular (Ἄρει, Βικχίφ, θεῶ, θεῶς, etc.) for the divinity in whose honour men dance or sing; Av. 745, L. 1277, Soph. Aj. 1045, Eur. Bacch. 195, 494, Hel. 1380.

272. προχοαῖς: the locative dat. is too poetic for Blaydes, van Leeuwen, and Sobolewski (Praepos. 6); they insert ἐν. See K.-G. 1. 441. | πρόχοισιν: πρόχοος is contracted and inflected like νοῦς; K.-Bl. 1. 401.

274. χαρεῖσαι: thus used in prayer in Th. 314, 980, Eur. Iph. A. 1525 ὦ πότνια, θύμασιν βροτησίοις χαρεῖσα, πέμψον —, Soph. Ant. 149 ἀντιχαρεῖσα.

283 f. κηλαδῆματα . . . κηλάδοντα: van Leeuwen finds the repetition unendurable, and emends. But cp. 388 f. δεινά . . . δεινά, Soph. O.T. 23 f. σαλεύω . . . σάλου, El. 161-63 γᾶ, 511-15 αἰκία, 871-73 ἡδονή. See Jebb on Soph. O.C. 554 for citation of O.C. 631-36 ἐκβάλλω, 638-40 ἡδύς, 966-69 ἐπεῖ, etc. Index s.v. Sound-play.

287. ἀποσιωσόμεναι κτέ. : Mazon suggests that for a moment the Clouds here show themselves (but only to the Spectators) upon the θεολογείον, for which see Haigh 241, Poll. 4, 130 ἀπό δὲ τοῦ θεολογείου ὄντος ὑπὲρ τὴν σκηνὴν ἐν ὕψει ἐπιφαίνονται θεοί.

294. οὕτως : measures the cause by the effect. Had the clauses come in reverse order ("I so fear" coming first), then the effect would have been introduced by ὥστε. Cp. E. 530, V. 349, Av. 466, 736, and a like use of the pronoun τοιοῦτος 1125. See my note, Selections from Plato, on Apol. 17 a. | τετρεμαῖνω : for pres. reduplications see van Leeuwen Enchir. § 138. It takes the acc. αὐτάς like other verbs which take on the sense of fearing, as φρίττειν, ἐρριγίναί, βδελύττεσθαι (A. 586), ὑπερπυπάζειν (E. 680), and βδύλλειν (L. 354).

295. Verbs in -σεῖω are desiderative ; so ἀγορα-σεῖω, ἀκου-, βρω-, γαμη-, γελα-, διαβη-, δρα-, δω-, ἐλα-, ἐργα-, κινη-, κλαν-, etc. K.-Bl. 2. 264, Brugm. 331, J. Wackernagel K. Z. 28. 141. Cp. verbs in -ιάω 183 n.

296. οὐ μὴ σκώψης : for my retention of σκώψης of the Mss., despite the universal acceptance of σκώψει, see GMT. 301. The οὐ μὴ construction is discussed in Classical Review for the years 1896, 1897, 1902. Exx. of οὐ μὴ prohibition in Arist. are : A. 166, N. 296, 367 (note οὐδέ following), 505, V. 397, R. 202, 298, 462, 524. A straw, perhaps, in favour of Elmsley's interrog. theory is the interrog. μῶν οὐκ in Pax 281.

300. λιπαρὰν χθόνα : Pindar had sung : ὦ τὰι λιπαραὶ καὶ ἰοστέφανοι καὶ δοιδιμοί, Ἑλλάδος ἔρεισμα, κλειναὶ Ἀθῆναι, δαιμόνιον ποταλίεθρον. Quoting this to the Athenians, ambassadors could wheedle anything from them (A. 636 ff.) ; cp. E. 1329, Eur. Alcest. 452, Iph. T. 1130. For discussion of the meaning of λιπαρός and rejection of the allusion to olives as suggested in L. and S., see E. B. Clapp Class. Phil. 5 (1910), 100 f., who refers the adj. to the "clear" or "resplendent" atmosphere of Attica.

302 ff. For Athens' preëminent devotion to much and expensive ritual see Plat. Alc. II 148 e, Soph. O.C. 260 (Ἀθῆναι θεοσεβέσταται), 1006 f., ps.-Xen. Rep. Ath. 3. 8 ἄγουσιν (οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι) ἐορτὰς διπλασίους ἢ οἱ ἄλλοι; so Thuc. 2. 38 ἀγῶνες καὶ θυσίαι διετήσιοι the year through; Isoc. 4. 33 πρὸς τὰ τῶν θεῶν εὐσεβέστατα διακειμένους (τοὺς Ἀθηναίους). | σίβας ἀρρήτων: probably a case of substantive for adj., awful mysteries; see n. on v. 2 χρῆμα τῶν νυκτῶν.

303. δῆμος ἀναδεικνύται: the verb thus used can be matched only by Soph. El. 1458 σιγῶν ἄνωγα ἀναδεικνύναι πύλας.

307. πρόσδοι: = πομπαί; see L. and S.

310. On Attic festivals wherein were competitions for prizes see E. N. Gardiner 227; for complete list see Mommsen Feste der Stadt Athen.

315. μῶν: often adds to a quest. a second one, doubtfully suggesting an answer to the first; A. 329, 418, E. 786, V. 274, P. 281 (μῶν οὐκ), 746, L. 1217, Ec. 348, 976.

317. On the definition of γνώμη and rules for their use in oratory see Aristot. Rhet. 2. 21. Grenfall and Hunt publish in The Hibeh Papyri, Pt. I. (1906), 13-16, what purports to be the preface to a collection of γνώμαι by Epicharmus.

319. ταῦτ' ἔρα: 335, 353, 394, A. 90, E. 125, P. 414, 617, Th. 168, 649, Xen. Cyr. 1. 4. 27, Conviv. 4. 28. Grammatically ταῦτα is here an internal acc. with πεπόνηται = this is the flutter of my soul, or translating it adverbially thus is my soul a-flutter. Cp. τοῦτο χαίρω this is my joy; quid rides, what is your laugh? So the ὅτι-clause after verbs of emotion as ἡδομαι ὅτι- (774), ἄχθομαι ὅτι- (P. 683), θαυμάζω ὅτι- (Av. 1164). K.-G. 1. 310.— But sometimes διὰ ταῦτ' ἔρα is found: Av. 486, P. 892, Plato Protag. 341 c; διὰ τοῦτ' ἔρα Th. 166.

320. καπνοθ: first syllable long. What does this signify?— That a syllable shall be reckoned long if its vowel be followed by two consonants is a rule fairly well observed in Homer, though if the first of these consonants be a mute (πβφ, κγχ, τδθ) and the second a liquid (λμνρ) the utterance is at times slurred and the syllable treated as short (e.g. in ἀτρέμας, ἀπέκρυψε, δὲ κλίνῃ). By the time of Arist. this more rapid treatment had become the rule, and the only combinations of mute and liquid that still required the longer utterance were (1) that of a "middle" mute (i.e. β, γ, or δ, the middle one of the three in the above three groups) with either λ, μ, or ν (as in ἀπόβλεπε, δὲ γναφεύει, δεδεγμένος), or (2) where a verb with liquid initial is compounded with the prepos. ἐκ, as in ἐκροφεῖν. This habit of daily speech Arist. strictly reflects in his iambic trimeters, i.e. the spoken verses of dialogue, unless his words are a tragic parody or quotation. In that case we may expect to find the old Homeric quantities, which are of course retained for the sung choruses (μέλη) and sometimes, as here, in the chanted anapaests, e.g. πᾶτρός 277, βαρύβρομον 284, κᾶπνοῦ 320, ὕγρᾶν 335, ἄκρον 401, ὅτι προήκων 514, κρεμᾶθρῶν 869. | στενο-λίσχειν: Plato Gorg. 497 c. ἐρώτα δὴ σὺ τὰ σμικρά τε καὶ στενὰ ταῦτα. Hence στενόν is petty, paltry.

321. νόσσα: seems by the Indices to be at this time only an epic word, though there was a proverb (date unknown) λέοντα νύσσεις.

326. The fiction of the play is often thus comically disrupted by reference to the spectators (890, 1096, A. 442, P. 962, R. 1475), or the ἐκκύκλημα (A. 408, Th. 96, 265), or μηχανοποιός (P. 174, frg. 188), or χορηγός (P. 1022), or as here to the εἰσόδος (Av. 296, frg. 388).

327. γέ τοι: 878, A. 947, E. 1054, V. 912, 934, 1146, 1416, P. 509, Av. 307, Th. 775, 887, Ec. 88, Pl. 1041. τοι makes the emphasis of γε upon the word preceding it still more emphatic. See K.-G. 2. 153 and n. on 372 for γέ τοι δῆ. | κολοκύνταις: van Leeuwen, after V. Hehn, inclines to think that the pumpkin was at this time a recent and striking arrival in Athens, since even a half-century later Epicrates makes it a subject of study in Plato's Academy (see n. on 188). But would not Epicrates' joke be even better if the pumpkin had been autochthonous?

330. μὰ Δί, ἄλλά: see 204 n.

331. βόσκουσι: is properly used of feeding beasts, τρέφω of human beings. Cp. the Engl. words "food" and "feed." See Neil on Equit. 256.

332. Θουριομάνταις: Lampon is mentioned in an inscript. (CIA:

IV 1. 27 b = Dittenberger 20. 48 = Roberts and Gardner 9. 47) as the mover of certain amendments to an Eleusinian decree (c. 444 B.C.) on the intercalation of a month. For his mission to Thurii 443 see Plut. Moral. 812 d, Diod. Sic. 12. 10. He, the soothsayer, and Anaxagoras, the philosopher, once had an ever-recurring difference in interpreting a freak of nature (Plut. Peric. 6). Cratinus (frgg. 57 f., 62) and others (e.g. Eupolis 297) ridiculed him for gluttony (Athen. 344 c, 307 d), but despite the discredit he and his profession receive from comic poets and progressive spirits such as Euripides (frg. 795 and often), his name stands as the first Athenian signer of the Peace of 421 B.C. (Thuc. 5. 19, 5. 24), and he obtains the honour of public maintenance in the Prytaneum (schol. Pax 1084 and Av. 521). In Arist. we meet him also in Av. 521, 988, still alive; and yet later Cratinus the Younger was making merry with him in his comedy Νέμεσις; schol. Av. 521, E. Capps Harvard Studies 15 (1904), 61-75.

332 f. I transpose the endings of these verses because the μετεωροφένakes are certainly a species of sophist, and are distinct from the ῥήματοκάμπται, hence should not be allowed to separate these latter from their verb μουσοποιούσι in 334. On the other hand, σφραγιδονυχ-αργο-κομήται may well be an epithet for the foppish poetasters. Further, the transposition brings the "weather-prophets" and the "healing-artists" together; and these were sometimes identical, or should be, in the judgment of Hippocrates; περὶ ἀέρων c. 2 fin.: εἰ δὲ δοκέει τις ταῦτα μετεωρολόγια εἶναι, εἰ μετασταίῃ τῆς γνώμης, μάθοι ἂν ὅτι οὐκ ἐλάχιστον μέρος συμβάλλεται ἀστρονομίῃ ἐς ἱητρικὴν, ἀλλὰ πᾶν πλείστον. — For like transposition of verse-ends see among others the emendations of Ach. 324 f. by Ribbeck and Hamaker.

332. μετεωροφένakes: for the attention then paid to τὰ μετέωρα and the popular suspicion of the subject, see Plut. Peric. 5, where Pericles admires Anaxagoras, as καὶ λεγομένης μετεωρολογίας καὶ μεταρσιωλεσχίας ὑποπιμπλάμενος. Plut. Peric. 32 ψήφισμα Διοπεΐθης ἔγραψεν (c. 432 B.C.) εἰσαγγέλεισθαι τοὺς τὰ θεῖα μὴ νομίζοντας ἢ λόγους περὶ τῶν μεταρσιῶν διδάσκοντας. Plut. Nic. 23 οὐκ ἡνέχοντο (οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι) τοὺς φυσικοὺς καὶ μετεωρολόσχας τότε καλουμένους, ὡς εἰς αἰτίας ἀλόγους καὶ δυνάμεις ἀπροσήτους καὶ κατηναγκασμένην πᾶν διατρίβοντας τὸ θεῖον. See also Plat. Phaedr. 270 a, Eur. frg. 913. Aristotle's Meteorologica discusses milky way, comets, orbits, air, water, wind, rain, snow, lightning, earthquakes. See Introd. § 56.

333. τε: "τε solitarium" is used freely by Arist. to connect either single words or clauses in any form of verse; e.g. 359, 700, 994, 1072, 1083, 1358, A. 93, 143, 265, 338, 348, 491, 504, 855, 1062, etc. | ὄσματοκάμπτας: what the musical καμπή was, is probably seen in the two ancient hymns to Apollo discovered some years ago at Delphi inscribed on stone; Bull. de corr. hell. 18 (1894). These show that not one tone only was sung to each syllable, but sometimes two in succession of different pitch. In this case the syllable is twice written; e.g. Φοιοῖβον, ταᾶσδε, Δεελφίσιν, πρωῶνα, μααντεῖκτον. Arist. parodies Euripides' employment of this novelty in Ran. 1314 in the word εἰειεικειλίσσετε — a καμπή indeed, anticipating the flourishes of Italian opera! — For Clouds, Chaos, and Air, as the dependence of high-flying poets, see Arist. A. 1383-1400, P. 827-31. | σφραγιδ.: Arist. parodies the compound-word-making so dear to the dithyrambic "song-twisters." See n. on Introd. § 99; Plato's satirical etymology of Ξελαναία as σελα-ενο-νεο-αεί-α which he says (Crat. 409 b) is διθυραμβῶδες; Aristot. Rhet. 3. 3. 3, Poet. 22 (τῶν δ' ὀνομάτων τὰ μὲν διπλᾶ μάλιστα ἀρμόττει τοῖς διθυράμβοις); Smyth Melic Poets, xliii ff., especially lvi. f.

335. When Trygaeus mounts to heaven to visit Zeus, he meets no one "wandering round the air" save the souls of two or three dithyrambic poets gathering preludes or ἀναβολαί (Pax 828-31); of such ἀναβολαί we perhaps have specimens here. See, also, Bacchylides' dithyramb XV (Heracles).

336. πρημαινούσας: cp. Herod. Mim. 7. 98 πρήμνηνον and 6. 8 πρημονῶσαν = ζέουσιν boiling, fuming.

337. ἀερο-νηχίς: cp. Av. 1385 ἀεροδονήτους ἀναβολάς, 1393 αἰθεροδρόμων οἰωνῶν, R. 1292 κυσὶν ἀεροφοίτους.

338. ἀντ' αὐτῶν: in compensation or exchange for; 668, 1310, E. 1404, V. 509, P. 580, L. 1167, Th. 723, Ec. 1047. So ἀνθ' ὧν came to mean quam ob rem, as in 623, A. 292, Ec. 17, Pl. 840; or also propterea quod, as in Pl. 434. | κατέπινον: on chorus-training-tables, the banquets after the contest, and the meanness shown at times by the choregus, see A. 886, 1155, P. 1022, Eupol. 306, Flut. Moral. 349 a b.

339. On κῶστρο and κίχλη see Athen. 323 and 64 f; for κίχλη also Arist. A. 961, 970, 1007, 1011, 1105, 1109, 1116, P. 531, 1149, 1195, 1197, Av. 591, 1080.

340. τί παθοῦσαι: the same formula at A. 912, P. 701. See n. on 402 and 1506.

341. εἴξαι: 343, Av. 96, 383; also in Eur., Plato, and comic fragments. On the form see K.-Bl. 2. 49 bottom and 410, Brugm. 352 top.

343. δ' οὖν: E. 423, V. 92, P. 736, Av. 499, 577, L. 717, Th. 477, Ec. 326; with inv. see n. on 39. An alternate is ἀλλ' οὖν . . . γε 1002.

344. On the power of initial ρ to make a syllable long see Kaehler's full note on this verse (in Anhang). | With the great noses of the Cloud-masks cp. the beaks of the Aves in Av. 99, 364, 672, and the "King's Eye" Ach. 94 ff.

346. ἤδη ποτέ: or ἤδη or ἤδη πώποτε c. aor. 386, 1061, R. 62, 931, and frequently from Homer (Il. 1. 260) to Lucian (Char. 19); but also c. perf., as e.g. in 370, 766, A. 610, Hermip. 36, Amphis 27 (K. 2. 244), Alex. 273 (K. 2. 398).

349. οἰόνπει τὸν Ξινοφάντου: attraction of case from nomin. c. ἐστί, as in A. 703, Ec. 465. K.-G. 2. 410 ff.

350. ἤκασαν: "gnomic" aor.; 352, 1200 (?), E. 263, 1130, V. 574, 582, 586, 1257-61, L. 17 ff., R. 216, 229, 1068. See n. on 174. | Cp. gnomic perfect: E. 718, V. 494, 561, 591, 616, 694, P. 1176, L. 858, 1234, R. 970, Pl. 569; GMT. 155, K.-G. 1. 150. In Antiph. 204 (K. 2. 98) perf., pres., and aor. are mingled without difference.

in A. 88, 844, and is a butt from then on in E. 958, 1292, 1372, N. 353, 400, 673-80, V. 19 f., 592, 822, P. 446, 673 ff., (1172-86), 1295, Av. 289, 1475, Th. 605, Andoc. 1. 27.

355. Κλεισθένης: A. 118, E. 1374, V. 1187, Av. 831, L. 621, 1092, Th. 235, 574 ff., 763, 929, R. 48, 57, 426, frg. 407, Crat. 195, Pherecr. 135, and perhaps Lysias 25. 25. | ἄρῃς: often parenthetic, as in Th. 496, 556; so μανθάνεις V. 385, Av. 1003; εὖ ἴσθι, or εὖ τοῦτ' ἴσθι Pl. 216; οἷδ' ὅτι, δῆλον ὅτι, πῶς δοκεῖς (n. on 881). K.-G. 2. 353. | διὰ τοῦτο: τοῦτο is resumptive (ep-ana-leptic), as in 395, 1199, 1262, E. 779, V. 653, 741, Av. 1176, Pl. 1014. K.-G. 1. 660.

359. λεπτοτάτων λήρων ἱερῶν: echoed in Dion. Halic. De Composit. 4 (of Hegesias) τούτων γὰρ τῶν λήρων ἱερῶν.

361. πλὴν ἤ: so RV. here and in 734; so also Clarkianus in Plat. Apol. fin.; so Stein reads in Hdt. 2. 111, 6. 5. Cp. ἀλλ' ἤ (E. 780, 953, 1397, V. 984, P. 476, L. 427, R. 928, 1073, 1130) and see K.-G. 2. 285. For πλὴν εἰ, which some editors substitute here, see Av. 601, Th. 532, Eur. Androm. 332 and frg. 325 N., Xen. Hell. 4. 2. 21, Metagen. 13 (K. 1. 708), and K.-G. 2. 487. | Προδίκω: he appears but twice in Arist. (here and Av. 692), often in Plato. See Crat. 384 b for his 50-drachma speech, Protag. 337 a for his neat distinctions between κοινός and ἴσος, ἀμφισβητεῖν and ἐρίζειν, εὐδοκιμεῖν and ἐπαινεῖσθαι, εὐφραίνομαι and ἡδομαι. Xen. Mem. 2. 1. 21-34 tells his Hercules-story, and Aristot. Rhet. 3. 14 his ruse for rousing sleepy auditors. See Diels 535-41.

362. βριθῶναι: ἀποσεμνύνεις σεαυτὸν τῷ σχήματι κομπάζεις καὶ ὑπεροπτικῶς βαίνεις (schol.) Socrates kept his "strut" and his "glance askance" on the battlefield of Delium as well as on the streets (Plato Symp. 221 b). For his endurance of even Thracian ice barefoot see Plato Symp. 220 a b, and cp. Xen. Mem. 1. 6. 2.

364. τερατώδης: other adjs. in -ώδης in Arist. are κριμνώδης 965, διπολι- 984, πριν- V. 383, πυρ- Av. 1746, ἀνθεμ- R. 449, φρικ- R. 1336, γαστρ- Pl. 560, σφηκ- Pl. 561.

365. γάρ τοι: E. 180, V. 588, 603, 787, Av. 1225, L. 46, 626, Th. 81, 171, 1130, R. 73, 532, Ec. 578, frg. 488. 9, and common in Plato. See F. Kugler De Particulae τοι ap. Plat. usu, Trogen, 1886.

368. ἡμοι: "inepte hic videtur particula γε" (Blaydes).

369. αὗται δῆπου: "these clouds, of course." δήπου in Arist. not in quest.: N. 369, V. 663, 1375, P. 145, 350, 955, 1089, L. 913, Th. 805, 819, Ec. 659, 661, Pl. 491, 497, 519, 523, 582; in questt. always οὐ δήπου or οὐ . . . δήπου: E. 900, Av. 179, Pl. 261, 549, 587, and A. 122, Av. 269, Ec. 327, R. 526 (?). K.-G. 2. 131. δήπουθεν is found in V. 296, P. 1019, Av. 187, Pl. 140.

371. Plut. Moral. 894 a (= Aetius 3. 4. 1): 'Αναξίμενης (φησὶ) νύφη γίνεσθαι παχυνθέντος ὅτι πλείστον τοῦ ἀέρος, μᾶλλον δ' ἐπισυναχθέντος ἐκθλίβεσθαι τοὺς ὕμβρους. So Hippocrates (περὶ ἀέρων c. 8) tells how the first light clouds are formed, then τὰ δὲ ὀπισθεν ἐπιφέρεται, καὶ οὕτω παχύνεται καὶ μελαίνεται καὶ συστρέφεται ἐς τὸ αὐτὸ καὶ ὑπὸ βάρους καταρρήγνυται, καὶ ὄμβροι γίνονται.

372. γέ τοι δῆ: R. 1047, Plato Crito 44 a, Phaedr. 264 b, Rep. 476 e, 504 a, Soph. O.T. 1171. Cp. δῆ τοι . . . γε Plato Protag. 311 e, and see K.-G. 2. 153. For γέ τοι see 327 n. | προσέφυσας: cp. Aesch. Suppl. 276 ταῦτ' ἀληθῆ πάντα προσφύσω λόγῳ.

376 ff. So had Anaxagoras explained thunder as a σύγκρισις νεφῶν, while lightning was an ἐκτριψις νεφῶν (Diog. Laert. 2. 9). See also Plut. Moral. 893 d, Aristot. Meteor. 2. 19, Lucret. 6. 96 ff. | On the elevation of ἀνάγκη to godhood ('Ανάγκη) by the philosophers Pythagoras, Parmenides, Empedocles, Democritus, see Ritter and Preller, Index s.v. ἀνάγκη.

377. Venetus reads κατακρινόμεναι, perhaps correctly. See K.-Bl. 2. 466, van Leeuwen Enchir. 573.

380. For δινος the drinking cup, see n. on 1473. On δίνη = Vortex, Rotary Motion, at this time a philosophic term containing a whole theory of the universe, see Gomperz 1. 337 ff. and 1. 53. The doctrine of the Vortex, he thinks, went back to Anaximander, but had been elaborated by Leucippus and Democritus. The latter believed πάντα κατ' ἀνάγκην γίνεσθαι, τῆς δ' ἰναις αἰτίας οὐσης τῆς γενέσεως πάντων, ἣν ἀνάγκη λέγει (Diog. Laert. 9. 45), and that this motion was eternal (eumque motum atomorum nullo a principio, sed ex aeterno tempore intellegi convenire, Cic. De Fin. 1. 6. 17). — These notions were now being published to the people by Diogenes of Apollonia and by Euripides in his tragedies (see, e.g. Troad. 884 and frg. 953). Arist. wishes to show how dangerous is a little learning, and to what misunderstandings protestantism in religion and popularization in science may lead. — For various references to δῖνη or δῖνος see Plato Phaed. 99 b, Aristot. De Caelo 2.13, and in Diels Fragmente, Empedocles 34. 4, Democritus 167, Anaxagoras 12. 10 ff. (περιχώρησις), Leucippus on p. 356, 19 and 28 and 30.

384. Venetus reads ὑγρότητα, perhaps rightly. πυκνότης may be due to 406.

386. Παναθηναίους: ἐπεὶ ἐν τοῖς Παναθηναίοις πᾶσαι αἱ ὑπὸ τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἀποικισθεῖσαι πόλεις βούν τυθησόμενον ἔπεμπον, συνέβαινε δέαιαν εἶναι τῶν κρεῶν (schol.). See also Gard.-Jev. 288. | εἶτα: linking partic. and finite verb; 149, 172, 178, 592, A. 291, 1166, E. 263, 281, V. 49, 379, 423, 1072, Av. 360, 1619, and often; GMT. 855 f., K.-G. 2. 86. — So ἔπειτα A. 498, N. 1042, Av. 29, 518, etc. — So καὶ (καί being adverbial to εἶτα, and not a conjunct.?) N. 409, E. 354, 357, 392, P. 890 (?), Av. 674, 1455, L. 560, Plato Gorg. 457 b. — So καπεῖτα N. 624, Av. 536, Plato Phaed. 98 c. Cp. εἶτα δέ A. 24, E. 377, and see further n. on 860.

388. δεινὰ ποιεῖ: 583, R. 1093, Hdt. 2. 121. 5, 3. 14. 22, 5. 41. 9, 7. 1. 5, 9. 33. 21, Andoc. 1. 63, Thuc. 5. 42. 2. Distinguish from δεινὰ ποιεῖσθαι (= ἡγείσθαι) as in περὶ πολλοῦ ποιεῖσθαι, ἐν οὐδενὶ ποιεῖσθαι.

392. τυννουτοῦ: with shortened penult, as in τουτουῖ (653, A. 246), κεινουῖ (P. 1213), τουτωῖ (E. 490, 869), τουτωῖ (Av. 62), αὐτηῖ (Av. 301), αὐταιῖ (Av. 1018). So also in φιλαθήναιος, δέλιαιος, ὀποιός, etc. K.-Bl. 1. 313, Christ Metrik 27. — τυννοῦτος in Arist.: A. 367, E. 1220, N. 392, 878, Th. 745, R. 139.

394. πορδή: always a matter of jest, and its mention not always held vulgar. See Hom. Hymn to Hermes 295 f., Dante Inferno 21, 139, Hdt. 2. 162 (Amasis). Arist. is full of it: A. 30, E. 115, 639, N. 9, 392, V. 394, 618, 1177, 1305, P. 335, 547, Av. 792, R. 10, 1074, Ec. 78, 464, Pl. 176, 618, 699.

398. κρονίων: Cronus is used chiefly to date things out of date; 929, 1070, V. 1480, Pl. 581, Plato Euthyd. 287 b, Lys. 205 c, Philon. 15 (K. 1. 257) ὑνὶ δὲ Κρόνου καὶ Τιθωνοῦ παππ-επί-παππος γενόμεσται, Timoth. in Athen. 122 d; so also Iapetus (998) and Tithonus (A. 688). — For the one-day festival τὰ Κρόνια on Hecatombaeon 12, see Mommsen Feste 32. | βεκκισέλην: Hdt. 2. 2 tells the story of Psammetichus and his famous experiment for discovering the original language of the world. On the προσέληνοι Arcadians see Apoll. Rhod. 4, 264.

399. Cp. Lucret. 6. 386 and 416 on the impartial bolt of Zeus, levelled at good and bad alike. | δῆτα: in quest. preferably stands next to the interrog. word (τί, πῶς, ποῖ, ἄρα), as in 58, 79, 423, 724, 904; but like γάρ and ἄρα (165) is weak in maintaining its rights, as in 403, 1151, 1196, V. 985, 1148. In E. 810 four words intervene, in E. 18 six, here twelve! But many good Mss. read πῶς; instead. See J. Wehr 79 ff., K.-G. 2. 133.

400. Θέωρον: he appears in A. 134-73 as a legate reporting, after long delay but continued pay, from Thracian Sitalces; in E. 608 he is probably a gourmand (see van Leeuwen); in V. 42-51 and 418 he is a κόλαξ-κόραξ soon to go ἐς κόρακας; in V. 599 he is bootblack to Demus, in V. 1220 and 1236 a parasite of Cleon. Exit forever Theorus (Show-man).

402. τί μαθών: so 1506, A. 826, V. 251, L. 599, Pl. 908, Demos. 10. 39, 20. 127, 29. 20, 45. 38; GMT. 839, K.-G. 2. 519. But many editors change in all cases μαθών to παθών (as in 340); and AΘ so read here.

404. κατακλεισθῆ: so the best Mss., not -κλυσθῆ. See Zacher 137, as against K.-Bl. 2. 460. | This account of lightning is not parody but veritable science of the time. Concerning thunder, lightning, and hurricane, Anaximander believed ἐκ τοῦ πνεύματος ταυτὶ πάντα συμβαίνειν· ὅταν γὰρ περιληφθὲν νέφει παχεὶ βιασάμενον ἐκπέσῃ τῇ λεπτομερείᾳ καὶ κουφότητι, τότε ἢ μὲν ῥῆξις τὸν ψόφον ἢ δὲ διαστολὴ παρὰ τὴν μελανίαν τοῦ νέφους τὸν διαγασμὸν ἀποτελεῖ (Plut.

Moral. 893 d = Aetius 3. 3. 1). So later Lucret. 6. 175. See Park Benjamin The Intellectual Rise in Electricity (1898), 563 ff. for interesting record of the views of man on thunder and lightning.

408. For the Diasia, celebrated Anthesterion 23 to Ζεὺς ὁ μελίχιος, see 864, Thuc. 1. 126. 6, Xen. Anab. 7. 8. 4, Mommsen Feste 421 ff. For a new derivation of the name and interpretation of the ceremonies (διο for δῖο = Lat. dīro, having no connection with Δῖός, gen. of Ζεύς), see J. E. Harrison 12 ff., or J.H.S. 19. 414 n. 1.

409. γαστέρα: haggis; so Od. 18. 44, 20. 25, and Hes. Theog. 539, where Prometheus deceives Zeus into choosing white bones, because hidden by fat, rather than the good things hidden inside the γαστήρ. Cp. κοιλία E. 160, 302, 356, and ἡνυστρον E. 356, 1179.

410. δια-λακῆσασα: λακέω (Theocr. 2. 24, ἐπιληκέω Od. 8. 379) = λά-σκω. Cp. κομπο-λάκυθος A. 589, κομπο-λακεῖν R. 961.

412. ὦ . . . ἄνθρωπε: so 816, E. 726, V. 1512, P. 1198, Av. 1271; cp. L. 1097 ὦ χαίρετ' ὦ Λάκωνες, Eur. Alcest. 234, Plato Euthyd. 294 b. | This and the five next verses are quoted by Diog. Laert. 2. 27, as addressed to Socrates — a fact made much of in the discussion on the original form of the play.

413. καί: marks a crescendo; so 1239, 1302, Il. 19. 63 Ἐκτορι μὲν καὶ Τρωσὶ, Thuc. 1. 116 ἐπὶ Καίνου καὶ Καρίας, K.-G. 2. 247.

415 ff. Cp. the qualities of the real Socrates in Plato Symp. 174 d-75 c, 220; Xen. Mem. 1. 2. 1, 1. 6. 2, 2. 1. 1, 4. 1. 2. | μή . . . μήτε: K.-G. 2. 288 bottom.

420. οὐνεκα: as for, as regards; A. 389, 958, L. 74, 491, R. 1118, Ec. 170, 367, and often. K.-G. 1. 462.

422. ἀμύλαι: 488, 877, 1111, A. 368, E. 1213, L. 164, 172, 842, 935, R. 532, Ec. 800.

423. ἄλλο τι . . . οὐ: cp. Plato Gorg. 503 d ἄλλο τι οὐκ εἰρη εἶρη; is it not true that he will not speak at random? Hipp. Maj. 296 b ἄλλο τι οὐτοί . . . οὐκ ἂν ποτε ἐποίουν; is it not true that these would never have done — ? K.-G. 2. 529.

424. In Ran. 892-94 Euripides prays: αἰθὴρ ἐμὸν βόσκημα καὶ γλώσσης στρόφιγξ | καὶ ξύνεσι καὶ μυκτῆρες ὀσφραντήριοι, | ὀρθῶς μ' ἐλέγχειν ὦν ἂν ἄπτωμαι λόγων.

426. ἐπιθείην: the regular compound for this act of ritual; V. 96, R. 888, Plat. com. 69. 9, Antiph. 164. 4 (K. 2. 78).

430. Cp. R. 91 Εὐριπίδου πλεῖν ἢ σταδίῳ λαλίστερα.

433. λέγειν: held to be an imv. use of the inf. by R. Wagner Der Gebrauch des imper. Infin. 38, and K.-G. 2. 510; see n. on 850. But note the frequent idiomatic ellipse of the verb after μή, as cited on 84.

434. ὅσα . . . στρεψοδικῆσαι: enough to. . . . The sing. ὅσον or ὅσον μόνον c. inf. is more common; V. 1288, L. 732 (c. partic.), Eupol. 250, Thuc. 1. 2. 1, 6. 105. 2, Xen. Anab. 4. 1. 5, 7. 3. 22, Oecon. 11. 18, Plato Protag. 334 c. K.-G. 2. 510 f.

440. τό γ' ἐμὸν σῶμα: Cobet and many editors read τοῦμόν. But see K.-G. 2. 175, and cp. the use of γε in γοῦν and γάρ (γε ἄρα) in explicative clauses or appositive clauses.

442. ἀσκὸν δαίρειν: this same flaying in E. 370, Solon frg. 29. 7 (Hiller-Crusius), Hdt. 7. 26, Plato Euthyd. 285 c.

443. εἰ: c. fut. indic. is here equivalent to μέλλω c. inf.; so in 452, 1035, V. 1264, P. 88, Av. 549, 759, 900, R. 13, 176, 1460, Ec. 471, 568, Pl. 556, 878, 923. Sobol. Synt. 109.

446. συγκολλητής: cp. E. 463 κολλώμενα, V. 1041 ξυνεκόλλων.

447. περί-τριμμα: cp. τριῖμμα 260. περι- is intensive, as in περι-καλλής, περι-σκελής. Demos. 18. 127 calls Aeschines περίτριμμα ἀγορᾶς; cp. Ach. 937 τριπτήρ δικῶν. For the use of abstract substantives as concrete see GS. 41, K.-G. 1. 10.

449. εἶρων: see Starkie on Vesp. 174.

450. κέντρων: cp. στίγων and πέδων, also applied as κέντρων to slaves, according to the punishment deserved. Other comic names in -ων are γάστρων, γλάμ-, γλίσχρ-, γλύνκ-, κάνθ-, κύρτ-, πόσθ-, στράβ-. Cp. Shorty, Fatty, and see Peppler 33 f. | στρόφεις: Fick, Curt. Stud. 9 (1876), 177, treats of the formation in -ις which is not confined to comedy. | ἀργαλῆος: = λυπηρός; common only in Homer, to judge from extant literature.

451. For the sophist-parasite see Eupol. 146 on Protagoras:
ὅς ἀλαζονεύεται μὲν ἀλιτήριος | περὶ τῶν μετεώρων, τὰ δὲ χαμάθεν ἐσθίει.

455. ἐκ μου: the unemphatic pronoun after a prepos. is rare;
E. 372 ἐκ σου, V. 1358 περί μου. K.-Bl. 1. 347.

456. τοῖς φροντισταῖς: the Ruminators. We might recall that a whole herd of these "ruminating" animals had probably just been exhibited by Amipsias in his Connus. See n. on 179.

457. λήμα: used eight times by Arist., it belongs to elevated style, as is clear from the context and spirit on each occasion: E.
757, N. 457, 1350, Th. 459, R. 463, 500, 603, 899.

462 ff. Cp. the εὐδαιμονία of those initiated into the Eleusinian mysteries as told by Pindar frg. 114 Bergk⁸ and Soph. frg. 753 (Plut. Moral. 21 f.).

465. ἀρά γε: V. 1337, Av. 668, 1221. ἀρα . . . γε V. 4, P. 114, Av. 307, Pl. 546. Cp. ἀρα δῆτα N. 1094, E. 322. O. Bachmann
s.v.

470. ἐς λόγον ἀλθεῖν: so E. 806, 1300 (ξυνελθεῖν), but usually λό-γους, as in V. 472 and Herodotus often. Cp. 252.

474. ἄξια σῇ φρενί: a like dat. with ἄξιος in A. 8, 205, E. 616, N.
1074, Av. 548. | σῇ φρενί: the article is rarely absent in prose when the possessive pronoun is used with a definite possession. But here the passage is lyric, as also 1166, Av. 456, 1759, L. 345; and Th.
912 is a quotat. from Euripides. In A. 1232, E. 732, 1341, Th.
514, the article is properly omitted, as the reference is indefinite.
K.-G. 1. 627.

477. γνώμης ἀποπειρώ: the same phrase Hdt. 3. 119. 5, Andoc.
1. 105, Isoc. 18. 39, Polyb. 35. 6. 3. Cp. Plato Protag. 311 b (ῥώμης ἀποπειρᾶσθαι).

480. ἐπὶ τούτοις: ἐπὶ of succession; A. 13, P. 1085, L. 1295,
Th. 1045, Ec. 82, Pl. 57 (τὰπὶ τούτοις in the last two exx.).

483. ἦ: by origin an intensive (HA. 1037. 9) like μήν; = verily, ἀληθῶς, ὄντως (Hesych.). It had interrog. function as ἄρα (from ἄρα, K.-G. 2. 144 f.); A. 749, 776, Pl. 869, etc. Note ἀλλ' ἦ interrog. in A. 424, 426, V. 8 (K.-G. 2. 528 f.); yet sometimes intensive (= but surely) in A. 1111, 1112, E. 1162 (K.-G. 2. 145). Distinguish from ἀλλ' ἦ after a negative expressed or implied (see n. on 361). Cp. ἦ που L. 1089, Pl. 970; Elmsley on Eur. Med. 1275. | μνημονικός: on the new affectation of adjectives in -ικός among the "enlightened" see Peppler A.J.P. 31 (1910), 428. — The question of memory was held important by the historic Socrates, according to Xen. Mem. 4. 1. 2.

491. τί δαί: δαί is used only after τί (τίς) and πῶς. Brugm. 547 notes that δαί: δῆ :: ναί: νή. Being colloquial, it is found but once (if at all) in Aeschylus, once (if at all) in Sophocles, not at all in historians and orators, yet seven times in the colloquial Euripides, and often of course in Plato and in Arist. e.g. 1266, 1275, A. 105, 612, 764, 802, etc. Cp. τί δέ, τί δὲ δῆ, τί δῆτα. Wehr 74-78, K.-G. 2. 134.

493. δίδοικα μή: followed by indic. expresses no real fear, but conviction (sugar-coated); for the indic. is the mood of fact. GMT. 369, K.-G. 2. 394.

496. ἀκαρή: neut. plur. as Bachmann Conject. Arist. 69, or acc. sing. (sc. χρόνον) as Blaydes, Kock, Kaehler, van Leeuwen.

507. μελιτοῦτταν: sc. μάζαν. A good list of common ellipses is in Starkie Vesp. 106, or K.-G. 1. 265; see also n. on 1047.

508. Cave-oracle of Trophonius: Pausan. 9. 39. 2-14, Plut. Moral. 411 f, 590 a-92 e, Hdt. 1. 46, 8. 134, Philostr. Vita Apollon. 8. 19, Luc. Dial. Mort. 3. 2, Athen. 614 a. | εἰς Τροφώνιον: i.e. ἱερὸν. For gen. of person or divinity after εἰς see 964, 996, E. 1235, V. 123, 1250, L. 2, 621, 725, 1064, 1070, 1209, Th. 89, R. 69, 118, 172, 1363, Ec. 420, Pl. 411, 621; Sobol. Praepos. 45. — So ἐν c. gen. 509. $\kappa\nu\pi\acute{\alpha}\lambda\upsilon\varsigma$: for frequentative and intensive verbs in $-\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omega$, $-(\sigma)\acute{\kappa}\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omega$, $-(\sigma)\acute{\tau}\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omega$ see van Leeuwen Enchir. 356, Monro on Od. 13. 9, K.-Bl. 2. 262. Exx. $\mu\omicron\lambda\pi\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omega$ R. 380, $\omicron\pi\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omega$ E. 200, $\chi\alpha\sigma\acute{\kappa}\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omega$ V. 695, $\sigma\alpha\rho\acute{\kappa}\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omega$ ($\sigma\alpha\acute{\iota}\rho\omega$) P. 482, $\kappa\lambda\alpha\sigma\tau\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omega$ E. 166, $\rho\acute{\iota}\pi\tau\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omega$ L. 27, $\nu\epsilon\sigma\tau\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omega$, $\acute{\alpha}\gamma\upsilon\rho\tau\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omega$ ($\acute{\alpha}\gamma\acute{\epsilon}\rho\omega$), $\beta\alpha\sigma\tau\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omega$, $\omicron\nu\sigma\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omega$, etc.

510. $\acute{\alpha}\lambda\lambda' \omega\iota \chi\alpha\acute{\iota}\rho\omega\iota$: a like formula in A. 1143, E. 488, V. 1009, P. 729. Exx. of the fairly complete parabasis in Arist. are A. 626–718, E. 498–610, N. 510–626, V. 1009–1121, Av. 676–800; of the incomplete form are A. 1143–73, E. 1264–1315, N. 1114–30, V. 1265–91, P. 1127–90, Av. 1058–1117, Th. 785–845, R. 675–737, Ec. 1155–62. See Gleditsch 239, Christ 665.

515. $\tau\eta\eta\ \phi\acute{\upsilon}\sigma\iota\upsilon\iota\ \alpha\acute{\upsilon}\tau\omicron\theta$: unusual position of reflexive; so in 905, P. 880, Av. 475, frg. 590. K.-G. 1. 620.

518–62. With the poet's use of the first personal pronoun throughout this parabasis cp. those passages where the third person drops into the first: A. 659–64 ($\pi\acute{\nu}\lambda\gamma\omicron\varsigma$ of 1st parabasis), V. 1284–91 (antistr. of 2d parab.), P. 754–74 (last part of parab. with $\pi\acute{\nu}\lambda\gamma\omicron\varsigma$); also in letters, as in Thuc. 1. 128. 7 (Pausanias to king), 1. 129. 3 (king to Pausan.), Xen. Hell. 5. 1. 31 (Artaxerxes).

520. $\omicron\upsilon\tau\omega \dots \acute{\omega}\varsigma$: cp. "ita me dii amant, ut ego nunc . . . laetor," Ter. Heaut. 4. 3. 8, Hom. Il. 8. 538, 13. 825, Luc. Philopseud. 27, Arist. Thesm. 469 (without $\acute{\omega}\varsigma$); K.-G. 2. 494. — With this piece of saucy assurance cp. E. 230 as explained by van Leeuwen and accepted by H. Richards, Class. Rev. 16 (1902), 355.

522. $\sigma\omicron\phi\acute{\omicron}\tau\alpha\tau' \acute{\epsilon}\chi\epsilon\iota\iota$: so $\acute{\epsilon}\chi\epsilon\iota\iota$ intrans. with superlat. adverb $\acute{\alpha}\rho\iota\sigma\tau\alpha$ (R. 1161, Th. 260), $\acute{\omicron}\rho\theta\acute{\omicron}\tau\alpha$ (Plato Rep. 297 e), with $\acute{\epsilon}\tau\acute{\epsilon}\rho\omega\varsigma$ (Pl. 371), $\acute{\alpha}\nu\alpha\gamma\kappa\alpha\acute{\iota}\omega\varsigma$ (P. 334), $\omicron\upsilon\tau\omega$, $\kappa\alpha\lambda\acute{\omega}\varsigma$, etc., very frequently.

523. $\acute{\alpha}\nu\alpha\text{-}\gamma\acute{\epsilon}\theta\sigma\alpha\iota$: perhaps no more than $\gamma\acute{\epsilon}\theta\sigma\alpha\iota$. Cp. $\acute{\alpha}\nu\alpha\text{-}\pi\acute{\iota}\nu\omega$, $\acute{\alpha}\nu\alpha\text{-}\delta\acute{\iota}\delta\acute{\alpha}\sigma\kappa\omega$ (Thuc. 1. 32. 1, where see Steup).

31. In all these passages the aorist is used exc. in A. 17, 596, 597 (pres.), and A. 628 (perf.). | οἷς ἥδ' καὶ λέγειν : many would emend ; the best suggestion by far is that of H. Weber Aristoph. Studien (1908), οἷς ἡ δίκη λέγειν whose right and duty it is to speak, i.e. the judges.

530. ἦν : so the Mss. For its retention, and not ἦ, see K.-Bl. 2. 222 top.

535. ἦν πον : εἰάν (or εἰ) πως is more usual. GMT. 489.

537 ff. Arist. here plays the "high-and-mighty-mannered man." See notes on §§ 67 (17) and 98 of the Intro.

540. κόρδακα : a dance ἥτις αἰσχροῦς κινεῖ τὴν ὀσφύν (schol.). It is ὁ ἀπονεινομένης who is able ὀρχεῖσθαι νήφων τὸν κόρδακα (Theophr. Charac. 6). Of rhythms, ὁ τροχάιος κορδακικώτερος (Aristot. Rhet. 3. 8. 4). See also Luc. De Saltat. 22, 26, Poll. 4. 99, Athen. 630 ε, Bekk. Anecd. 101. 17, Haigh 355, but especially W. Downs Class. Rev. 19 (1905), 399 f., and H. Schnabel Kordax (1910), who holds that the κόρδαξ, καλλαβίς, and μόθων were all of the same character and originated in pre-Dorian Peloponnesus, where they were primitively danced in honour of Artemis as part of the magic which induced fertility. — By various editors Arist. is believed to have had the κόρδαξ (or μόθων) danced at A. 251, 341, E. 697, N. 1206, V. 1481, 1528, P. 325, L. 798, 1044. | εἰλκεῖν : cp. P. 328, Poll. 4. 105 σχιστὰς (ὀρχήσεις) εἰλκεῖν. Schnabel Kordax 29 takes εἰλκεῖν as the "drawing up of one leg close to the body," as seen in three of the dancers figured in Baumeister Denkmäler 3. 1963.

541. ἔπη : verses, specifically those which are simply declaimed or are chanted in recitative with instrumental accompaniment, in contrast to those sung in tune (μέλος). Thus Homer's verses are ἔπη (hence "epic"), and in the drama all trochaic, iambic, and anapaestic dimeters, trimeters, and tetrameters (unless incidentally used in μέλος). Christ 158, 676, Zielinski 289. Cp. Arist. E. 508, R. 358, 862, 885.

547. καὶνὰς ἰδέας : see n. on Intro. § 99.

550. οὐκ ἐτόλμησα : certainly it was not from magnanimity or pity as is sometimes stated (e.g. by Busolt 3. 1124) that Arist. refrained from "jumping on" Cleon again. Those feelings are alien to Old Comedy celebrating the Dionysia (see notes on §§ 67 (27-29) and 97 of the Introd.). The poet's claim is not that he is magnanimous but that he never repeats himself — the ὅς-clause (v. 549) offering proof of his pretension αἰ καὶνὰς ἰδέας εἰσφέρων of v. 547.

551. Ὑπέρβολος: first heard of c. 428 B.C. in Cratinus' Ἦραι (frg. 262); then, in order of time, in Arist. A. 846, E. 739, 1304-15, 1363, N. 623-25, 876, 1065, Crat. 196 (Πυτίνῃ), V. 1007 (see too Andoc. in schol.), Com. Adesp. 2 (schol. on E. 1304), Eupolis' Μαρικᾶς (421 B.C.), Arist. Pax 680-92, 921, 1319, Leuco's Φράτερες (frg. 1), Hermip. Ἀρτοπώλιδες (420 B.C.), Plato com. Ὑπέρβολος (419 B.C.), Arist. Nub. 551-58. In 417 he was ostracized (schol. Eq. 855, Plut. Alcib. 13, Nic. 11, Aristid. 7, Plato com. 187); in 411 assassinated in Samos (Thuc. 8. 73. 3, Arist. Th. 840, Polyzelus 5 (K. 1. 791), Theopompus in schol. Vesp. 1007). Lastly we hear of him in Hades (Ran. 569) as the patron of slaves. See also Isoc. 8. 75, Luc. Tim. 30, and an excellent account of him in Couat 156-61. On the date of his ostracism: Busolt 3. 1257. | ὥς: Nilsson 132 notes that in Arist., as regularly in prose, the temporal ὥς-clause always precedes the main clause, while the causal ὥς, like the causal ἐπεὶ (n. on 208), always follows. Exx. of ὥς temporal: E. 62, V. 673, 1304, 1308, 1476, P. 612, 632, 836, etc.

553. Εὐπόλις: greatest of Aristophanes' rivals, mentioned by name only here in the extant plays, but if we may trust the scholia constantly alluded to with the disapproval natural to a rival. | παρελκύνει: παρά as in παρα-βαίνειν used of the coming forward (παρα-βασίς) of the chorus or of an orator upon the βῆμα. Cp. παρ-άγω R. 1054, παρα-κύπτω A. 16.

554. The charge of literary theft is a pleasantry often indulged in: infra 559, frg. 54, Crat. 200, 307, Hermip. 64, Eupol. 78, Lysip. 4 (K. 1. 701). See n. on Introd. § 67 (17). | κακὸς κακῶς: so κακὰ κακῶς E. 189, with variants in Pl. 65, 418, 879; καλὴ καλῶς

A. 253, P. 1330, Ec. 730 ; αἰσχροὺς αἰσχροῶς, ψυχροὺς ψυχροῶς Th. 168-70 ; πολλή πολλοῦ R. 1046. K.-G. 2. 602.

556. Φρόνιχος : a comic poet of the second rank, competing with Arist. in 414 and 405 B.C. His Μονότροπος took third prize when the Birds took second ; his Μοῦσαι second when the Frogs took first.

557. Ἑρμύππος : known not only for his comedies, but also for his indictment of Aspasia on the charge of impiety and immorality (Plut. Peric. 32, Athen. 589 e, Busolt 3. 828).

559. εἰκοῦς : = εἰκόνας, as μείζους = μείζοντας. For inflect. εἰκῶ, -οῦς, acc. -ώ, see K.-Bl. 1. 497.

562. εἰς τὰς ὥρας τὰς ἐτέρας : cp. R. 380 εἰς τὰς ὥρας, Th. 950 ἐκ τῶν ὥρων εἰς τὰς ὥρας, Eur. Iph. A. 122 εἰς τὰς ἄλλας ὥρας, Hom. Od. 9. 135 εἰς ὥρας, Hom. Hy. 26. 12 δὸς δ' ἡμᾶς χαίροντας ἐς ὥρας αὐτὶς ἰκέσθαι, | ἐκ δ' αὐθ' ὥράων εἰς τοὺς πολλοὺς ἐνιαυτούς, Plato Epist. 7. 346 d μένε τὸν ἐνιαυτὸν τοῦτον, εἰς δὲ ὥρας ἀπιθι, Theocr. 15. 74 κείς ὥρας κῆπειτα, φίλ' ἀνδρῶν, ἐν καλῷ εἴης, Anth. Pal. 12. 107 εἰς ὥρας αὐθὶς ἄγοιτε καλόν.—For the various meanings of εἰς temporal, e.g. in εἰς ἐσπέραν, toward or in or during or until, see Sobol. Praepos. 56, K.-G. 1. 470.

562. δοκῆσθε : the poetic forms δοκήσω and ἐδόκησα for δόξω and ἔδοξα are not used by Arist. in iambic trimeter ; R. 737, 1485. In V. 726 δεδόκησαι. K.-Bl. 2. 403. | The πνίγος expected at this point may not have been written because the scheme of the Eupolidean verse (the peculiarity of which is that it provides breathing places) does not readily lend itself to the construction of a long passage without breathing places.

563-74. In tone, as well as in their opening phrases, metres, and otherwise, the parabasis-odes of Arist. seem to Rossbach-Westphal (*Specielle Metrik*³ 402) to have parodied or at least strongly suggested well-known lyric or tragic choruses ; e.g. A. 665, E. 1264 (from Pindar, schol.), N. 595 (Terpander, schol.), P. 775. (Stesichorean, schol.), R. 675. Others of a hymnal character begin at E. 551, 581, Av. 738, 769.

575. προσέχετε : for this Ms. reading as against the proposed πρόσχετε (also for προσχέτω 1122) see Zacher 85. On the resolution in this 7th foot of trochaic tetrameter see Christ 295 f.

576. μεμóμεσθα: -μεσθα is freely used in all metres when needed by comedy and tragedy alike. Speck 40 lists Aristophanic usage; see K.-Bl. 2. 61 Anm. Infra 1116, 1353, 1375.

577. óφελούσθαι: this reading of R, adopted by Blaydes, is easily defended by A. 1165, V. 135, P. 1242 ff., Av. 47, 1293, Soph. O.T. 60, Xen. Oecon. 1. 14, Hiero 4. 6, 6. 15, Anab. 7. 6. 37. K.-G. 1. 47.

579. αἵτινες: not ὅστις, but ὅς, is the commoner relative in concessive clauses. Sobol. Synt. 171 counts 11 exx. in Arist. of ὅς concessive (E. 521, 535, 781, N. 1226, V. 684, Th. 793, 842, R. 1058, Ec. 93, 402, Pl. 282) and but 4 of ὅστις (A. 57, E. 876, N. 579, frg. 221. 1). For ὅστις causal see n. on 1158 infra.

580. ξύν: only in parody and in lyrics does Arist. allow himself the old free use of σύν, viz. in N. 604, V. 1081, P. 357, Av. 1722, L. 1039, Th. 102, 716, 1034, R. 444, 1207, 1289. Elsewhere he conforms to prose usage, employing it only in the phrases σὺν θεῷ (θεοῖς) V. 1085, R. 1199, Pl. 114; σὺν ὄπλοις V. 359, L. 555, 558; σὺν ὀπλίταις L. 1143; οὐδενὶ (μηδενὶ) σὺν νῷ N. 580, as in Plato; and finally in the sense including, frg. 100. 4. Sobol. Praepos. 32-34, Starkie Vesp. 359. — The position of prepos. between adj. and subst. is fairly common in poetry (as in Latin prose), e.g., Aesch. Prom. vv. 2 (ἄβροτον εἰς ἐρημίαν), 15, 66, 117, 143. K.-G. 1. 555.

580. ψακάζομεν: in A. 171 the διουσημία which causes the dismissal of the ἐκκλησία is a drop of rain. Cp. Aristot. Ath. Pol. 44. 4 (εὐσημία), Arist. Eccl. 791 ff.

581. Those who force the text find real eclipses therein, and refer to that of the moon Oct. 9, 425 and of the sun visible in Athens March 21, 424 B.C. from 8 to 10.15 A.M. (Thuc. 4. 52. 1), thus fixing the elections here referred to as those of the spring of 424, when Cleon was indeed elected general. So Busolt 3, 1124, Beloch 1. 548 Anm. 4, Keck Quaestt. Arist. (1876) 61, Steup doubtfully at Thuc. 4. 52. 1, Swoboda Hermes 28 (1893), 545. —

But if the language be taken as in the text-notes, then the spring elections of 423 may be meant, just before the production of the original Clouds, though there is no record extant of Cleon's election that year. So Bücheler Jbb. f. klass. Phil. 83 (1861), 659; Kirchner Rh. M. 44 (1889), 155; van Leeuwen Nub. (1898). — If, however, these verses belong to the revision, they may refer to the election of 422 for the campaign against Amphipolis. So Gilbert Beiträge (1877) 201; Weyland Philol. (1876) 73; Kaehler Nub. (1887), Kock Nub. (1894). But in this case, since they refer to Cleon as living (591 ff.), they could not have been written (as were vv. 518–62) after the battle of Amphipolis; for in that battle Cleon was slain.

583. A quotation in part from Soph. Teucros (frg. 520) οὐρανοῦ δ' ἄπο | ἤστραψε, βροντῇ δ' ἐρράγη δι' ἀστραπῆς.

584. ἦλιος: had threatened the like in Hom. Od. 12. 383 δύσομαι εἰς Ἀΐδαο καὶ ἐν νεκύεσσι φαείνω.

587. Athens' good luck despite her ill counsel was proverbial; Ec. 473, Eupol. 205.

588. προσ-εἶναι: used of qualities permanent and characteristic; E. 217, V. 1075, Herod. Mim. 1. 20, Plat. Menex. 234 c, Antiphon. 5. 9. Cp. the use of πρὸς c. gen. E. 191, V. 369, 1014, Th. 177, R. 534, 540, Pl. 355, Xen. Anab. 1. 2. 11, Mem. 2. 3. 15.

589. ἐπὶ τὸ βέλτιον: 594, Ec. 475. ἐπὶ τὰ βελτίω V. 986, ἐπὶ τὸ ἄμεινον Demos. 43. 66, ἐπὶ τὸ χεῖρον Xen. Cyr. 8. 8. 2.

592. τοῦτου τὸν αὐχένα: Sobol. Praepos. 111 finds this predicate position of τοῦτου only four times in Arist. — A. 431, N. 592, L. 680, Th. 538. — viz. "cum genitivo sustinetur pondus orationis." K.-G. 1. 619.

593. εἰς τάρχατον: adverbial phrase; cp. εἰς τάχος A. 686, εἰς εὐτέλειαν Av. 457, εἰς κύκλον (= κυκλόσε) Th. 954, εἰς τὰ πολλά (= plerumque) frg. 580. 2. Sobol. Praepos. 61.

594. συνοίσεται: the middle voice belongs rather to Hdt. than to Attic usage. Proposed emendations are συμβήσεται (Kock), ἀποβήσεται (Kaehler), ξυστήσεται (van Leeuwen).

595. ἀμφὶ μοι αὐτε: on the original Terpendrian prelude from which this is borrowed, see Smyth 168. Cp. Hom. Hy. 22 ἀμφὶ Ποσειδάωνα θεὸν μέγαν ἀρχομ' αἶδειν, 33 ἀμφὶ Διὸς κούρους ἐλικώπιδες ἔσπετε Μοῦσαι, Eur. Troad. 511 ἀμφὶ μοι Ἴλιον, ὦ Μοῦσα . . . αἶεσον . . . φῶδαν. Other dithyrambic passages where, after suspension, the verb does at last appear (unlike the present passage) are : R. 708-14, Av. 739-45, 769-72, Pl. 302-06. | αἶτε : V. 1015 (anap. tetram.), P. 1270 (dactylic), L. 1296 (lyric). K.-G. 2. 279, Starkie on Vesp. 1015.

599. μάκαιρα: incorporation into the relative clause, as in 863, P. 676, Av. 144, L. 61-63, 96, Th. 502, Pl. 365, 933. HA. 995, K.-G. 2. 416 ff.

600. οἶκον: see Hdt. 1. 92, 2. 148, Liv. 1. 45, Dion. Halic. Antiq. 4. 25 for this older temple and its gifts from Croesus; for both temples, older and later, Strabo 640 f., Pliny 36. 95. On the (sacred) dances of the Lydian maids, cp. L. 1308 f., Autocr. frg. 1 (K. 1. 806).

604. σὺν πεύκαις: is lyric for μετὰ δάδων (schol.), or δάδας ἔχων, as in 543. See n. on 580 for σὺν.

609. The Cleon-χαίρει story told by the schol. here and on Pl. 322, and by Luc. Pro Lapsu 3 seems to have been finally explained by G. A. Gerhard Phil. 64 (1905), 38 ff. Cleon in his despatch from Pylus to the Athenians had bidden them χαίρειν, then briefly announced his victory (cp. veni, vidi, vici), whereat the people rejoiced. Later, the victory proved a burden on their hands, whereupon Eupolis, probably in his Χρυσοῦν Γένος (frg. 308), twitted Cleon with being the first to bid Athens rejoice when causing her grief. (One need not follow Gerhard in altering πρῶτος to πρώτον.) Later again, in the first century A.D., a certain Dionysius wrote a book on Greetings, misunderstood the Eupolis passage, and explained that Cleon was the first to use "χαίρειν" in letters. Hence the story of scholiasts and Lucian.

614. Σεληνάης: on the Attic liking for forms in -αία, e.g. πυλαία for πύλη, ώραία for ὥρα, see schol. here, and Bekk. Anecd. 22. 28, 73. 31. For the admissibility of the Ionic form -αῖη in troch. tetram., see H. Richards Arist. and Others, 119 and 124; Zacher

121 (on 'Αθηναίη in Eq. 763), Speck 16, Smyth Ionic Dialect 79.

615 ff. On this passage see A. Mommsen Chronologie (1883) 416–21, who assumes that it was written 419 B.C. On the other hand, Adolf Schmidt, Handbuch der gr. Chronologie (1888) 186 and 610, dates the condition of the calendar as here described at 424/3, and hence the passage may be part of the original play. Also Busolt 3, 1184 dates Hyperbolus as ιερομνήμων at 424/3. For the confusion wrought by a confused calendar see B. Keil Hermes 29 (1894), 344 ff.

616. ἄνω τε καὶ κάτω: varied by omitting now τε, now τε καί; A. 21, E. 866, P. 1180, Av. 3, L. 709, Th. 647, Plato Phaedr. 272 b, 278 d, Gorg. 493 a, 511 a, etc.

622. τόν: by Weber 173 the Homeric ἔτην is suggested as more fitting than the article to the Homeric Memnon.

623. ἀνθ' ὧν = διό, quamobrem; so A. 292, Ec. 17, Pl. 840. In N. 1310 (if correctly supplied by Reisig's conjecture) it is equiv. to ἀντί τούτων δ. In Pl. 434 it is equiv. to the οἷ of Th. 202, Ec. 394, the ὥς of V. 267, the δ of Hom. Il. 21. 150, the οὔνεκα of Il. 9. 505. Sobol. Praepos. 108.

624. Amphictyonic League: Busolt 1. 684–88, Bury 159 (very brief). For classical references see L. and S.

626. So Solon ἡξίωσεν Ἀθηναίους τὰς ἡμέρας κατὰ σελήνην ἀγειν (Diog. Laert. 1. 59).

627. Ἀναπνοήν: in his book περὶ φύσεως Diogenes of Apollonia says ἄνθρωποι καὶ τὰ ἄλλα ζῶα ἀναπνέοντα ζῶει τῷ ἀέρι, καὶ τοῦτο αὐτοῖς καὶ ψυχὴ ἐστὶ καὶ νόησις . . . πάντων τῶν ζῶων ἡ ψυχὴ τὸ αὐτό ἐστιν, ἀλλ' θερμότερος μὲν τοῦ ζῆω ἐν ᾧ ἐσμεν, τοῦ μέντοι παρὰ τῷ ἡλίῳ πολλὸν ψυχρότερος (Diels 348 f.).

630. σκαλαθυρμῆτια: see n. on 130 σχινδαλάμους. | ἄττα: colloquial; in Arist. and Plato often (V. 55, P. 704, Av. 1514, Th. 423, R. 173, 925, 936, etc.), in only a few orators and rarely. On the formation, K.-Bl. 1. 611 f.

631. ὅμως γε μήν: 822, L. 144; cp. ὅμως γε μέντοι V. 1344, R. 61; ἀλλ' ὅμως 587, 1363, A. 402, 408, 956, E. 391, V. 1085, Av. 1224,

L. 275, 292, 500 (ἀλλ' . . . ὅμως), 825, R. 43, 602, Ec. 413; ὅμως δέ 1369, P. 1216, Th. 471, R. 870, Ec. 266, 326 (ὅμως δ' οὖν), 1105, 1137, Pl. 1084; δ' ὅμως A. 455, V. 951, P. 481, Av. 452; ἀτὰρ ὅμως V. 981; ὅμως V. 92, Av. 83, Ec. 860, 889.

633. ἔτι: when an interrog. fut. indic. is equiv. to an imv., οὐ or οὐκουν (see n. on 1253) usually precedes (GS. 271); yet as here the negative is wanting in 1299, V. 671, P. 259, Av. 1572, Ec. 1083. Cp. ὅπως c. fut. indic., n. on 257.

636. One should compare Molière Le bourgeois gentilhomme 2. 6 for the instruction of that other ὀφθαλμῆς, Mons. Jourdain, in the difference between poetry and prose.

640. παρ-εκόπη: as παρὰ νόμον means beside or off the line of the law, so παρὰ in composit. often means off, awry, mis-; it is the crazy prepos. as in παρά-νοια, παρα-φρονέω, -ληρέω, -πλήττω, -κρούω, -παίω, -λέγω, -κόπτω, -ποιέω, -ποδίζω, etc.

644. ἄνθρωπε: not ὠνῶρωπε; K.-Bl. I. 331.

651. κατ' ἐνόμιον: Goodell Chapters on Greek Metric 188, Rossbach 129 f., Christ 153, 216, 391.

652. νῆ τὸν Δι, ἀλλά: emotion often demands satisfaction first with an exclamation; then follows the rational conjunction; 1228, V. 217, 231, 912, Av. 954, L. 609, 927, Th. 259, R. 285, Pl. 202, Plato Gorg. 463 d, 481 c. So vocatives precede; Av. 268 ὡγάθ' ἀλλ' οὖν, P. 250 ἰὼ Σικελία καὶ σὺν δέ, Eur. Phoen. 1671 ὦ φίλτατ' ἀλλά, Plato Rep. 328 c, Euthyd. 293 b, Legg. 890 d, 963 b, Xen. Mem. 1. 3. 13, 2. 1. 26, 2. 9. 2. 653. ἄλλος ἀντί: for ἄλλος ἤ; so in Aesch. Prom. 467, Soph. Aj. 444, O.C. 488, Tr. 1226, Eur. Hel. 574. So ἀντί after κρείττον V. 210, πρότερον Ec. 925, etc.

655. ἀγριος: only here and in Th. 160 in the classical period; perhaps a metrical variant of ἀγριος. | οἰζυρέ: has short υ in Arist. (V. 1504, Av. 1641, L. 948), long υ in Homer. K.-Bl. I. 307.

659. ἄρρενα: Aristot. Rhet. 3. 5 Πρωταγόρας τὰ γένη τῶν ὄνομάτων διήρει, ἄρρενα καὶ θήλεα καὶ σκεῖη. On the ὀρθοπέεια of Protag. and his ὁρθότης in general see Plato Phaedr. 267 c, Crat. 391 c, Protag. 339 a, Aristot. Poet. 19, Plut. Feric. 36, Diog. Laert. 9. 53 f, Zeller Phil. der Griechen 1⁵. 1141 f, and (on the attempt of Protag. to rationalize grammar) by all means Gomperz 1. 443-45.

666. On ἀλέκτωρ as feminine see Athen. 373 e, Rutherford New Phrynicus 307.

670. μάλ' αὐθις : P. 5, Av. 1415, Pl. 935, Aesch. Agam. 1345, Cho. 654, 876, Soph. Phil. 793. Cp. πάλιν αὐ(θις), αὐθις αὐ, and even αὐ πάλιν αὐθις infra 975.

680. Κλεινώμη : other men turned women are Ἀμυνία 690, Σμικύθη E. 969, Pediatia (Hor. Sat. 1. 8. 39), Gaia Caesar (Tac. Ann. 6. 5).

681. ἐν ἔτι γε περί : according to Blaydes seven Mss. read ἐτ' ἔτι γε while RV and seven others omit ἐτ'. But ἔτι γε περί is unmetrical. For ἐν ἔτι cp. V. 818, Ec. 655. Surely this makes a better verse than ἔτι δέ γε περί (Kock and Kaehler). As for ἔτι δὴ γε (van Leeuwen, Hall and Geldert) the collocation δὴ γε is very doubtful (K.-G. 2. 130).

686. Φιλένης : son of Eryxis, the καταπύγων of V. 84, Eupol. 235, Phryn. 47, and the unworthy pupil of Anaxagoras (Athen. 220 b), who wished for the neck of a crane, the longer to enjoy his food (Athen. 6 b). It is probably his son Eryxis, named from the grandfather, who is mentioned in Ran. 934. | Μελισσίας : possibly the son of Pericles' antagonist Thucydides, son of Melesias. | Ἀμυνίας : son of Pronapes, assailed by Arist. in V. 74, 466, 1267-74, by Crat. in Σερίφιοι (frg. 212), and by Eupol. in Πόλεις (209), as a φιλόκυβος, κομήτης, πένης, ἀλαζών, κόλαξ, συκοφάντης, and παραπρεσβευτής to the Thessalians. His course to the crows seems rapid ; he appears in Nubes and disappears in Vespaë. To this same period Eupolis' Πόλεις certainly belongs (van Leeuwen making it probable that it competed with Vespaë), hence probably also the play of Cratinus and Com. Adesp. 39 (K. 3. 405). I see no reason for not identifying him with the Amynias figuring in this play. In v. 31 he has been already selling off, in 1258 he suffers final bankruptcy. Immediately after the Clouds he perhaps got appointed on the embassy abroad — an old trick for young debtors, as Ach. 613–17 shows. But whenever he may have played the mis- (or Miss) ambassador to Thessaly (V. 1265 ff.), he was back in Athens at the time of the Vespae, as proved by its v. 74 (οὔτοσί), 1268 (οὔτος), 1273 (imperf. ξυνῆν). This last against Starkie; Meyer 4. 404 f.

692. οὐκ οὖν δικαίως, ἥτις: the same formula in 1377, P. 865, Pl. 1124. | οὐ στρατεύεται: in his interpretation of this and other items here, Kaibel surely goes too far in Hermes 30 (1895), 441–46.

698. παρά: beside, except; in the same negat. phrase with ἄλλα or ἄλλο V. 1166, P. 110, Plato Phaed. 80 b, 107 a, Gorg. 507 a, Demos. 18. 235, and often; also freely after a comparative expressed or implied, in the sense than. F. H. Rau in Curt. Stud. 3. 75.

699. οἶαν δίκην: cp. Th. 651 κακοδαίμων ἐγώ, εἰς οἷ' ἐμαντὸν εἰσεκύλισα πράγματα. Whether we translate by exclamat. what or demonstr. such, the logical relation to the preceding is the same, viz. causal, and measuring. See notes on 209 and 1158. Cp. 1208, V. 188 ὦ μιαιώτατος, ἵν' ὑποδέδυνκε, Th. 878 ὦ δύστηνος, οἱ πεπλώκαμεν, K.-G. 2. 439.

704. ἐπ' ἄλλο πῆδα: the same advice to Eur. and Aesch. in Ran. 1103, ἀλλὰ μὴ 'ν ταύτῃ καθήσθον.

707 ff. Mazon 57 shows it to be probable that the posture of Streps. (prostrate and covered) is as much a parody on Eur. Hecuba 154 ff. as his words.

711 ff. Exx. of ὁμοιο-τέλευτον in Arist. are found in A. 199, 269 f., 549–52, 595–97, 688, 1003–06, 1008 f., 1015 f., 1126 f., 1208 f., 1219–21, E. 115, 166 f., 1057, N. 13, 241, 335, 484 f., 494–96, 711–15, 1456 f., 1504 f., V. 65 f., 968 f., 973 f., 999 f., P. 152 f., 291, 320, 380 f., 540–42, 1330 f., Av. 1271 f., L. 457–61, Th. 198 f., R. 463, 740, 841 f., 1001 f., 1478, Ec. 838–40, Pl. 288, 513 f.; Peppler 15. Cp. also A. 575 (λόφων λόχων), 1074, V. 277 (γέροντος ὄντος), Th. 30 (-ποιός, ποίος), Pl. 1034 f. (κατα-τέτηκ', κατασείσῃς), and see n. on 718. — For Homer, and a warning against too readily assuming sound-play, see van Leeuwen Enchir. 2. — From ὁμοστέλειον sprang modern rhyme; E. Norden Die antike Kunstprosa (1898) 810–70. | On the sad anapaests here see Christ 262 f., Rossbach 154.

718. φροῦδα . . . φρούδη: for comic iterations see P. 183, Av. 115, 974, Th. 168–70, R. 1208, Ec. 221, 773, 799, 862, Pl. 833.

722. ὀλίγου: A. 348, 387, V. 829, Th. 935. K.-G. 1. 387 incline to take the gen. as originally one of time within which, then as adverbial, almost. Cp. πολλοῦ 915, and πόσου χρόνου since when? A. 83.

723. οὗτος: and αὕτη = there or here, are much used in addressing a person, either without an added σύ (732, 1502, Av. 49, 57, 225, 274, 354, 658, 933, and often) or with σύ, as in A. 564, L. 728, Av. 1199, etc. Cp. Italian quella giovane; see van Leeuwen on Vesp. 1 Append. Cp. also other Greek adjectives where English employs adverbs or adverbial phrases, as πρώτος, δεκαταῖος, σκοταῖος, μεσημβρινός. K.-G. 1. 273–76.

727. μαλθακιστία: plural impersonal verbals in -τία are found in A. 394, 480, L. 122, 124, 411, 450, R. 1180, Pl. 1085. The whole number of such in Greek from Hom. to Aristot. is very small. C. E. Bishop A. J. P. 20 (1899), 125 ff.

729. τίς ἄν δῆτα is taken as the tragic wish-question (= utinam aliquis) by Blaydes and Kaehler; for the formula see K.-G. 1. 235. Van Leeuwen takes it rather as an indignant question (quis tandem), and otherwise interprets differently. It must be conceded to van L. that the almost invariable form of these wish-questions is not τίς ἄν but πῶς ἄν. I note but three passages where τίς ἄν is so taken (Aesch. Agam. 1450, Soph. O.C. 1100, Eur. Alcest. 213), while πῶς ἄν is found in Soph. Aj. 387, El. 660, O.T. 765, O.C. 1457, Phil. 531, 794, 1214, Eur. Alcest. 864, Her. Fur. 487, Hippol. 208, 345, Iph. T. 627, Med. 97, 173, Orest. 1052, Suppl. 796, Arist. A. 991, E. 16, 1324, P. 68, Th. 22. Further, δῆτα nowhere appears in these wish-questions (except in O.T. 765, if indeed that be a wish-question), whereas it fre-

731. φέρει νυν ἀθήσω : for φέρει with aor. subjv. ἴδω see n. on 21. With aor. subjv. of other verbs φέρει is used in E. 113, N. 731, V. 54, 148, 848, 993, 1497, P. 234, 361, 959, 969, L. 238, 864, 890, 916, Th. 915, Ec. 28, Pl. 768, 964 ; with present subjv. V. 906, 990, P. 252 ἐπιχέω (aor.?), R. 291, 502, Ec. 725; 869, Pl. 790 ἐπιχέω (aor.?) ; with aor. subjv. in quest. E. 706, V. 826.

732. μὰ τὸν κτῆ : the same verse-end in A. 59, 101, E. 14, 1041, P. 16, Av. 263, 439. Cp. μὰ τὸν Δι', ἐγὼ μὲν οὖν Av. 1497, Ec. 553, Pl. 359, 444, 971.

739. ὅπως ἂν : c. subjv. as an object-clause ; GMT. 348, K.-G. 2. 375.

742. ὀρθῶς διαιρῶν : on this Socratic and sophistic business of διαίσεις see Plato Charm. 163 d, Phaedr. 266 b, 273 e, Protag. 339 a, 341 c, Lach. 197 d, Xen. Mem. 4. 2, 4. 5. 12, and perhaps Thuc. 1. 84. 3 where the Spartan Archidamus boasts that his people, unlike some others, believe τὰς προσπιπτούσους τύχας οὐ λόγῳ διαιρετάς.

743. ἀπορῆς : admits not only the acc. of a neuter pronoun or adj. (ταῦτα, ὅ, etc.), but also a substantive acc., as τὸ πῦρ ἀπορῶ Plato Crat. 409 d.

748. τὸ τί : 775, V. 818, P. 696, 826, Av. 1039, R. 7, 40, Pl. 902 ; cp. ὁ ποῖος 1233, 1270, A. 418, 963. K.-G. 1. 625.

749 f. τὸ παλαιὸν φοντο αἱ φαρμακίδες τὴν σελήνην καὶ τὸν ἥλιον καθαιρεῖν (schol. Apoll. Rhod. 3. 533). See Plato Gorg. 513 a, Menander Θεττάλη (K. 3. 65) a comedy "complexa ambages feminarum detrahentium lunam," Verg. Ec. 8. 69, Ov. Metam. 7. 207, 12. 263, Tibull. 1. 2. 43, 1. 8. 21 ; Rohde 2. 88. | et : supposing ; cp. L. 191, and questions of the type τί δῆτ' ἂν 154, 769, L. 399, or τί δ' ἂν Th. 773.

755. ὅτι τί δῆ : quia quid? so Pl. 136. Variations of the simple quest. τί for διὰ τί are numerous, as τιῇ (E. 126, 731, P. 927, Ec. 796, 1086), τιῇ τί δῆ (V. 1155, P. 1018, Th. 84), ὅτι τί (N. 784), ὅτι τί δὴ (here), ὅτι δὴ τί γε (Plato Charm. 161 c), ὅτι δὴ τί μάλιστα (Plato Rep. 343 a), ὅτι τί μάλιστα (Plato Rep. 449 c), ἵνα τί (P. 409, Ec. 719), ἵνα δὴ τί (N. 1192, Ec. 791). — τῇ is from τί ἡ (K.-G. 2. 145).

761. εἰλλε: whether the writing should be εἰλλω or ἰλλω is disputed; K.-Bl. 2. 412. It is not common in Attic prose; ἀν-ἰλλω and ἐν-ἰλλω in Thuc., ἐξ-ἰλλω in Demos.; but ἀπ-εἰλλαι is cited by Lysias 10. 17 from Solon's laws as an antiquated word needing interpretation.

763. μηλολόνην: ξωύφιόν ἐστι χρυσοῖζον κανθάρος ὁμοιον, ὃ λαμβάνοντες οἱ παῖδες ἀποδοσμοῦσι λίνψ καὶ ἐκπεταννίουσι (schol.). Cp. V. 1341 and Herodas frg. 14. (Crusius) ἡ χαλκήν μοι μυῖαν ἡ κύβηρ παίζει, | ἡ τῆσι μηλάνθησιν ἄμματ' ἐξάπτων | τοῦ κεσκέου μοι τὸν γέροντα λωβῆται. See further Starkie Ach. p. 254 for Eustath. 1243. 33 and for continuance of chafer-sport in modern Crete.

768. ἑαλον: then a rarity in Greece: A. 74, Hdt. 2. 69 (ἀρτήματα λίθινα χυτά), Athen. 465 c. Fowler and Wheeler Handbook of Grk. Archaeol. (1909) 419 f.; H. Blümner Technologie 4. 382.

773. οἶψ': elision of -οι as in 1238 and often. So perhaps in μοι after the verb ἀρέσκω (A. 189, E. 359, V. 776, etc.); see n. on elision of -αι, v. 7.

778. καὶ δὴ λέγω: in ready compliance with a request, the verb of the request is repeated (usually in the present) with καὶ δὴ; "even now or already I am doing it." So 1097, P. 327, Av. 175, 550, Ec. 1014, Pl. 227; see n. on 906, K.-G. 2. 125. Since ἡ δὴ seems to be the original of ἡδὴ, and since νῦν δὴ (just now) is often written νυνδὴ, we might write this formula καιδὴ; cp. ἦτοι, μέντοι, τοίνυν, δήπου, etc.

779. πρόσθεν: "everywhere else in Arist., as in Thuc., has the local sense" (O. Bachmann Conject. Arist. 49). But here, too, it may be taken locally, referring to the court-roster.

784. ναί: in entreaty; cp. P. 1113, Eur. Hippol. 605, Iph. A. 1247. K.-G. 2. 148.

785. καί: before verb; see n. on 840.

789. ἀπο-φθερεῖ: one may go ἐς κόρακας by the simple verb

φθείρομαι, or by the compounds ἀπο-, ἐκ-, προσ-, or ἀνα-, all roads alike leading to Hades. Also one can ἔρρειν, βάλλειν, αἵρεσθαι, βαδίζειν, πλεῖν, or σχεῖν ("put in to shore") ἐς κόρακας. "ὥς ἀλὶ καὶ γαίῃ ξυνὸς ὑπεστ' Ἀΐδης." For exx. of compounds see E. 892, P. 72, Av. 916, Ec. 248.

791 ff. It is noteworthy how many Greek dramas at very near the middle point take up a new subject, enter a new phase, introduce a new personage as centre of interest, or proceed from prayer and preparation to fulfillment and result. If one is interested, let him turn, having noted the whole number of verses in each play, to Aesch. Prom. 562, Pers. 526, Suppl. 523, Agam. 782 (or 810?), Cho. 510, Eum. 566; Soph. Aj. 719, O.T. 726, O.C. 886, Ant. 626, Tr. 662, Phil. 729; Eur. Alcest. 567, Bacch. 660, Hec. 657, etc.; Arist. A. 626, E. 691, N. at this point, V. 760, etc. Here the centre of interest shifts from father to son. — The principle of symmetry seems to work as imperiously in the Greek drama as it does in a Greek sentence when dividing it into two balanced clauses marked by μέν . . . δέ.

792. ἀπο . . . ολοθῆναι: tmesis is said to be employed by Arist. only in epic and tragic phrases or parody, and in lyric passages, and usually with only single monosyllabic words intervening, as δέ, τε, γάρ, οὖν; A. 295, N. 792, 1440, V. 784, P. 1092, 1274, Av. 346 (1070), 1456, 1506, L. 262, 263, 1280–85, R. 1047, 1106, Pl. 65. Bachmann Conject. Arist. 101, K.-G. 1. 535. But it should be noted that tmesis is practised by Hdt. (Ionian) and by Herodas Mim. 7 114.

794. Zielinski 293 ff. makes clear the fact that iambic trimeters spoken by the κορυφαῖος are in tragic style, i.e. admit of few resolutions of the long syllables and next to no "cyclic" anapaests. Cp. 799, 1454 f., 1458–61.

797. ἔστι μοι γέ: so Thiersch with some inferior Mss., γέ stressing not μοι of course but ἔστι; "I have a son, but —." The reading ἔστ' ἔμοιγε "I have a son," seems hardly the sense required.

798. On ἀλλά . . . γάρ κτέ. cp. V. 318 ἀλλ' οὐ γὰρ οἶός τ' ἄμ'

ᾶδεν, τί ποιήσω, Eur. Hel. 1385-87, Med. 1344-46, Phoen. 891-94. | τί πάθω: Av. 1432, L. 884, 954, Ec. 860, Pl. 603.

800. τῶν Κοισίας: R. omits τῶν, V. reads καί for it. Van Leeuwen on Th. 289 makes it probable that all three readings are wrong. He suggests ἔστ' ἐκ γυναικῶν εὐπτέρων καὶ (e.g. ἐπηρμένων).

801. ᾠδή: the standard form of Attic prose ἐθέλω, not θέλω, may be vindicated for Arist. if we do four things: (1) write ᾠέλω with aphaeresis after words ending in a vowel (e.g. A. 198, 318, 355, 426); (2) make an exception in favour of the old phrase, ἦν θεὸς θέλῃ (or εἰ θεὸς θέλει) in P. 939, 1187, R. 533, Pl. 347, 405, 1188; (3) allow θέλω in tragic parody (e.g. Th. 908, R. 1468); and in extra-trimeter passages (Av. 407, 929); (4) alter the text in E. 713, L. 1216, Th. 412. So van Leeuwen Vesp. 493, K.-Bl. 1. 187.

802. οὐκ ἔσθ' ὅπως οὐ: A. 116, N. 1307, V. 260, P. 41, 188, Av. 52, Th. 847, R. 640, Pl. 871; οὐκ ἔσθ' ὅπως E. 238, 426, 879, 951, N. 1181, 1275, V. 212, 654, P. 102, 306, Av. 628, L. 1092, Th. 404, 882, Pl. 18, 51, 139; ἔσθ' ὅπως interrog. V. 471. Sobol. Synt. 157.

811. ἀπολάψης fut. indic. as imv., as in 1352, V. 1225; GS. 269, K.-G. 1. 176. Cp. the interrog. fut. indic. as imv. in 633 n.

814. οὗτοι: in Arist. always stands first in its clause and verse, except in Th. 34 which Meineke emends; and always is followed by an oath except in V. 1122 and Ec. 522. The passages are: E. 235, 409, 435, 698, N. 814, V. 1366, 1396, 1442, P. 187, 1117, Th. 533, 566, R. 42, 667, Pl. 64, 364. Plato also makes large use of οὗτοι, but without oaths. For the derivat. of -τοι from σοι see Brugm. 248, 529. | ἐνταῦθα: = ἐνταῦθα, not un-Attic; 843, V. 1442, Th. 225, and in Att. inscriptions. Meisterhans *Gram.*³ 147, K.-Bl. 2. 304.

815. κίονας: the scholiasts say that only the stones of the house were left of Megacles' wealth, the rest being squandered, and that herein lies the jest. But the jest will stand, anyhow.

817. Δία τόν: for this division of a tribrach, between the 2d and 3d shorts, see Starkie Vesp. xl-xli — a brief clear summary of O. Bachmann's article in Philol. Suppl. 5. 239 ff.

818. ἰσοῦ: see n. on 82.

823. ἀνὴρ: in the full sense of the word; often, e.g. A. 77, E. 179, Thuc. 4. 27. 5 εἰ ἄνδρες εἰεν οἱ στρατηγοί, Hdt. 7. 210 Greeks at Thermopylae made it plain to Xerxes οἱ πολλοὶ μὲν ἄνθρωποι εἰεν, ὀλίγοι δὲ ἄνδρες.

827. ἀλλὰ τε: other exx. of such ἀλλά: E. 955, P. 222, Av. 98, 1015, Ec. 928.

830. ὁ Μήλιος: i.e. Diagoras, for whom see Av. 1072 (with schol. and van Leeuwen), schol. on R. 320 (where probably δι' ἀγορᾶς should be read), Hermip. 42, ps.-Lys. contra Andoc. 6. 17, Diod. Sic. 13. 6. 7. His atheism won him mention in many later writers — Plutarch, Aelian V.H. 2. 23, Athenaeus, and others. Wilamowitz Textgesch. 80–84 has pieced together a coherent account of his life. Despite Av. 1072 some still hold that his flight from Athens when condemned for impiety took place long before the Peloponnesian War. So Meyer 4. 105. Smyth 345.

832. μανιῶν: for plural abstracts see GS. 44, K.-G. 1. 16 f.

838. καταλοῦσι: for the inflection see K.-Bl. 2. 478, Rutherford New Phrynicus 274.

839. ὑπέρ: not more in the sense pro than in the sense loco, ἀντί; so V. 1419, Th. 752, Antiph. 2 β 6, 3 δ 8, 4 δ 3, Isae. 7. 8, Hyperid. 1. 26. 15.

840. καὶ μάθοι: standing before the verb (especially common in interrog., relative, and conditional clauses), καὶ admits of various Engl. equivalents: at all, really, just, or an emphatic auxiliary verb do, will, can. K.-G. 2. 254. Exx. of καὶ in quest.: 1344, E. 342, P. 1289, Av. 1446, L. 526, 836, 910, Ec. 946, 1014, Aesch. Agam. 278, Soph. Aj. 1290, Tr. 314, Eur. Hec. 515, Phoen. 1354, Thuc. 6. 38. 4, Xen. Anab. 5. 8. 2, Hell. 1. 7. 26, 2. 3. 47, 3. 3. 11, Andoc. 1. 4, 1. 148, Lysias 12. 29, 24. 12, 24. 24, etc.; in a relat. clause supra 785, Th. 461; in a conditional clause R. 737, Av. 508; in the main clause infra 1499, where see n.

841. ἄληθες: used thus κατ' εἰρωνείαν in A. 557, E. 89, V. 1223, 1412, Av. 174, 1049, etc.; also twice in Soph. (O. T. 350, Ant. 758) and twice in Eur. (Cycl. 240, frg. 885).

845. On the five initial short syllables see Rossbach 229, who cites Av. 1283, L. 1148, Th. 285.

850. καλεῖν: after one or more imperatives of the 2d person, a substitute inf. continues the command in A. 257, 1001, N. 1080, P. 1153; without introductory inv. the inf. stands as such in N. 850, V. 386, 1216, Th. 157, R. 133, 169, and in the hexameter oracle-parodies E. 1039, Av. 971-75, frg. 29. The difference, if any, between inv. and inf.-substitute is still an open question; K.-G. 2. 19-22, GMT. 784 f. — Also in prayers to divinities the inf. with subject-acc. (sc. δός?) follows imperatives in V. 878-83, P. 1000-15, L. 318, R. 390-95; without introd. inv. A. 250-52, 436, 817, Th. 288-91, R. 887, 894. — Further, in proclamations and decrees (sc. ἴδοξε) the inf. with subj.-acc. of the 3d person stands in A. 172, V. 937, P. 551, Av. 449 f., 1040, 1074 f., 1661, 1666, Th. 376, 378, Ec. 419.

857. κατα-πεφρόντικα: other squandering compounds in κατα- (= German ver-) are: κατ-αριστᾶν, -βιβρώσκειν, -εσθίειν, -ζευγοτροφεῖν, -ἡδυπαθεῖν, -ἵπποτροφεῖν, -κυβεῖν, -λητουργεῖν, -ληρεῖν, -μασᾶσθαι, -μισθοφορεῖν, -μωραίνειν, -οἰσοφαγεῖν, -παιδεραστεῖν, -πίνειν, -ραθυμεῖν, -σικελίζειν, -χαρίζεσθαι, -χορηγεῖν.

859. εἰς τὸ δέον: Wilamowitz (Aristot. u. Athen 2. 247) and Busolt (3. 429) deny that this fiscal joke refers to the bribing of Pleistoanax so many years before, as stated by schol. here (see Plut. Peric. 23). But old Strepsiades remembers old things, and in v. 213 he goes back to this same Pleistoanax period in speaking of Euboea. Further, Pleistoanax had been recently reinstated in Sparta (426/5 B.C.), thus recalling the old cause of his exile (reception of a bribe), as B. Perrin remarks in Trans. Am. Phil. Assoc. 34 (1903), p. xx.

860. εἶτα: Kock, Kaehler, and van Leeuwen take this as the εἶτα common between partic. and verb (386), and give the ordo as πιθόμενος εἶτα ἐξάμαρτε. But does not εἶτα rather connect ἴωμεν and ἐξάμαρτε as in E. 1036 ὦ τῶν ἀκουσον, εἶτα διάκρινον τότε, V. 277, supra 66, 750, etc.?

863. ὀβολόν: for its incorporation into the relative clause see n. on 599. | ἡλιαστικόν: Aristot. Ath. Pol. 27. 3 ἐποίησε δὲ καὶ μισθοφόρα τὰ δικαστήρια Περικλῆς πρῶτος.

865. ἡ μὴν: the initial phrase not only of an oath (R. 1470) but also of any strong asseveration (V. 278, R. 104) or threat, in which case it is followed by a personal pronoun (N. 1242, V. 258, 643, 1332, Av. 1259, Ec. 1034, Pl. 608, frg. 198. 3) as here. Bachmann Lex. Spec. With ἡ μὴν cp. καὶ μὴν, just as with ἡ δὴ (= ἡδη) was compared καὶ δὴ in n. on 778.

868 f. νηπίτιος, τρίβων: probably borrowed from Euripidean wardrobe; for of the tragic poets he alone uses the word τρίβων in the sense experienced, and he, far more than the others, uses the epic νήπιος. Arist. here outbids him with νηπίτιος; and further in κρεμαθρῶν (869) allows a smooth mute with liquid to make "position," which Euripides does "more than the other tragedians" (K.-Bl. I. 306).

870. τρίβων . . . κρέμαιο: for the process of the fuller see Hippocr. περὶ διαίτης I. 14 (Littre 6. 490): οἱ γναφέες . . . λακτίζουσι, κόπτουσιν, ἔλκουσι, λυμαίνόμενοι ἰσχυρότερα ποιέουσι, κείροντες τὰ ὑπερέχοντα καὶ παραπλέκοντες καλλίω ποιέουσι. See also the imprecation in Herodas Mim. 4. 78 πειδὸς κρέμαιο' ἐκείνος ἐν γναφέως οἴκῳ. — The tone of the word in the sense necessary here and in V. 1429 is difficult to establish, as it would seem to be a usage of the street, yet is found in Euripides several times (Bacch. 717, El. 1127, Cycl. 520, Med. 686, Rhes. 625) and in Hdt. 4. 74.

876. καίτοι γε: juxtaposed, as εἴπερ γε (251); so Xen. Mem. I. 2. 3, 4. 2. 7, Cyr. 3. 1. 38, Plato Rep. 332 a, 440 d, Antiph. 5. 74, Lys. I. 42, 8. 11, 26. 16, 31. 10, Andoc. I. 72, Lycurg. 90, Aesch. 3. 131, Demos. 7. 12. K.-G. 2. 152.

880. σκυίνας: Naber's correction of the Mss. σκυτίνας.

881. πῶς δοκεῖς: a little group that has shrivelled to an adverb; A. 12, 24, Pl. 742, Araros frg. 13 (K. 2. 217), Eur. Hec. 1160, Hippol. 446. So πῶς οἶει R. 54, πόσον δοκεῖς Ec. 399, οἶδ' ὅτι or ἴσθ' ὅτι (see n. on 39), οὐκ ἔσθ' ὅπως (802), δῆλον ὅτι, ἀμέλει (422), θαυμαστῶς ὥς, etc. K.-G. 2. 354 and 415. See also n. on εἰ δὲ μή 1433.

885. πάση τέχνῃ: c. inv. or equiv. 1323, E. 592, L. 412, Th. 65, R. 1235, Ec. 366, 534, Lysias 19. 11, 19. 53 (π. τ. καὶ μηχανῇ). Cp. πάντως c. fut. indic. 1352.

887. μέμνησο, ὅπως: 1107, R. 1520; = μέμνησο c. inf. E. 496. Cp. the independent ὅπως-clause 882 and 257 n.

889. For game-cocks and cockfights see A. 166, E. 494-97 (c. schol. on 494), 946, V. 1490, Av. 71, R. 935 (?), Xen. Conviv. 4. 9, Hesych. and Suid. s.v. ἐσκοροδισμένος, Aelian V.H. 2. 28, Pliny 10. 21, A. Dieterich Pulcinella 239 ff. Note also the cockfight carved on the chief seat in the theatre at Athens, and on the calendar of the Metropolitan Church in Athens for the month of Poseidon (J. Harrison Mythol. and Monuments 278). Also vase paintings present cockfights or cockdances; see the frontispiece of Merry's edition of the Birds. | Arist. was not the first to imagine in contest the principles of Good and Evil in embodied form: Cp. the Λόγος and Λογίνα of Epicharmus, the Ἀρετή and Κακία of Prodicus contending for the youthful Hercules (Xen. Mem. 2. 1. 21 ff.); and so later Zethus and Amphion in Euripides' Antiope representing Life Active and Life Contemplative, and again 1900 years later Virtue and Vice staged in endless ways in the Morality plays of the fifteenth century (E. K. Chambers The Mediaeval Stage 2. 149 ff.). Cp. also the debate between Πενία and the advocate of Πλοῦτος in Arist. Plutus.

892. Here the usual diaeresis between the feet of an anapaestic dimeter is not observed; so in 947, A. 1143, V. 1482, 1487, P. 98, 100, 987, 1002, etc. See Christ 252 for the exceptions in both tragedy and comedy; cp. n. on 987.

905 f. Hom. Il. 14. 203 Κρόνον εὐρύσπα Ζεὺς | γαίης νέρθε καθέϊσε καὶ ἀτρυγέτιοι θαλάσσης. Aesch. Eum. 641 (of Zeus) αὐτὸς δ' ἔδησε πατέρα πρεσβύτην Κρόνον.

906. καὶ δὴ: = ἤδη; καί being an intensive adverb (even now): Cp. V. 492, 1224, 1324, 1483, P. 178, 942, Av. 268, 1251, L. 65, 77, 601, 909, 925, Th. 266, 769, 1092, R. 604, 647, 1018, 1205, Ec. 500, 514, 582. For the whole clause see V. 1483, R. 1018.

907. Cp. Crat. 251 μῶν βδελυγμία σ' ἔχει; — πτερὸν ταχέως τις καὶ λεκάνην ἐνεγκάτω, A. 584 ff., Poll. 10. 76.

915. πολλοὶ: E. 822, R. 1046, Eupol. 74. Cp. ὀλίγον 722.

916. διὰ σὶ δέ: an anapaest is rarely resolved into four shorts in anapaestic systems, though more freely in melic verses; cp. E. 503, V. 1015, Av. 688. Christ 242. Blaydes on Ec. 1156 compares Av. 1752, V. 1169 and would relieve the situation by pronouncing διὰ as a monosyllable, quasi ζά as in Aeolic.

922. For an excellent summary of Euripides' lost play Telephus see Starkie Ach. Excursus VI.

923. ἐκ πηριδίου: to be construed probably with γνώμας, not with the verb; for the definite article is not indispensable to a substantive when qualified by a prepositional phrase. Cp. A. 86 ὅλους ἐκ κριβάου βούς, E. 1178 ἐφθὼν ἐκ ζωμοῦ κρέας, V. 1367 ἐξ ὄξους δίκη. Sobol. Synt. 82, K.-G. 1. 610.

932. ἱα: with synizesis. Christ 27, K.-Bl. 1. 226. It may occur when the first vowel ε is in the gen. sing. and plur. -εως, -εων (e.g. πόλεως in acc. sing. -εα (Πηλέα, Ἡρακλέα Th. 26), in nomin. -εως (λέως, Δεως, τεθνεώς), in adjectives of material in -εος (χρυσέου, σιδήρεα), and in manifold other forms (θεοῦ, νέου, etc.).

933. χεῖρ' ἐπιβάλλης: for conative sense of the present cp. L. 359, Ec. 261, 670, 1023; Sobol. Synt. 22. — Other noli-me-tangere phrases are (beside χεῖρ' ἐπιβάλλειν L. 440, Crat. frg. 277): χεῖρα προσβάλλειν (Eur. Med. 1254), χεῖρα προσφέρειν (L. 359, 436, 444, 471), χεῖρα προσάγειν (L. 893, χεῖρα βάλλειν ἐν τινι (Eur. Med. 1283), ἀπτεσθαί τινος τῷ δακτύλῳ (L. 365), ἀπτεσθαί τινος ἄκρῳ (Plat. com. frg. 128), 'προσσιθῆναι (Th. 569).

935. ἐπιδείξαι: addressed to each separately (σύ τε . . . σύ τε); cp. V. 452 ἄφες με καὶ σὺ καὶ σὺ, Av. 131 ὅπως παρέσει μοι καὶ σὺ καὶ τὰ παῖδια. K.-G. 1. 79.

943. ῥηματίουσιν: used by Arist. only contemptuously of the deceiving phrases of demagogues and the clever epigrams of Euripides: A. 444, 447, E. 216, V. 668, P. 534.

945. ἀναγρῆξι: from γρῦ. The present compound is used in Xen. Oecon. 2. 11, the simple is frequent: E. 294, V. 374, 741, P. 97, L. 509, etc. Neil on Eq. 294 will not allow connection between γρῦ and grunt.

949-1104. The other ἀγῶνες or word battles in set form in Arist. are E. 303-460, 756-941, N. 1345-1451, V. 526-728, Av. 451-637, L. 476-613, Ec. 571-708, Pl. 487-626. See M. W. Humphreys A.J.P. 8 (1887), 179, Th. Zielinski Die Gliederung der altatt. Komödie (1885), H. Gleditsch *Metrik der Griechen und Römer*³ (1901) 238; and for ἀγῶνες in freer form P. Mazon Essai sur la composit. des comédies d'Arist. (1904).

955. κίνδυνος ἀνείραι: cp. Soph. frg. 369 σὺς μέγιστον χρήμ' ἐπ' Οἰνέως γύας | ἀνῆκε Λητοῦς παῖς ἐκήβολος θεά.

957. πῖρα: the sole prepos., barring the "improper" prepos. ἐνεκα, that prose allowed to stand freely after its case. Others so placed in Arist. are sporadic and only in parody or quotation, and only with the gen., as ἀπο Av. 1517, κατά R. 1212, ὑπο L. 1145 f., R. 1244, Ec. 4, ὑπερ V. 1118. Starkie Vesp. 1118, K.-G. 1. 554.

960. αἰτοῦ: = σεαυτοῦ; K.-G. 1. 572, Brugm. 421.

963. For a well-bred Athenian lad see Xen. Conviv. 3. 12, where Autolycus speaks only briefly and with a blush (ἀνερυθρίασας); as for the Laconian boys, ἐκείνων ἦττον ἂν φωνὴν ἀκούσας ἢ τῶν λιθίνων (Xen. Rep. Lac. 3. 5).

964. Cp. ps.-Luc. Amor. 44 ἀπὸ τῆς πατρῴας ἐστίας ἐξέρχεται (ὁ παῖς) κάτω κεκυφῶς καὶ μηδένα τῶν ἀπαντῶντων προσβλέπων. Alex. frg. 263 (K. 2. 393) ἐν γὰρ νομίζω τοῦτο τῶν ἀνελευθέρων | εἶναι, τὸ βαδίζειν ἀρρῦθμος ἐν ταῖς ὁδοῖς.

965. κωμήτας: Isoc. 7. 46 διελόμενοι τὴν μὲν πόλιν κατὰ κόμας, τὴν δὲ χώραν κατὰ δήμους.

966. For the things taught in Greek schools see Plato Protag. 325 d-26, 312 b, Theag. 122 c γράμματά τε καὶ καθαρίζειν καὶ παλαίειν καὶ τὴν ἄλλην ἀγωνίαν, Arist. E. 188, 985-96. Gard.-Jev. 301-13.

967. Παλλάδα κτί.: the beginning of an old song, perhaps hymn, composed by Lamprocles, contemporary of Aeschylus and the Persian wars. See briefly Smyth 70 and 340, more fully Bergk *Poetae Lyrici Graeci*⁴ 3. 554 and 561, Wilamowitz Textgesch. 84 f. | Τηλέπορον τι: composed probably by Κηδείδης (985 n.), though the schol. here writes it Κυδίας. Blass in Neue Jahrb. 133 (1886), 456, holds the Παλλάδα to be a specimen of the rhythm κατ' ἐνόπιον (— υ υ — υ υ — Παλλάδα περσέπολιν κλή|ζω πολεμαδόκον ἀγνάν), and the Τηλέπορον τι βόαμα λύρας, an example of the κατὰ δάκτυλον (— υ υ — υ υ — υ υ —), as referred to by Arist. in v. 651 supra.

968. ἐντεναμένους: is the regular word for stretching (i.e. setting) words or voice to rhythm or tune. Plato Phaed. 60 d (Socrates made poems) ἐντένας τοὺς τοῦ Αἰσώπου λόγους, Protag. 326 b οἱ καθαρισταί . . . ποιητῶν ἀγαθῶν ποιήματα διδάσκουσι, μελοποιῶν, εἰς τὰ καθαρίσματα ἐντείνοντες, Plut. Sol. 3 (Solon at first held poetry a pastime) ὕστερον δὲ καὶ γνώμας ἐνέτεινε φιλοσόφους . . . ἔνιοι δὲ φησιν ὅτι καὶ τοὺς νόμους ἐπεχείρησεν ἐντένας εἰς ἔπος (put into verse) ἐξενεγκεῖν. Cp. ἐναρμόττεσθαι E. 989. | ἁρμονίαν: harmony meant for the Greeks the fitting together of high tones and low (ὀξύ and βαρύ) in succession (i.e. as the modern melody or "tune"), not simultaneously, as in modern "harmony." See Arist. E. 985–96, Plato Symp. 187 a b, Rep. 398 d, Lach. 188 d, Aristot. Polit. 1342, 1290, Heracleides Ponticus in Athen. 624 c–26 a; D. B. Monro Modes of Anc. Grk. Music (1894).

969. καμπήν: as in 333 n. Not only Eur. affected this "Grecian bend," with a new turn for every sign in the zodiac (R. 1327 κατὰ τὸ δωδεκαμήχανον Κυρήνης μελοποιῶν), but young Agathon was soon to trill "ant-runs" (μύρμηκος ἀτραπούς Th. 100), and even old Cratinus had quickened his tempo (ὁ ταχὺς ἄγαν τὴν μουσικήν A. 851).

971. On Phrynis see schol. here (he took a prize as kitharode at the Panathenaea in 446 B.C., not 456), Pherecr. 145, Aristot. Metaphys. 1. 1. 1, Plut. Moral. 84 a, 220 c, 539 c, 1133 b, 1141 f, Agis 10 (the ephors of Sparta cut out his added two lyre-strings, to reduce the instrument to the Terpandrian seven), Athen. 638 c;

981. ἀναλίσθαι: to help oneself to food; A. 810, Hdt. 4. 128, Theophr. Charac. 10. 8, Luc. Conviv. 42.

982. τῶν πρεσβυτέρων ἀρπάζειν: the gen. of the person despoiled, as in P. 1118, Av. 1460, Ec. 866; so with κλέπτειν V. 238, 1369, 1447.

983. κιχλίζειν: Bekk. Anecd. 271. 30, κιχλισμός: πορνικὸς γέλως πολὺς καὶ ἄκοσμος. Add to other exx. cited in L. and S. Herodas Mim. 7. 122 αὐτῇ σύ . . . ἡ μῆλον ἵππου πρὸς θύρην κιχλίζουσα, Clem. Alex. Paed. 2. 5. — The interpretation, to eat κίχλαι, i.e. dainties or dessert, has little to support it, especially here where it would merely duplicate ὀψοφαγεῖν.

984. On the Dipolia and Bouphonia see J. Harrison 111, or Mommsen Feste 512. | τέττιγον: E. 1325, 1331, Thuc. 1. 6. 3, Athen. 512 c, 518 c, 525 f, Luc. Navig. 3, Aelian V.H. 4. 22; Studniczka in Classen-Steup Thuc. 1. 6, or briefly, M. M. Evans Chapp. on Grk. Dress (1893) 63, Gard.-Jev. 65. For a new interpretation of τέττιξ as = στελεγγίς, a golden or other metal frontlet rising above the forehead in front of the κόρυμβος, see F. Hauser in Jahreshefte des oesterr. archaeol. Instituts 9 (1906), 75–130, with a criticism of the same by E. Petersen Beiblatt thereto 78–86.

985. Κηδεῖδον: Mss. Κηκείδον. For the inscript. mentioning Κηδεῖδης, of about 415 B.C., see CIA. IV 1. 2. 79, No. 337 a (= Dittenberger 2, No. 702 = Roberts and Gardner No. 182). | ἄλλ' οὖν: A. 620, V. 1190, 1434, R. 1298; ἄλλ' οὖν . . . γε N. 1002, V. 1129, Av. 1408, Th. 710. See my note in Selections from Plato, on Apol. 27 c, Blaydes on Nub. 1002, K.-G. 2. 287. Cp. δ' οὖν 343 n. | ταῦτ' ἐστὶν ἐκεῖνα: cp. 1052. Usually the pronouns are singular and the copula omitted — τοῦτ' ἐκεῖνο, as in A. 41, 820, P. 289, Av. 354, L. 240, R. 1342; but ἐστί is present in P. 516, R. 318. Cp. ὅδ' ἐκεῖνος 1167, E. 1331, Soph. O.C. 138; τόδ' ἐκεῖνο Eur. Med. 99. K.-G. 1. 650.

987. In Greek anapaestic tetrameters δαίρεσις is so regular after the 4th foot that but three exceptions are usually conceded, viz. N. 987, V. 568, Av. 600. Christ 265. Yet even here Blaydes and van Leeuwen follow an inferior Ms. and read ἱματίους προδιδάσκεις.

988. For the πυρρήχη at the Panathenaëa see Lysias 21. 1 and 4, and the inscript. cited on v. 28: Ἡ παισιμ πυρριχισταῖς βούς· Ἡ ἀγενεῖους πυρριχισταῖς βούς· Ἡ ἀνδράσι πυρριχισταῖς βούς. See also Athen. 630 d-31 c; J. E. Harrison Myth. and Mon. 347; W. Downes Class. Rev. 18 (1904), 101-06, who doubts if at this time the Pyrrhic dancers carried spear or sword; "the play was defensive, not offensive."

988 f. αὐτούς . . . ἀμελῇ: the same shift from plur. to sing. in 975, V. 553, 565, P. 640, L. 358, 1119, Th. 797, R. 1075, Ec. 302, 420, 665, 670, Pl. 331; K.-G. 1. 86 f. But the emendat. of τις for τῆς after ἀμελῇ is probably correct. — For the form Τριτογενεῖης see n. on 614.

990. πρὸς ταῦτα: c. inv. or in exhortation, common; 1433, A. 659, E. 760, V. 648, 927, 1386, P. 416, 765, 1315, Ec. 851, Aesch. Prom. 915, 992, 1030, 1043, etc. Cp. πρὸς τὰδε 1030, P. 305.

995. ἀγαλμα: cp. Plato Symp. 222 a, Demos. 25. 35. | ἀναπλήσιν is the reading of R, not ἀναπλάττειν, as commonly reported.

999. τὴν ἡλικίαν: exx. of any save pronominal acc. after μνησικακεῖν seem to be lacking. Blaydes suggests here the gen. τῆς ἡλικίας.

1006. καλάμφ λευκῆ: Theophr. Hist. Plant. 4. 11. 4.

1007. μίλακος: Av. 216, Theophr. Hist. Plant. 3. 18. 11, Plin. Nat. Hist. 16. 153. | ἀπραγμοσύνη: Av. 44; so other odours, as in 50-52, A. 190 ff. (παρασκευῆς νεῶν, πρὸς βεῶν), E. 1332 (σπονδῶν), V. 1059 (δεξιότητος), P. 529 ff. (ὀπώρας, τραγυδῶν), Xen. Coniuv. 2. 4 (καλοκαγαθίας). Cp. redolere, sapere. | φυλλοβολούσης: Kock suggests φυλλοκομοῦσης because trees do not shed their leaves (φύλλον, βάλλω) in the spring (ἦρος ἐν ὥρᾳ 1008). True, in Theophr. φυλλοβόλος is leaf-shedding in contrast to αἰεί-φυλλος, e.g. Hist. Plant. 1. 3. 5. But another compound, ἀνθο-βολέω ἀνθο-βόλησις, means not shedding, but shooting or putting forth flowers (Geopon. 9. 10. 8, 10. 2. 10, 10. 59. 3), and the ἀκανθο-βόλον ῥόδον is a rose putting forth its thorn (Nicander in Athen. 683 δ). Eustath. 1295. 9 quotes Nicander's phrase and explains the epithet by ἀκάνθης προβολήν. Further, πρὸ βλαστοῦ προβολῆς (Geopon. 5. 25. 1) = before the putting forth of the bud; and so σίτου ἐκβολή in Thuc. 4. 1. Hence here φυλλο-βολούσης = putting forth its leaves. (Merry and van Leeuwen take it to mean tossing its leaves; Teuffel-Kaehler: "sie wirft freundlich neckend ihre Blätter nach ihm," quoting Hor. Carm. 3. 18. 14. But for this interpretation is it not better to quote schol. on Pind. Ol. 8. 76 οἱ νικῶντες ἐφυλλοβολοῦντο; Etym. Magn. 532. 46 πάλαι ἐφυλλοβόλουν τοὺς νικῶντας ἀπὸ τῶν παρακειμένων φύλλων ἐπιρριπτοῦντες?)

1020. Archelaus, pupil of Anaxagoras and teacher of Socrates, taught τὸ δίκαιον εἶναι καὶ τὸ αἰσχροὺν οὐ φύσει ἀλλὰ νόμῳ (Diog. Laert. 2. 16). See Intro. § 45.

1030. πρὸς οὖν τὰς: is the clear reading of RV. Blaydes seems uncertain of them.

1034. As Arist. distinguishes here Δίκαιος and Ἄδικος by the metres they use, viz. anapaestic tetrameters 959 ff. against the bickering iambic tetrameters 1034-88, so he distinguishes Aeschylus and Euripides in the Frogs (905, 1004), Cleon and the sausage-seller in Knights (761, 841).

1036. καὶ μὲν: for its double function (1st yea verily asseverative, 2d and yet adversative) see K.-G. 2. 137. Exx. of the first as here, with the following word emphasized by γε, are in vv. 4, 1353, 1414; of the second, likewise with γε, in 1185, 1441. | πάλαι: c. imperf. is variously rendered, not always according to GS. 222. Exx. in Arist.: E. 125, N. 1036, 1312, P. 414, 475, Av. 1019, 1670, L. 55, 1033, etc.

1037. πάντα ταῦτα: cp. E. 99, P. 319, Crat. 186.

1041. πλεῖν ἤ: is beyond the pale of syntax; after it may stand a nomin. (Av. 1305, R. 90, Pl. 1184), gen. (as here), dat. (R. 18, 90), or acc. (A. 858, E. 444, 835, N. 1065, Av. 6, 1251, L. 589, R. 1129, Ec. 808). On equivalent modes of expression see K.-G. 2. 311, or O. Schwab 196, who counts about thirty different ways of saying "not more than 500 soldiers"! On the form πλεῖν, K.-Bl. 1. 216 and 641, Brugm. 210.

1045. Warm baths; Crates 15, Hermip. 76, Plat. Legg. 761 c, Gard.-Jev. 314.

1047. ἐπίσχεις: intrans. and absolute; as in E. 847, V. 829, R. 522, 851 (cp. supra, 495); c. gen. Av. 1200 (τοῦ δρόμου), L. 742 (τοῦ τόκου); in fut. ἐφέξει = παύσει E. 915. | σε μέσον: resolution of the fourth foot just before the diaeresis is rare, yet see 1063, 1067 (cp. 1083), A. 1040, Th. 537, 542, 567; Christ 340. | For the wrestler's phrase ἔχω τινὰ μέσον (pass. ἔχομαι μέσος) cp. A. 571, E. 388, R. 469, Ec. 260. On ἀφυκτον passive see H. Richards Arist. and Others 27.

1051. The schol. quotes the poet Pisander on Heracles: τῷ δ' ἐν Θερμοπύλῳ θεὰ γλαυκῶπις Ἀθήνη | ποιεῖ θερμὰ λοστρά παρὰ ῥηγμῖνι θαλάσσης; see also Hdt. 7. 176, Athen. 512 c f.

1052 ff. In Ran. 1069 f., it is Euripides, "mouthing" these arguments in his tragedies, who empties the palaestrae.

1053. δι' ἡμέρας: so V. 485, P. 56, R. 260, 265, Ec. 63; with added ὅλης P. 27. δι' ἔτους V. 1058, διὰ νυκτός frg. 13.

1056 f. ἄν... ἄν: repetition as in 977, E. 17, V. 171, P. 68, Av. 127, 505, 829, 1147, L. 191, 361, Th. 196, R. 914. GMT. 223.

1057. ἀγορητήν: for such word-play, concerned with the ambiguity of some single word, see K. Holzinger De Verborum Lusu ap. Arist. (1876) 21, where among many instances he cites A. 435, 759, N. 260, 479, 545, 639, 1496, 1507, V. 189, 191, 194, P. 42.

1058. ἀνέμι: so used in formal speech in Eur. Herac. 209, Ion 933, Phoen. 1207. Cp. πάρεμι 1075 infra, σκέψαι 1043, 1071, and the formal disposition of his matter (πρόθεσις) that Eur. makes in Ran. 908. These phrases and the whole tone of the present speech show how self-conscious and self-confident and schooled an art rhetoric had become even as early as 423 B.C. | δῆτα: I know no other instance of δῆτα used as here. It is not the δῆτα either of quest. or of answer, nor that which enters into phrases; nor is the tone the same as in v. 6 (imprecation) or v. 269 (prayer), where also it follows a verb. A temporal or transition word is wanted. But δῆτα is neither.

1064. On Peleus and his troubles: Pind. Nem. 4. 56, 5. 26, Apollodor. 3. 12, Hor. Carm. 3. 7. 17.

1065. οὐκ: for like use of ἐκ see E. 181, N. 47, V. 266, 526, P. 1185, Av. 13, Ec. 432, 684, 686, Pl. 435. | τῶν λύχνων: i.e. the lamp market; so τὰ ὄρνεα, οἱ ἰχθύες, τὰ λάχανα, τὰ σήσαμα, τοῦ-

λαιον, ὁ οἶνος, αἱ χύτραι, αἱ μυρρίναι, τὰ σκόροδα, τὰ κρόμμνα, etc. | ἡ τέλαντα πολλά: van Leeuwen reads ἡ ἑκατὸν τέλαντα, i.e. ΗΗΤΑΛΑΝΤΑ, where Η = ἑκατόν. But this Η disappearing by haplography, πολλά was supplied to fill the verse.

1066. οὐ μὰ Δι' οὐ: R. 645, 1043, Pl. 704, Xen. Oecon. 1. 7, 21. 7, Conjiv. 2. 4. A like ἀνα-δίπλωσις, or repetition, of the negative with intervening words in 1470, A. 421, E. 1309, V. 1496, R. 493, 1308, K.-G. 2. 204, Rehdantz on Xen. Anab. 7. 6. 11.

1074. The quest. was not new. In old Ionia Mimnermus had asked τίς δὲ βίος, τί δὲ τέρπνον ἄτ' ἐρ χρυσῆς Ἀφροδίτης (frg. 1).

1076. The condition is expressed in parataxis, not hypotaxis (i.e. co-ordination, not sub-ordination); so Av. 78, Th. 405, Ec. 179, 197, Hdt. 4. 118, 5. 92, Eur. Androm. 334, Orest. 646, comic poets in K. 2. 148 (frg. 34. 4), 277 (frg. 4. 4), 453 (frg. 6. 13-16), 512 (frg. 107), Demos. 3. 18, 18. 198, Paul Epist. Corinth. 2. 11. 22, James 5. 13 f., etc. K.-G. 2. 233 f.

1077. A like picture of the defendant, helpless from lack of rhetoric, in Plato Gorg. 486 b.

1080. ἐπ-αν-ενεγκεῖν: the characters of Euripides thus "refer" the precedent of a crime to the gods in Troad. 948, Hippol. 451 f., 474, Iph. T. 390, Bacch. 28 ff. Cp. Plato Legg. 941 b, Euthyph. 5 c.

1103 ff. The text-note follows van Leeuwen.

1115. τοὺς κριτάς: other exx. of this syntactic fusion (and confusion): 1148, Av. 652, 1269, L. 63, 408, Pl. 200. See n. on 479. — For like direct appeals to the judges see n. on Introd. § 98 toward end.

1117. ἐν ὥρῃ: betimes, in good season; V. 242, 689, P. 122, Ec. 395. But ἦρος ἐν ὥρῃ supra 1008 is different.

1119. καρπὸν: a collective singular, as κέραμος 1127; so πλίνθος, κάλαμος, δῖς, ἀσπίς, ἵππος, etc. GS. 56, K.-G. 1. 13. | τε καὶ τάς: the Mss. have τὸν καρπὸν τεκούσας ἀμπέλους, much like 281 καρπούς τ' ἀρδομένας ἱερὰν χθόνα. It may be the true reading, but seems rather poetic for the business-like πρῶτα μὲν . . . εἶτα and the prose level of the whole passage.

1120. ἔγαν ἐπομβρίαν: adverb used as adjective without article. This is rare: 1203 πρόβατ' ἄλλως, 1492 σφόδρ' ἀλαζόνες, Thuc. 1. 122. 2 ἄντικρυς δουλείαν, 4. 31. 2 λίθων λογαίῃν, K.-G. 1. 609.

1122. προσεχέτω: see n. on 575. | πρός: c. gen. of agent (= ὑπό) only here in Arist., whether with passive verbs or intransitive (Sobol. Praepos. 178). It is common in Hdt. (e.g. 1. 36, 47, 61, 114, 120, 159) and in tragedy (e.g. Aesch. Prom. 92, 650, 761, 767, 1072), and is found in some writers of Attic prose as Xenophon and Plato (K.-G. 1. 516 bottom), but is not so used by Thuc. or the orators.

1124. ἦνίκ' ἂν γάρ: since conjunctions regularly yield position to ἂν in this group, we might write ἦνίκαν, as ὅταν, ἐπειδάν. Cp. ἦνίκ' ἂν δέ P. 1159 (despite RV), 1179, Ec. 273, Pl. 107 (despite V), Eur. Iph. T. 1217.

1125. παίησομαν: Blass (K.-Bl. 2. 111 f. and 585 and in Verb List) distinguishes between παιήσω and παισω, βαλλήσω and βαλῶ, κλαιήσω and κλαύσομαι, τυπτήσω and πατάξω, ἔλξω and ἐλκύσω, ἔξω and σχίσω, χαίρῃσω and χαρήσομαι, by making the first in each pair a "present" or "durative" future, the second an "aoristic" future.

1127. κέραιμον: the same collective sing. (1119 n.) in Thuc. 2. 4. 2, Herodas Mim. 3. 44 ἀλλ' ὁ κέρμιος πᾶς ὥσπερ ἵτρια θλήται.

1130. ἂν . . . τυχεῖν: ἂν c. inf. after βούλομαι; GMT. 211.

1136. ἀπο-ολεῖν κάξ-ολεῖν: cp. P. 366 ἀπόλωλας ἐξόλωλας, 1072 ἐξώλως ἀπόλοιο, and in Latin perire intereo (Nonius 422 "perire levior res est et habet inventionis spem et non omnium rerum finem").

1137. τε μέτρια: so Green for the Mss. μέτριά τε.

1146. τουτονί: Zielinski 45 understands not θύλακον with schol. and all modern editors, but μισθόν, referring to 876 (τάλαντον).

1147. ἐπι-θαυμάζειν: the simple verb often means to honour, e.g. Eur. El. 84, 519, Med. 1144, Isoc. 1. 10, Demos. 19. 338. With the compound, where ἐπι- is besides, in addition to, cp. ἐπ-άγω, ἐπ-εισάγω, ἐπ-αιτέω, ἐπ-άρχω (Xen. Cyr. 1. 1. 4), ἐπ-εγκάπτω (Arist. Eg. 493).

1149. δν : may well enough call back to νίον over the nearer λόγον, since νίον stands high in the thought (hence its prolepsis), while λόγον lies low almost in parenthesis. Good delivery will guard against misunderstanding.

1151. ῥστε : c. opt. and ἄν, A. 944, Av. 1126 ; c. fut. indic. 1342. GMT. 602.

1152. κε : Streps. is referring to his own case, hence ε c. indic., the mood of facts. In the next verse Socrates generalizes for all cases, hence κάν c. subjunctive.

1154. Quoted from Euripides' Peleus, frg. 623. — For τάρρα, not τάρρα, see K.-Bl. 1. 331 Anm. 3.

1156. Sweeping imprecations upon an enemy (αἰτός, γένος, οἰκία, παιδία, etc.) are common : Antiphon 5. 11, Andoc. 1. 98, Lysias 12. 10, Demos. 23. 67, 47. 70, especially the comic one in Arist. Ran. 587 f.

1158. οἷος : a relat. clause in causal relation to the preceding, as in 699 after an exclamation. See also n. on causal ὅτε 7, causal ὅστις 42, concessive ὅς 579, ὥς 209, and ὅς 1226. The type here is a common one from Homer down ; cp. Od. 4. 611 αἵματος εἰς ἀγαθοῦ φίλον τέκος, οἷ' ἀγορεύεις, "you are of good blood, dear lad, the way you talk." The antecedent is no particular word in the main clause, but the main clause itself, the truth of which is measured in so far as the relat. clause is true. This is usually expressed in Engl. by the demonstr. such, so, etc. Perhaps the Greeks also felt the connection as parataxis rather than hypotaxis, the relat. stem being by origin demonstrative. See my Selections from Plato 446 f., K.-G. 2. 371, and for further exx. Arist. Thesm. 461, 712 (van L.'s reading), 878, Pl. 775, V. 1451, Eur. Hippol. 1079, Ion 799, Soph. O. C., 1428.

1165. Eur. Hec. 171-74 ὦ τέκνον, ὦ παῖ δυστανοτάτας ματέρος, ἔξελθ' ἔξελθ' οἴκων· ἄε ματέρος αὐδάν. | παῖ, ἔξ : hiatus (with no correption or elision) is permissible in interjections and address ; A. 971 εἶδες ὦ εἶδες ὦ (cretic), V. 297 ὦ παππία· ἥδιον. K.-Bl. 1. 197.

1168. ὦ φίλος : need not be a nomin. for voc., but an exclamatory nomin., as A. 27 ὦ πόλις, V. 900 ὦ μαρὸς οὔτος. But there is emotion either way.

1170. ιω: τὸ ιω ἐπὶ χαρᾶς περισπᾶται (schol.). If this is true — and from analogy of ἀληθές — ἀληθες, ἡ — τῆς, and other such shifts and changes there is no good reason to doubt it, we should accent ιω in N. 1, 1321, 1493, E. 451, V. 931, P. 110, 1191, etc., but ιω in E. 1096, P. 317, 345, Av. 193, etc. In N. 543 it is indifferent, in R. 653 there is comic ambiguity. Yet see Ellendt-Genthe Lex. Soph., or Bekk. Anecd. 1237.

1172. μὲν γε: no contrast expressed; so A. 154, L. 1165. See also n. on 1382. | ξερηγητικός: for a parody on the fashionable formation of adjectives in -ικός see E. 1378, V. 1209.

1175. ἀδικοῦντα . . . κακουργοῦντα: from Plato Crito 49 b c it is clear that the difference was more in word than in deed. | οἷδ' ὅτι: see n. on 881.

1176. βλέπος: van Leeuwen on R. 562 lists many "looks." One could look (βλέπειν) δριμύ, κλέπτον, θυμβροφάγον, ναύφαρκτον, ἀστράπας, νᾶπυ, κάρδαμα, σκύτη, ὀπόν, πυρρίχην, αἰκίαν, ὀρίγανον, ὑπότριμμα, Ἄρη, ὄμφακας, τιμᾶν (V. 847).

1178. ὦ δὴ: well now, but then, well but. With δὴ we mark a point or stage in our progress, finishing something and making a fresh start. It is a collocation frequent in the reasoning Plato; see my Selections from Plato on Apol. 24 d. In Arist. it appears, perhaps by accident, only in questions, except in Av. 1660, viz. N. 1178, V. 858, P. 227, Av. 67, 112, 155, L. 599, Th. 608, R. 158, 805, 865, Ec. 542, Pl. 264.

1183. εἰ μὴ πέρ γε: the same order in Xen. Oecon. 1. 13, 7. 17, showing that sometimes the affinity of εἰ-μὴ prevails over that of εἰ-περ.

1195. ὁπανιῶντο: reciprocal middle; GS. 149, K.-G. 1. 107.

1198. προτίνθαι: Mommsen Feste 338, Athen. 171 c.

1199. ὑφελόλατο: Ionic form of opt. found also in E. 662, P. 209, Av. 1147, L. 42. K.-Bl. 2. 78. As all exx. stand at end of iambic trim. exc. E. 662, perhaps metrical need suggested its use, as with -μεσθα (576 n.).

1202. ἡμέτερα . . . τῶν σοφῶν: so A. 93 τόν γε σὸν τοῦ πρέσβεως (ὀφθαλμόν), Pl. 33, Hom. Il. 3. 180 δαῖρ αὐτ' ἐμὸς ἔσκε κυνώπιδος, Soph. O.C. 344, Tr. 775, Phil. 1126, Eur. Hec. 430, El. 366, 1195, Cycl. 244. K.-G. I. 282 f.

1203. ἀριθμός: mere ciphers; so Eur. Herac. 997, Troad. 476. | ἄλλως: with subst., frequent; Blaydes cites some thirty instances from prose and poetry. K.-G. I. 610.

1205. ἐπ' εὐτυχίαισιν: ἐπί of cause or occasion, with συμφοραῖς, ἀγαθῇ τύχῃ, νίκῃ, etc. Sobol. Praepos. 152 cites E. 406, 411, 655, 1318, 1320, V. 869, 1046, L. 1276, 1293, Th. 1049, Ec. 1181. | μοῦγκάμουν: crasis of -οι and ε-; so οὔμοι E. 1003, μοῦχρησε V. 159, καίτουσσι V. 599, μέντουγώ R. 971. K.-Bl. I. 222.

1207 f. ὥς . . . χοῖον: instructive on the parallel functions of ὥς and οἷον. Cp. Th. 702 f., and see n. on 1158.

1214-1302. In the two scenes here following it is Streps. himself who plies sophistry successfully against his creditors, and not the young graduate, as we might expect. It has been argued from this that the education of Pheidip. formed no part of the original play, since it is matter of record that the δγών between the two Δόγοι was absent therefrom.

1214. ἄνδρα: = one = German man = French on; so Av. 1319, Plato Phaed. 114 d (bis), Symp. 178 d, Soph. O.T. 314, 504, Phil. 1228, and often, especially when joined c. partic. as Plato Phaed. 63 e ἀνὴρ ἐν φιλοσοφίᾳ διατρίψας, 76 b, Gorg. 484 a, Lach. 188 c. See Ast Lex. Plat., Ellendt-Genthe Lex. Soph.

1215. τότε: often needs care in translation, even when clear in its reference; so 1456 (in the first place), E. 483, P. 694, Av. 24 (before), R. 136, 550 (that time), Pl. 834, 1117, etc. Thuc. I. 101. 2, 3. 69. 1, 4. 46. 1, 4. 101. 3, 5. 4. 4, 5. 6. 1.

1221. καλοῦμαι: cp. Av. 1046, V. 1417 for this formula — acc. of person, gen. of charge or of claimed damages, ἐς c. acc. of time.

1226. ὅν: a use of the relative by no means rare, where the antecedent is easily felt, though not at first sight found. Such relat. clauses often give the circumstances quasi-causally, like ὅτε- clauses (see n. on 7), and may be translated when I (you, he, etc.). See 1044, 1377, 1380, E. 1275, V. 487, 518, P. 865, L. 661, Th. 706, R. 1058, Soph. O.C. 263, Aj. 457, Thuc. 1. 68. 3, 1. 140. 5, 2. 44. 2 (ὧν), 4. 26. 4, 6. 68. 1; so the ὅς ἄν common in Thuc., as 2. 44. 1 (τὸ δ' εὐτυχές, αἰ ἄν), 6. 14, 6. 16. 3, 7. 68. 1, Andoc. 2. 18.

1235. ὅστις = ἐφ' ᾧ, as in P. 333. K.-G. 2. 504.

1237. To support his view that there is here a hint at the lack of salt (i.e. wit) in Pasiās' words, van Leeuwen cites frg. 151, P. 1073 f.

1238. χοῆς : i.e. χοεύς. K.-Bl. 1. 498.

1241. Ζεὺς ὀρκόμενος : an oath in the name of Zeus. On this substantive value of the partic. and its large use in Greek see my Selections from Plato on Crito 50 c, Monro *Hom. Gram.*² § 245; exx. are frequent from Homer down : Od. 5. 97, 24. 474, Theogn. 509, Pind. Ol. 3. 6, 9. 111, Pyth. 2. 21, 3. 102, 11. 22, Nem. 4. 34, Soph. Aj. 76, Eur. Hel. 94, Hippol. 798, Her. Fur. 732, Arist. V. 27, 47, P. 605, Hippocr. Prognost. 2 fin., 9 init., 9 fin., Xen. Cyr. 4. 5. 21, Antiphon 5. 35, Lysias 1. 7, 4. 10, Isae. 2. 7, Demos. 18. 57, Strabo 486 (Κόρινθος κατασκαφεῖσα), not to mention Herodotus.

1252. ὅσον γέ μ' εἰδέναι : cp. V. 1288, P. 857, Th. 34, Ec. 350, Thuc. 6. 25. 2, Plato Theaet. 145 a; GMT. 778, K.-G. 2. 511.

1253. οὐκοῦν : c. fut. indic. = imv.; P. 261, 274, 950, Av. 991, 1260, R. 193, 200, 201, 339, 480, 649, Ec. 43, 1144, Pl. 71, 974, frg. 617.

1260. Cp. Eur. Hel. 541 εἰα, τίς οὗτος; οὐ τί που κτλ., Hec. 501 εἰα, τίς οὗτος. For εἰα see P. 60, Av. 327, 1495, Th. 699, 1105, Pl. 824. | οὐτι που : P. 1211, Av. 443, L. 354, R. 522, 526, Ec. 329, 372, 756. Distinguish from οὐ δήπου in question : A. 122, Av. 269, R. 526 (?), Ec. 327. For this distinction see Stallbaum on Plato Symp. 194 b ("οὐ δήπου est suspicantis, οὐ τί που autem mirantis et indignantis"), Ellendt-Genthe Lex. Soph. s.v. που, Smyth 480.

1261. On Carcinus the dancer and his three actor-sons (one of them being also a tragic poet) see V. 1501 ff., P. 782 ff. with scholia; also Th. 440, Plat. com. frg. 134. For Xenocles the tragedian son, composer of the Licymnius here ridiculed, see further Th. 169, R. 86, Aelian V.H. 2. 8, who tells us that Xenocles won the prize over Euripides in 416/15 B.C.

1263. κατὰ σταντόν: κατά separative, akin to its distributive use; so 194, A. 1019, E. 513, V. 786, 1021, 1493, Av. 564, Ec. 837, and often in Plato e.g. Phaed. 64 c, 66 a (bis), 66 e.

1267. ὁ τῶν: E. 494, 1036, N. 1432, V. 373, 1161, P. 721, 1113, 1220, 1264, Av. 12, R. 952, 1243, etc. K.-Bl. 1. 520 f. "Erklärung bestritten."

1269. μάντοι: inserted in the phrase ἄλλως τε καί as in Plato Apol. 35 c. So πάντως in Aesch. Prom. 636, Pers. 689, Eum. 726, etc.

1273. With the play on ἀπ' ὄνου and ἀπὸ νοῦ cp. Diog. Laert. 2. 118 *ὁ Στίλπων ἰδὼν τὸν Κράτητα χειμῶνος συγκεκαυμένον, ὃ Κράτης, εἶπε, δοκεῖς μοι χρεῖαν ἔχειν ἱματίου καινοῦ ὅπερ ἦν νοῦ καὶ ἱματίου. So Diogenes the Cynic ἰδὼν ἱματιοκλέπτην ἐν τῷ βαλανείῳ ἔφη Ἐπ' ἀλειμμάτων ἢ ἐπ' ἄλλ' ἱμάτων; (Diog. Laert. 6. 52). Athen. 616 c Lysimachus jeered concerning his wife Arsinoe by changing the verse κακῶν κατάρχεις τήνδε μοῦσαν εἰσάγων τὴνδ' ἐμοῦσαν. So Arist. Ran. 304 ἐκ κυμάτων γὰρ αὖθις αὖ γαλήν ὄρω is a comic perversion of γαλήν' ὄρω.*

1274. εἰ βούλομαι: expresses the condition of ληρῶ not as a fact, but as a judgment: "Do you judge that I talk nonsense, if (or because) I wish, etc.?" Hence εἰ here = the ὅτε of v. 7 (see n.). Sobol. Synt. 90 b so classes the conditions with εἰ in 1284, 1339, A. 307, E. 347, V. 62, 442, 466, 503, 535, 956, 1050, Th. 540, R. 1449, Ec. 1098, Pl. 910, 1146.

1276. ὥσπερ: as it were; A. 193, V. 395, P. 234, Th. 869, Plato Phaed. 66 b, 88 d, Apol. 18 d, 22 a, and often.

1279 f. Διογένης ὁ Ἀπολλωνιάτης (φησὶν) ὑπὸ ἡλίου ἀρπάζεσθαι τὸ ὕδωρ τῆς θαλάσσης (schol. Apol. Rhod. 4. 269). ὁ ἥλιος ἀνάγει καὶ ἀναρπάζει τοῦ ὕδατος τό τε λεπτότατον καὶ κουφότατον (Hippocr. περὶ ἀέρων c. 8 init.).

1287. τί δ' ἄλλο γ' ἤ: so 1447, 1495, P. 103, 923, Av. 25, R. 198, Ec. 395, 771, Pl. 1172, Aesch. Sept. 852, Plato Phaedr. 268 b. Cp. τί δ' ἄλλο γ' εἰ μὴ E. 615; οὐκ ἄλλο-τι ἤ = merely, only, and the quest.-phrase ἄλλο τι ἤ.

1292. Cp. Anaxagoras frg. 5 Diels (= 14 Mullach) γινώσκειν χρόνῳ ὅτι πάντα οὐδὲν ἐλάσσω ἐστὶν οὐδὲ πλείω (οὐ γὰρ ἀνυστὸν πάντων εἶναι), ἀλλὰ πάντα ἴσα εἶναι. | δίκαιον: for a good study of δίκη, δίκαιον, see Weber 168–71.

1295. πλείων: on the forms of πλείων in -ει- (required by Arist. throughout, except in πλέον) see Starkie Vesp. 662, K.-Bl. 1. 571.

1299. ἐπιαλῶ: used also V. 1348, P. 432, frg. 552, Phryn. 1, Thuc. 5. 77. 8.

1301. ἔμμελλον: knew I was to —. A. 347, V. 460, R. 268. GS. 215, or in full A. Platt Journ. Phil. (Engl.) 21 (1893), 39 ff. | ἄρα: = ἄρα confirmative; so V. 3 (?), 460, 839, 893, Av. 161, 1308 (?), 1688, L. 933, Ec. 462, 672 (?), Pl. 579. Bachmann Lex. Spec. So used also in lyric and tragic poetry (a matter of metre); K.-G. 2. 318.

1302. αὐτοῖς τροχοῖς: with very wheels, wheels and all; K.-G. 1. 433 and 654, Brugm. 408. In Arist., without art. as here: E. 3, 7, P. 1288, Th. 826, R. 226, 476, Ec. 691; with art.: E. 849, N. 1302, V. 170, 1449, R. 560.

1306. ἀδανείσατο: for the syllaba anceps -το- see Christ 130.

1308. Cp. Hippocr. Epidem. 1. 26. 6 πυρετὸς ὁξὺς ἔλαβε. 1. 26. 8 πῦρ ἔλαβε. 1. 26. 11 ῥίγος ἔλαβε, etc., very frequent.

1309. ἰσως: not in the Mss., but, in its very inconcinnity with οὐκ ἔσθ' ὅπως οὐ (most certainly), a conjecture very appropriate to this obscure and comically ominous prophecy.

1312. πάλαι ποτ': in Arist. only in the proverb πάλαι ποτ' ἦσαν δλκιμοι Μιλήσιοι Pl. 1002, 1075, V. 1060 (varied), in a tragic line P. 133, and in the present chorus; hence is probably not a prose phrase. Bachmann Conject. Arist. 47.

1321. That Streps. brings with him his δῖνος is the suggestion of Huidhues Neue phil. Rundschau for 1898, p. 387.

1323. ἀμυνάβετε: K.-Bl. 2. 178 f.

1324. On κάκωσις γονέων see R. 149, Andoc. 1. 74, Aeschin. 1. 28, Xen. Mem. 2. 2. 13, 1. 2. 49 ff.

1326. καὶ μάλα: = μάλιστα; Alex. frg. 116. 8 (K. 2. 338), Philem. 64 (K. 2. 494), Straton 1. 26 (K. 3. 362). It is common in Plato. K.-G. 2. 540.

1332. ἐν δίκη: 1379, E. 258, V. 508, P. 628, Th. 830; in a double sense V. 421.

1345. σὸν ἔργον: 1397, 1494, Av. 862, R. 590, etc.

1352. πάντως: A. 347, 956, E. 232, 799, V. 603, 770, P. 1147, 1194, Av. 935, L. 495, Th. 805, 851, 984, 1012, R. 263, Ec. 604, 704, Pl. 273. | δράσεις: fut. = inv., 811 n.

1356. Κρίων: perhaps the Crius of Hdt. 6. 50, 6. 73.

1357. So Socrates and Euripides thought the symposium no place for music, but for sweet reasoning; Plato Protag. 347 c-e, Symp. 176 e, Eur. Med. 190 ff.

1358. ὥσπερ: so N. 1360, A. 876, E. 270, V. 129, 1107, Av. 51, 1519, L. 115, always c. subst. except Av. 51 (c. partic.). | γυναῖκ' ἄλοσαν: on songs to lighten labour see Smyth 491, who mentions those for reaping, binding, winnowing, sowing, drawing water at the well, rowing, pressing grapes, etc.

1359. γάρ . . . ἕρα: protected by V. 1299, P. 22, 566, Ec. 91.

1360. For the legend of the song-loving τέττιγες see Plato Phaedr. 259 b.

1364. ἀλλά: c. inv. very common; often prefaced by σὺ δέ, ὑμεῖς δέ, ὁ δέ (see n. on 39): 1369, A. 191, 1033, P. 660, L. 904, Antiph. 163 (K. 2. 77), Eur. Hec. 391, Herac. 565, Ion 978, Med. 942, Rhes. 167, Phoen. 1667, Xen. Hell. 3. 4. 26; cp. also (c. inv.) Soph. El. 415, O.C. 1276, Tr. 320, 801, Phil. 1071, Eur. Phoen. 618. — Other exx. of ἀλλά at least: Arist. Thesm. 424, 449, Soph. El. 1013, Tr. 201, Eur. Her. Fur. 331, Ion 426, 1304, Orest. 1562, Phoen. 1671; in the phrase ἀλλὰ νῦν Arist. Av. 1598, Thesm. 288, Soph. El. 411.

1367. στόμφακα: for some 50 nouns in -αξ see Blaydes on Vesp. 135, among them φέναξ, σίρφαξ, θαλάμαξ, στύππαξ, μείραξ, πλούταξ. Cp. Latin furax, bivax, edax. For their vulgar tone see Peppler 42. | κρημνοποιόν: in R. 929 the sentences of Aeschylus are called ῥήμαθ' ἱπποκρημνα, ἃ ξυμβαλεῖν οὐ ῥάδι' ἦν. In E. 628 Cleon is said to κρημνοὺς ἐρεῖδειν.

1369. τὸν θυμὸν δακνών: R. 43 δάκνω γ' ἐμαντὸν ἀλλ' ὁμῶς γελῶ, Hom. Od. 1. 381 ὁδὰξ ἐν χεῖλεσι φύντες. These passages refer to self-restraint; but V. 287 μῆδ' οὕτω σεαυτὸν ἔσθιε, 374 δακεῖν τὴν καρδίαν, 778 δάκνων σεαυτόν, Hom. Il. 6. 202 ὃν θυμὸν κατέδων have the sense of fretting oneself, eating one's heart out. | σὺ δ' ἀλλά: 1364 n.

1371. ἦσι: Zielinski 302 cites this in support of his contention that the trimeters of Greek tragedy were delivered in recitative, or chanted; i.e. midway between a sung tune and the declamation of prose. Christ 681 holds that they were "einfach declamirt"; Wilamowitz Timotheos 85 apparently thinks the same.

1372. On the prohibition of marriage with half-sister born of same mother, though allowed with one born of same father, see J. G. Frazer Lectures on the Early Hist. of the Kingship (1905), 245.

1373. ἐπαράτω: cp. Soph. Phil. 374 καὶ γὰρ χολωθεὶς εὐθὺς ἤρισσον κακοῖς | τοῖς πᾶσιν.

1374. ἐντεθεν: from that time on; temporal also in E. 131, 543, A. 528, 530, 535, 539, V. 125, P. 426, 922 (ἐντευθενί), R. 154.

1378. ὦ . . . τί σ' εἶπω: at a loss for a name is also Demos. 18. 22, ὦ . . . τί ἂν εἰπὼν σέ τίς ὁρθῶς προσείποι. So P. 520, Alex. 108. 4 (K. 2. 334), Xen. Hell. 2. 3. 47, Andoc. 1. 129, Demos. Epist. 3. 37.

1379. τυπτήσομαι: only by violence can one maintain Blass's distinction (K.-Bl. 2. 585) between the true fut. pass. in -θήσομαι, as an "Aktion der Vollendung," and a fut. mid. used as pass., to express "Aktion der Dauer." Starkie lists the instances of such fut. mid. in Arist. on Vesp. 893. But θρανεύσεται E. 369, ἐκκυκλήσομαι A. 408, καλούμεθα V. 544, and σταθμήσεται R. 797 may all be taken as causative middle and not passive. So τυπτήσομαι here is I shall get myself a beating. In R. 817, ὄμματα στροβήσεται is merely he will roll his eyes.

1380-90. Cp. these details of infant-nursing with those deemed proper to epic poetry, in Il. 9. 488-91, and to tragedy in Aesch. Cho. 750-60. Are all three passages mock pathetic in varying degrees, or was such realism taken gravely in the grave poetry? In Arist., of course, there can be no doubt of the tone.

1382. μὲν γε . . . ἤ . . . ἤ: in this scheme γε confirms the foregoing statement by citing instances ("asyndeton explicativum"). If only one instance is to be adduced, γε commonly appears in the form γούν (γε οὖν) or γάρ (γ' ἄρα), though sometimes alone, as in Av. 720. As here, so V. 564, Av. 1136, 1608, L. 589, 720, Th. 804, R. 290, Ec. 60, Pl. 665. See Frohberger-Gebauer's Lysias 13. 27 Anhang; and on γε Neil's Equites, p. 192.

always anticipated, and never got to the act of "phrasing" at all, the inf. seems to be preferable. But many editors write φράσας; and GMT. 903. 8 thinks the inf. c. φθάνω "more than doubtful." — On οὐκ ἐφθης . . . καί, see K.-G. 2. 65, and cp. Isoc. 4. 86, 5. 53, 8. 98, 9. 53, 16. 37, 17. 23, 19. 22.

1388. ξω ξε: a like pleonasm in Av. 1107, ἔνδον ἐν-, Th. 265, and Pl. 231 ἔσω εἰς-, Pl. 238 κάτω κατα-, etc. Bachmann Conject. Arist. 50. For a long list of redundancies see van Leeuwen on Th. 830.

1392. πηδᾶν, δ τιλ ξει: the Engl. often supplies to see, know, etc.; cp. A. 361, V. 1424, Av. 121, Pl. 678, and the ἐάν πως type (in case, maybe, perhaps) in A. 1031, V. 271, 399, 1409, 1515, R. 399, 644, 1517, Ec. 107, 123, etc. GMT. 489, Sobol. Synt. 48.

1396. ἀλλ' οὐδὲ: i.e. (not only at no high price) but not even. K.-G. 2. 287. Cp. Demos. 19. 37 ἀλλ' οὐδὲ μικρόν, 21. 114 ἀλλ' οὐδ' ὅτιοῦν, 25. 5, 43. 49, proem 48 ἀλλ' οὐδὲ τὸ μικρότατον; common also in Lucian.

1402. πρίν: c. inf., though the main clause is negative; so only thrice in Arist. (here, P. 307, Ec. 589), while 54 other infinitives are normal in following an affirmative clause. Sobol. Synt. 156, GMT. 629, 627.

1415. With this interruption of the recited tetrameters by a ridiculous spoken trimeter, compare R. 665, where the spoken trimeters give place to a bit of song, and Av. 864 or Th. 295, where prayers are offered in prose, and Av. 1661, where a law of Solon is likewise given in prose. | δοκεῖς: to think right, to approve, the personal δοκῶ being sometimes used in the same sense as the impersonal δοκεῖ. On this see A. T. Murray in Class. Phil. 5 (1910), 488-93.

1427. τάλλα τὰ βοτά: a duplication of the article is common with ἄλλος, and indeed the rule, if an adj. or partic. be used as its substantive; see V. 665, 939, L. 999, Ec. 914, Pl. 996, Thuc. 1. 90. 4, 6. 15. 2, etc. K.-G. 1. 635. | ταυτὶ: not always visible or present is the thing indicated by the demonstrat. οὗτοσί. Kock cites Pherecr. 145. 20, Menand. 462. 3, Metagen. 6. 5 (K. 1. 706), where the things referred to are absent.

1431. τὴν κόπρον: the "Philosophy of Dirt" indeed!

1433. εἰ δὲ μή: used so much (and properly) after affirmat. clauses in the sense otherwise, it came to be used, regardless of context, after negative clauses as well; as here, so P. 384, Av. 133, R. 629, V. 435. Exx. after an affirm.: E. 69, 1158, N. 1194, V. 428, 972, 1444, P. 262, etc. So fixed it became in form that it was used where ἐὰν δὲ μή would have stood, had the clause been written in full. GMT. 478, Sobol. Synt. 118. See also n. on 881 for like petrifications.

1449. βάραθρον: ὄρυγμά τι ἐν Κεῖριαδῶν δήμῳ τῆς Οἰνῆϊδος φυλῆς, εἰς ὃ τοὺς ἐπὶ θανάτῳ καταγνωσθέντας ἐνέβαλλον (Bekk. Anecd. 219. 8). "The long ravine (now filled in) to the west of the Observatory is undoubtedly the ancient Barathron. . . . It is partly artificial and is perhaps the oldest quarry used by the Athenians" (Baedeker's *Greece*³ 71). See E. 1362, R. 574, Pl. 1109, Xen. Hell. 1. 7. 20, Plat. Gorg. 516 d; W. Judeich Topographie von Athen (1905) 375. Cp. ἐς τὸν Καιάδαν Thuc. 1. 134. 4 with Steup's note.

1456. ἡγορεῖται: the Att. prose usage of this verb is carefully defined by Rutherford New Phrynicus 326.

1458 ff. This is the Greek doctrine from Homer down: Il. 19. 137, Theogn. 403, Soph. Ant. 621, Lycurg. 92, Trag. Adesp. 296 N.² In both directions, εἰς καλὰ ἢ εἰς κακά, the gods helped those that helped themselves. Aesch. Pers. 742 ἀλλ' ὅταν σπεύδῃ τις αὐτός, χάθεός ξυνάπτεται.

1473. τουτονί: from Homer down, a contemptuous this or that (iste) is οὗτος, not ὁδε; V. 89, 210, R. 429. See Monro Hom. Gram. § 251, Rehdeutz Index Demos., K.-G. 1. 644. On Meineke's suggestion τουτουί (i.e. Socrates) adopted by Kock, see Sobol. Praepos. 111. | δῖνον: κεραμεοῦν βαθὺ ποτήριον, ὃ καλεῖται δῖνος ὅπερ ἄνω εὐρύτερον ὄν κάτω εἰς ὀξὺ λήγει (schol. on 380) ; Athen. 467 d c (= Kock Com. Fragm. 1. 720, 2. 427, 3. 276), 503 c (τὸν ψυγέα ἐκάλουν εἰ ἀρχαῖοι δῖνον). For its supposed form see H. B. Walters Hist. of Anc. Pottery (1905) 1. 173, Fowler and Wheeler Handbook of Grk. Archaeology (1909) 414 (No. 8).

1474. δτε : explains the exclamat. Cp. P. 196 ἐν ἡ, δτε-, A. 401, and see n. on 699 and 1158.

1478 ff. So the statue of Hermes was consulted at Pherae in Achaea (Pausan. 7. 22. 2 f.). Cp. Plaut. Menaech. 841-75 for like interview with Apollo, and Molière Le malade imaginaire 2. 12 where Argen consults his petit doigt.

1482. δωκάθω : used in V. 1203 and a few times in Plato, was probably obsolescent. See n. on ἀμνάθω 1323.

1490. The burning of the followers of Pythagoras in the house of Milo in Croton took place after 440 B.C. and perhaps only shortly before the Clouds was produced, if indeed it was not still later. For this scene, as we learn from Hypoth. β', is due to the revision of the play, and the comic poets habitually seized on the freshest events at hand. See Polyb. 2. 39. 1, Aristox. ap. Iamb. 249, Zeller Phil. der Griechen 1. 1.⁵ 336.

1491. τινά : when you darkly refer to your definite enemy as an indefinite τις, the thing is ominous. Cp. R. 552, 606, 628, 664, Pl. 382.

1492. καὶ σφόδρα : V. 1333 καὶ σφόδρ' εἰ νεανίας. Cp. εἰ ὥς μάλιστα or ὅτι μάλιστα L. 146, Antiphon 5. 27, 5. 62, Lysias 22. 1, 22. 10, Plato Euthyph. 4 d, 9 c. On concessive clauses in Arist. see Sobol. Synt. 55 ff., 115.

1499. τοῦτ' αὐτό : "just that it is that I do want." So τοῦτ' αὐτό in E. 779, Th. 81, Pl. 38, 340, 414, ταῦτ' αὐτά L. 46, 888, αὐτὸ τοῦτο N. 1038, R. 75. After this collocation γάρ (as here) or γάρτοι often follows; and after this again καί with the verb; cp. E. 180, L. 46, Th. 81, R. 73, frg. 488. 9, Xen. Mem. 3. 5. 19, Eur. Androm. 906, Soph. Tr. 600. For this καί which emphasizes the verb as does our auxiliary do or am (e.g. "I am reading"), see n. on 778 and 906.

1506 f. See n. on 201. | τί γὰρ μαθόντες : n. on 402. It is an idiom of the Greek showing correct logical feeling which asks the reason for a fact in this subordinated participial form and sets forth the important thing, viz. the fact itself, in the indic. ; so in the stereotyped questions τί μαθών, τί παθών (340 n.), and in others such as E. 342, 351, 1209, 1320, Av. 112, 407 ; K.-G. 2. 100 f.

1508. δίδωκε, βάλλε : cp. A. 281, E. 251, V. 456, Av. 365, Eur. Rhes. 675, 685.

1511. τό γε τήμερον : cp. V. 833 τό γε παραντίκα, P. 856 τὰ νῦν, Ec. 823 τὸ δ' ἑναγχος. K.-G. 1. 315 and 595.
